POINTERS ON THE RACES.

Autumn and Labor Day Stakes the Features at Sheepshead.

Dobbins and Lamplighter in Fine Fettle and May Win.

The Labor Day programme at Sheepshead Bay is one of unusual excellence. Thousands of people will no doubt try to spend their holiday with profit at this pretty course.

The Autumn Stakes, for two-year-olds, and the Labor Day Stakes, for three-year-olds and upward, are the features. In the latter Lamplighter will endeavor to give Prince of Darkness, Terrifier, and Burmuda 22 pounds each. Banquet receives 3 pounds from Lamplighter and concedes weight to the others. In the Autumn Dobins puts up 125 pounds and concedes from 17 to 21 pounds to Rubicon, Economist, Prig and other good ones. He will have his work cut out to beat Rubicon, who is just rounding to. There are other attractive races, and some very interesting sport may be witnessed. The entries and selections are as follows:

First Race.—A sweepstakes of $10 each, with $600 added, for two-year-olds; five furlongs.

1610	G. Fleischmann & Son's Domingo	108
1624	J. Hunter's Pochino	104
1621	A. Cason's Warlike	110
1621	M. Shea's Modesto	110
1605	Walcott & Campbell's Blackwood	110
1626	J. McLaughlin's Wernberg	110
1621	H. K. Vingut's Sarcasm	97
1621	J. C. Miller's Mere Man	97
1621	W. C. Daly's Flying Fish	97
1610	Rancocas Stable's Golden Valley	97
1605	A. Sweigart's Mazurka	97
1621	W. H. Sands's On the Way	97
1621	Oneck Stable's Nonsense	97

Wernberg, Long Shanks and Lucky Dog look to be the choice of the lot in this race, and they may finish as named.

Second Race.—The Autumn Stakes, a sweepstakes of $50 each, with $1,300 added; for two-year-olds; Futurity course.

(1614)	R. Croker's Dobbins	125
1612	Blemton Stable's Economist	124
1612	W. C. Daly's Tactotum	108
1620	Emore Stable's Anevanda	108
1612	J. A. & A. H. & D. H. Morris's Diana	108

(1612)	J. Ruppert, jr.'s Longdale	108
1612	P. Belmont's Blazing	108
1621	Oneck Stable's Big Mike	104
1601	Rancocas Stable's Rubicon	104

Dobbins looks to be the winner of this event, notwithstanding the stiff weight he puts up. Rubicon looks the best of the others, and may beat Longdale for the place.

Third Race.—A sweepstakes of $10 each, with $600 added, for three-year-olds; Futurity course.

(1682)	D. Miller's Charmion	122
1652	J. Ruppert, jr.'s Lamplighter	122
1602	Walcott & Campbell's Sam Weller	122
1595	J. A. & A. H. & D. H. Morris's Midnight	122
1627	Rancocas Stable's Requital	122
1475	R. Croker's Red Banner	119
1619	W. C. Daly's Clio colt	114
1647	Brown & Rogers's May Lose	111
	M. A. Mahoney's Mask	111

Young Arion and Charmion are the pick of this lot, and they ought to finish as named. Simmons should beat the others.

Fourth Race.—The Labor Day Stakes; a sweepstakes of $50 each, with $1,500 added; one mile and three furlongs.

(1589)	Rancocas Stable's Lamplighter	132
1620	M. F. Dwyer's Banquet	126
1625	W. E. Applegate's Prince of Darkness	100
1625	W. C. Daly's Terrifier	100
1638	R. McClelland's Bermuda	100
1600	J. L. Foltanshe's Gladiator	98
(1617)	Santa Anita Stable's Santa Anna	98

Lamplighter ought to win this race handily enough. Prince of Darkness seems his only dangerous competitor. Banquet should be third.

Fifth Race.—Purse $600, $10 entrance, selling; seven furlongs.

