Alexandria Gazette.

VOL. LXXXII. MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1881 NO. 14.

ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE.

—1881—

The ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE, begun in 1784, is the oldest newspaper in the State, and the only daily published in Northern Virginia. It has survived, with few exceptions, all the public presses in America which saw with it the dawn of the nineteenth century. It lives, too, not in decay, but full of life and vigor, giving all the news, telling the truth without fear, favor or affection, trenching on the privacy of no man's home, but full to the brim with all public information, and giving daily honest judgments of public men and public measures.

It furnishes the news telegrams of the New York Associated Press and of Reuter's European agency, being, with but three exceptions, the only paper between Baltimore and Richmond that is thus connected with the great fountains of the world's news.

With the coming year all the long tried and improved methods of making a standard newspaper will be continued, with such additional facilities as past experience justifies the proprietor in believing will add to the capacity of the Gazette to serve its readers. It expects to render faithful service to the city, the state and the country by a candid criticism of men and events in the interest of the people of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

To meet all the demands upon it, the Gazette will be made a WASHINGTON and RICHMOND NEWSPAPER, as well as an ALEXANDRIA JOURNAL. The Richmond and Washington news of past years has left little to improve, but yet greater effort will be made to insure absolute perfection in these departments.

The city of Alexandria will find as usual its daily history in each evening's issue, and the intelligence of that section of the Commonwealth which nature has bound to Alexandria by the curvature of its mountains or the courses of its rivers as well as that portion linked to us by the iron bands of railways, will be assiduously chronicled.

The Business and Commercial columns of the Gazette will be filled with the earliest and most exact commercial news, edited with such painstaking care as will render an error, where even slight errors are dangerous, impossible.

The Cattle Markets of all the leading points of the world whose rates affect this market will be quoted, and regular statements of the Baltimore, Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria sales of cattle will appear.

The Flour, Grain and Produce movements will be noted daily, and the sales of the Alexandria and neighboring markets given with accuracy and dispatch. The Grocery and other markets will receive constant attention, and the money or stock markets of the country epitomized for its columns, full details being given to all stocks, &c., which find investors in this section of the country.

The advertising columns of the Gazette offer inducements which experience has shown to afford greater returns for a small investment than any other which can be made.

HOLIDAY GOODS.

CHRISTMAS BALLAD AT BRENGLE'S
No. 129 King st.

Mary had a little cake,
Its icing was white as snow;
'Twas fair to see and sweet to taste,
For Brengle makes them so.

She took the cake to school one day;
It was against the rule;
For children all love Brengle's cakes
And take a bite in school.

And so the teacher took the cake
And eat it on the sly;
And after school, with a demure face
She told the child a lie.

She said the mice had eat the cake
And thought it very nice:
That all of them that tasted it
Had turned to candy mice.

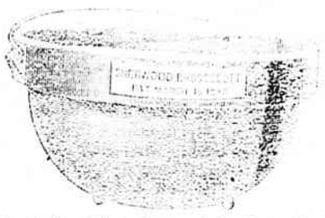
The candy mice the windows show
And tempt the boys to break
Were just the very little mice
That nibbled Mary's cake.

But Mary was not fooled at all.
"Too thin," was all she spake,
The teacher quick to Brengle's skipped
And bought another cake

And Brengle has lots of such Cakes on hand for Christmas. His CHRISTMAS CAKES, Black, Fruit, Pound, Jelly and Fancy, Ornamental and Plain, are sold cheaper than they can be manufactured at home. Also Cream Puffs, Tarts and Pastry, Candies and Taffy of all kinds. Pies a specialty. Fruits, Nuts, Confectioneries, Caromels and Sugared Fruits. He furnishes the best OYSTERS and colors for families and entertainments. dec15

The Common Sense Stew Pan!

THE GREATEST CULINARY INVENTION OF THE AGE.



It is made of fire clay and is the only fire proof vessel made of clay in the market.
It is finely GLAZED inside and out, which is warranted not to scale off or become damaged by heat.
READ THIS—Food of the most acidulous nature can be cooked in them without obtaining any metallic taste or discoloration. They will not scorch or burn as iron and tin pots do; they are made of pure fire clay and the glazing being purely earthen, hence they are more conducive to good health. It is strong and durable and with ordinary care will last an age. Being the lowest priced vessel ever offered, it is within the reach of every one.
Buy one and you will never be without one.

About Benjamin Franklin.

BY HIRAM ORCUTT, A. M.

"Footprints that perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again."

Benjamin Franklin was the fifteenth son of his mother. His father was accustomed to devote one fifteenth of his income to the church. Hence he assigned Benjamin to the ministry. Still, he had no way to educate him, and he was obliged to employ him in cutting wick in his tallow-chandler's shop. But the boy had no genius for the ministry nor the shop, and had he not allended parental management his life would have been a failure. This case shows the folly of attempting to force boys to follow any special art, trade or profession. Each boy must be allowed to settle that question for himself.

Franklin's ancestors were blacksmiths in the village of Eaton, in Northamptonshire, from generation to generation. His mother was the daughter of the old Nantucket poet, Peter Tayler, who rhymed, in his "Looking Glass for the Times," of the fathers and their blacksmith descendents. When the good woman was eighty four years old, she wrote a letter (which is still preserved) to her son Benjamin, the fast rising man of fifty-five in Philadelphia, in which she says:

"I am glad to hear you are so well respected in your town for them to choose you alderman, although I don't know what it means, or what the better you will be of it besides the honor of it. I hope you will carry well, so that you will be liked in all your posts."

We are astonished, as we look down from the lofty eminence which Franklin occupied as a philosopher and statesman, to see how limited were his early advantages. He "learned to write a good hand, but failed entirely in arithmetic." All this before he was ten years old. But he did not rise to eminence without culture. No man ever did. The culture he gained was through solid reading. We have no evidence that he read novels as a habit. A stray volume of Addison's Spectator fell into his hands. He read and reread, and after he had forgotten the language, he reproduced the thoughts in his own language, and for the sake of variety, expressed them in rhyme. Students in the schools and outside will do well to take note of Franklin's habit.

As an apprentice in a printing office, he had but little spare time, but that little was improved. He soon became a contributor to the Courant while yet a "printer's devil," and slipped them by night under the door and awaited anxiously the result. They were accepted and printed, and highly complimented by the editor. Taking advantage of a family quarrel after he had gained his position in the printing office, he ran away from Boston, first to New York and then from there to Philadelphia.

In October, 1723, young Franklin was seen one morning, walking along Market street, poorly clad, fatigued, hungry and almost penniless. He bought three penny loaves of bread, which he shared with a poor mother and her child, and finally found shelter and sleep in a silent meeting of Quakers.

He sought and found employment. He was still a student while in active business. He gained the use of libraries, joined a literary club, and sought the society of the learned. By these means he continued to rise, first to a position as printer, next to be editor and publisher of 'Poor Richard's Almanac,' which appeared annually for a quarter of a century.

At this point our hero began to rise in public estimation, and to be promoted to office—first in his adopted city; second, under the national government; and finally, in foreign courts. From a printer he became a statesman and diplomatist. He gained and held the highest positions in the gift of the people. He became a scholar and philosopher. Indeed he was one of the greatest men of his time.