1589	G. Gaines's Peruvian	121
1611	Oak Orchard Water-works's Ida	118
1596	Brown & Rogers's Joe Walker	118
1619	McCafferty & Wishard's Nero	116
1611	M. F. Dwyer's Nomad	115
1608	W. C. Daly's Bonero	111
1619	J. R. & F. P. Keene's Restraint	109
	Æsculapius Stable's Ragner	108
1577	A. Kelly's Rosemount	108
1619	G. K. Leahy & Son's Acclaim	108
1619	N. Straus's Reginald	102

Nero may be cut loose in this race, and if so, he will win. Reginald should secure the place, and Acclaim may beat the others.

Sixth Race.—A sweepstakes of $20 each, with $1,000 added; handicap; one mile and a quarter, on turf.

(1623)	W. Hendrie's Versatile	133
1613	M. F. Dwyer's Raceland	128
1609	J. G. Follansbee's Gleaming	117
1609	Rancocas Stable's Sidney	117
1603	P. J. Dwyer & Son's Madrid	113
1462	Washington Stable's Sport	102
1628	A. Morris's Marigold	100

Sport has a pull in the weights, and as his rest has probably done him good, he ought to win. Raceland should be second and Versatile third.

Guttenburg Selections.

An attractive holiday programme has been arranged by the Hudson County Jockey Club for to-day, and visitors will certainly witness some fine sport. The track will be in fine condition, and fast time should result.

The fourth race on the card, at one mile, is the feature, and has some very good ones in it. The entries:

First Race—Five furlongs.—Sir Knight, 105; Elberon, 98; St. Pat, 98; Bessie Smith, 95; Hiawanda, 95; Fair Knight, 93; Hindmoore, 93; Sun Glimpse, 93; Clarus, 93; Marinelli, 90; Pauline, 90.

GRAVES A SUICIDE.

The Alleged Poisoner of Mrs. Barnaby Takes Poison in His Cell.

LETTERS LEFT SHOW HE HAD DECIDED ON SUICIDE LONG AGO.

He Charges Attorney Stevens with Buying His Conviction.

His Last Words to the Public a Protest of Innocence — His Faithful Wife Made Insane by the News—The Efforts of the Authorities to Get New Evidence Against Him Presumed to Have Been the Cause of the Final Act—The County Commissioners Had Just Voted Money to Bring on New Witnesses for the Trial This Month —Where the Poison Came from a Mystery—The Story of the Fatal Whiskey Bottle.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]

DENVER, Col., Sept. 3.—Dr. Thomas Thatcher Graves, whose second trial for the murder of Mrs. Josephine A. Barnaby was to have been heard this month, took morphine last night. His body was found this morning in his cell in the Arapahoe County jail.

Dr. Graves left letters dated Aug. 9, showing that he contemplated suicide at that date. One to Coroner Chivington read: "No need of autopsy. The cause of death was persecution. Am weary of life."

DR. T. THATCHER GRAVES.

In letters to the county commissioners he upbraided them for not allowing fees to the witnesses for the defense in his coming trial. A letter to his wife is devoted to personal matters and one to the county jailer thanks him for his courtesy. A letter to the public begins as follows:

"ARAPAHOE COUNTY JAIL,
"DENVER, Col., Aug. 6, 1893.

"To the Public:

"In the spring of 1891 I made the trip to Denver, actuated by a desire to appear before the Grand Jury to do all in my power to assist in solving the Barnaby murder mystery. Arriving in Denver, my lawyers refused to allow me to go before the Grand Jury. Soon after the county commissioners granted money to bring the new witnesses from the East, and this is supposed to have been the immediate cause of the last act in the doctor's career. As to the refusal of the County Commissioners to pay fees of witnesses for the defense, it has appeared that no formal request for such an appropriation was made.

Late to-night ex-County Attorney Stevens gave out a statement. He said he had received the following from Joseph M. Breslyn, P. O. Box 564 Antioch, Mass.:

"One Sunday afternoon during the month of November, 1890, I was sitting in the smoking-room of the Park Square station of the Old Colony Railroad, Boston, when a man came up to me and asked me if I could write. Telling him, 'Yes, a little bit,' he said he would write a note for him he would give me a quarter. I consented, but did not want the quarter, which he made me take after writing the note.

"What I wrote was exactly the same, word for word, as what was sent with that bottle of whiskey to Mrs. Barnaby.

"It was written on a block of white paper, I should say about 2½ by 6 inches, which he took from his pocket, and I wrote it with a lead pencil. Whether I should recognize the man again or not I don't know, but I have a good idea of how he looked.

"Now, I am not looking for a trip to Denver or anything of the kind, but I thought I would write and tell you about it and then I would feel satisfied that I had done all that was necessary for the present at least. I am willing to make an affidavit of this or do anything you say."

Mr. Stevens says an investigation showed that Mr. Breslyn was employed by Congressman Elijah Morse, head of the Rising Sun Stove Polish Works, and that he was a man of good reputation.

When Mr. Stevens was last in company with Commissioner Twombly the two visited Canton and talked with Breslyn at length. His description of the man who had the note written tallied with that of Dr. Graves, and they have no doubt but that Mr. Breslyn would be able to identify Mr. Graves as the man who had had the note written in the depot in Boston.

Mr. Stevens details the history of his connection with the case at length, and expresses regret that the matter could not be fully heard and determined in court. He believes that any improper influence has been used, and says he was simply doing his duty as public prosecutor in the case.

The Man Who Mixed the Poison.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3.—County Attorney Stevens when here seeking new evidence against Dr. T. Thatcher Graves found a person who said he would testify that he mixed the poison used in the whiskey sent to Mrs. Barnaby. The man said Dr. Graves asked him to mix it for an innocent purpose.

Dr. Thomas Thatcher Graves first met Mrs. Josephine A. Barnaby in Providence, R. I. The latter was the widow of Jerathmel P. Barnaby, of Providence, who left a large fortune. Mrs. Barnaby suffered from paralysis, and her husband, knowing that this would make her the object of designing persons, left his estate so that she received but $2,500 a year. Dr. Graves won Mrs. Barnaby's confidence by representing that paralysis was his specialty. He induced her to contest her husband's will, and the other beneficiaries settled with her for $105,000. She then managed this money, receiving commissions for his services. Mrs. Barnaby made two wills, in each of which Dr. Graves was remembered for $25,000. These wills are still in court at Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Barnaby and her traveling companion, Mrs. Worrell, of Chester, Pa., were at Denver, Col., April 15, 1891. Mrs. Worrell's son had received a package for Mrs. Barnaby, postmarked Boston. Mrs. Barnaby found it contained a bottle labeled "Whiskey, with a Happy New Year, please accept this fine old whiskey from your friends in the woods."

Mrs. Barnaby and Mrs. Worrell drank from the bottle and both became violently sick. Mrs. Worrell rallied, but Mrs. Barnaby died in five days. Chemists found the whiskey charged with arsenite of potassium.

Dr. Graves was convicted at Denver Jan. 7, 1892. He was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 31, 1892. Application for a new trial hung over for a year. It was finally granted, and May 22 of this year set. Witnesses could not then be procured and a postponement was granted until the latter part of this month.

From his cell window Dr. Graves witnessed the preparations for hanging in Coffin's silver excitement. Interviewed as to this he said: "Yes, I had a front seat during the whole show and would not have missed it for anything."

'COONS HAZE A NEW ATTACHE.

He Came to the Zoo from the Tenderloin and Was Game.

The general placidity which surrounds the domesticity of the 'coon family in Central Park was ruptured yesterday in a manner not calculated to improve the good morals of its members. They fought among themselves and over a newcomer, a Thirty-first street coon, presented by Augustus A. Stryker of No. 161 2nd Ave. Stryker's coon is or was a tough coon, never used to bedsteads, companions nor given to poplitible feats. He is a good-sized fellow, with long claws and sharp teeth, to which facts four or five of his companions can testify.

He came yesterday afternoon. 'Coon hazing is an interesting proceeding. Foreman Burns deposited the Tenderloiner in the cage at 10 A. M. He was royally welcomed. Grover Cleveland, who is a namesake of his donor, and who has grown to be the largest of the lot, cuffed the new arrival. "Party," the big fellow, drove him into a corner and bit him. Then Grover and Patti surrounded the timid 'coon, jumped on him, bit him and drove him to the top of the cage.

At this the whole gang pitched into him and bitten him about, frightening him almost to death. At last he took refuge on the bars, and when Grover approached the new coon jumped on his back and gave him a lambasting. Grover's cries were heard by keeper Marom, who separated the fair and pulled matters right. At dark last night the new arrival had been accorded the fellowship of the 'coon family. Grover was nursing his wounds.

SHE SOUGHT HIM IN MARRIAGE.

Max Schlossberg the Victim of a Love-Sick Girl and a Shatchen.

Max Schlossberg, who formerly had an ice-cream saloon at No. 85 Ludlow street, has brought suit for $2,000 damages against Rachel Goldsmith. He charges her with circulating false reports about him. She is only seventeen years old and a dressmaker. She lives at No. 102 Orchard street with her parents.

Schlossberg, who is twenty-three years old, says that he has no personal acquaintance with Miss Goldsmith. He alleges that she has persecuted him so that he was compelled to sell his business and remove from Ludlow street.

Miss Goldsmith frequented Schlossberg's store, and appears to have fallen madly in love with him. She is even said to have consulted a fortune-teller. He introduced her to a shatchen, who agreed to bring about her marriage with Schlossberg for $25. At the end of a week the shatchen gave her an engagement ring, which he said Schlossberg had sent her. After waiting in vain for her prospective husband to come to her Miss Goldsmith called upon him and threatened a breach-of-promise suit. A guardian will be appointed to defend her from Schlossberg's action at law.

Horse Thieves in Somerset.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]

SOMERVILLE, Sept. 3.—A gang of horse thieves is evidently working Central New Jersey. About three weeks ago a valuable horse was stolen from Thomas Honeyman's stable, and with a carriage, harness and blankets was driven away. Every effort to trace the stolen property has proved fruitless. Last Wednesday two men drove into Somerville with a horse and road wagon. They went to the Somerville Hotel, of which H. Willet is proprietor, and registered as Frank Jack and Jon Miller, of No. 127 Forsyth street, New York. They said they were book agents and were delivering goods. One left the next morning and did not return. The other wanted to hire a team to look for his companion. Mr. Willet let him have a horse and carriage. He has not since heard from the men. One of the searchers met a man between Milstone and New Brunswick, who was leading by a black horse and wagon stolen about the same time from Rosedale. A New Brunswick man found another man who had lost a roan horse at Belmar Brook.

21 Years of Pain

"I suffered with eczema or salt rheum, in such terrible agony at times that I could not walk about the house. I finally took Hood's Sarsaparilla. The first dose relieved me, and after a few months' use I was completely well and feel like a new woman. I attribute my cure to Hood's Sarsaparilla entirely." HOOD'S CURES

MRS. DRESSLER'S FRIEND.

Maggie Washington Tried to Raise Money to Bury the Poor Woman.

Maggie Washington, a comely mulatto girl of 138 Christie street, called at "The Evening World" office to-day in reference to the death of Mrs. Dressler. This poor woman, as told in Saturday's "Evening World," died a few days ago at St. Josephine Home from fatty degeneration of the heart. She had undergone an operation at Bellevue Hospital, where both legs were amputated. She was supplied with artificial members by readers of "The Evening World," who responded nobly to the appeal made in her behalf.

Through her long illness Mrs. Dressler was faithfully nursed by Maggie, whose mother formerly did washing for the afflicted woman. After leaving the hospital Mrs. Dressler found a home with the Washington family until her removal to St. Josephi's Home.

After Mrs. Dressler's death Maggie went around among her neighbors and tried to raise enough money to save her from burial in Potter's Field. Owing to the hard times, she was unable to get more than $12.50 of the necessary $50. Hearing that she could dispose of Mrs. Dressler's artificial limbs for $40, Maggie procured them from the sisters at the Home, but this resource was unavailing, and the limbs are now at the Washington house awaiting disposition.

"The Evening World," as told Saturday, learned of Mrs. Dressler's death and buried the poor cripple. Maggie then returned the money collected to the parties who contributed. She was evidently very much attached to Mrs. Dressler, and spoke feelingly of her sad death and base desertion by her husband.

A WOMAN'S STRANGE WAY.

She Objected to Having Her House Decorated Even by an Accident.

"A woman is a good deal like a cat," said the philosopher in the neglige shirt, says the Buffalo Express. "You can never tell which way they're going to jump."

"Wherefore?" asked the man in the alpaca coat.

"I was thinking of an incident that happened over on the West Side a while ago. There is a row of houses on a street up there that are rather close together. One day a man who lives in the middle of the row thought that he would have his house painted, and he straightaway went downtown and hired the painters to do the job.

"His roof was one of those fancy shingle affairs, and he wanted it painted red. When the time came to paint the roof the three men who were working on the job fixed a ladder up on it and took places on the ladder, one at the peak, one in the middle and one at the eave. They were painting along, when suddenly the ladder gave way and they were thrown into the air.

"The man in the middle had gone down to the eaves, and the combined weight of the two tipped the ladder up and threw the man at the peak into the air as if he had been sitting on the business end of a catapult.

"When the man at the peak went up he had a bucket of paint in his hand and he took it with him. The other two men dropped to the ground, but he went sailing right across the back yard of the next house. When he was going down the paint flew out of the bucket and some of it went on the side of the house upon which he struck. The painters yell about thirty feet and were pretty badly hurt.

"The man who had the fall from the peak of the roof lay on the ground terribly injured. His back was broken and his legs were no less. The men were all groaning and quite a crowd gathered around. Somebody sent for a call for an ambulance. Just then the woman who owned the house on which the paint was splashed came out. She ran over to the man who had his back broken, and said: 'Are you much hurt, my poor man?'

"'He's pretty severely injured, ma'am,' said a bystander.

"'Oh, I'm so sorry,' she went on. 'Is there anything I can do for the poor man?' Just then she turned and saw the splotches of red paint on the side of the house. 'Why!' she screamed. 'Look at what the loafer has done! He's splashed paint all over my house! I don't see how men can be so careless.'

"He might have taken a little pains to keep that paint off. Anyway, I'll make his boss pay for it.' And she flounced into the house and left the unfortunate painters groaning on the ground."

HOW WAS ROSENBERG DROWNED?

His Companions Say He Fell Out of the Rowboat.

Lawrence Rosenberg, a saloon-keeper at Ogden and Clay streets, Newark, was drowned in the Newark Bay, off Greenville, Jersey City, last night. The Jersey City police are making an investigation.

Rosenberg and two men left Newark in a rowboat about noon. They rowed down the Passaic to Newark Bay and stopped at Ulrich's Schuetzen Park. The men spent the afternoon in the park. Rosenberg drank beer. They started for home about 7 o'clock. Rosenberg, it is said, was under the influence of liquor and he was quarrelsome.

As they got in the boat Rosenberg was seen to strike one of his companions in the face with his hat. Men employed in the Schuetzen Park watched the boat until it got out of sight.

About an hour after they left the park Rosenberg's companions returned and reported that he fell out and was drowned. Then they went back to the boat and rowed towards Newark.

The police were notified by Proprietor Ulrich. Employees at the park said last night that Rosenberg seemed to have all the money. At the park he paid the bills.
