ers and Bed Rubbers' Union, L. A. 7,164, Brick Haulers' Union, L. A. 9,268; Cement and Asphalt Layers' Union, L. A. 442, Cornice and Skylight Makers' Union, L. A. 8,001, and Progressive Pavers' Union L. L. A. 10,558.

All along the line of march the sidewalks were thronged with people who applauded the men.

This afternoon the members of the assemblies are holding a celebration in Furry's Central Hall on East Fourteenth street. Dancing and merry-making will continue until a late hour.

AFTER THE PARADE.

Where the Various Organizations Are Enjoying the Day.

The toilers who took part in the big parades had individual plans for the continuation of the celebration of the holiday.

The Central Labor Union's picnic at Greenwald's pavilion, New Dorp, S. I., is the scene of the gathering of an immense throng of the paraders and their families, but there are a myriad of other Labor Day festivals, as well as special sports in all directions.

Local Union No. 151, Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators, accepted an invitation from Local 10 of Brooklyn, and is celebrating the day with that organization in the City of Churches in a parade and a picnic.

The New York Central Labor Federation, instead of its usual parade, is observing the day in a great picnic at Fort Wendell, at One Hundred and Ninty-fourth street and Amsterdam avenue. Forty-five labor organizations, Socialist sections and singing societies are in attendance. There is a variety of sports on the programme at Fort Wendell, including dancing from 2 o'clock this afternoon till everybody is tired out to-night.

Among the Unions most numerously represented at this celebration are the Amalgamated Brass Workers, Ale and Porter Union, No. 1; Journeymen Bakers and Confectioners; United Machinists' Union, No. 2; Cigar-makers' Union, No. 90; Firemen's Union, No. 1; United Upholsterers; United Engine-men; Metal Progressive Union, No. 1; United Coat Operators; Independent Bakers' Union; New York Framers' Union, Bookbinders' Advance Association; Carpenters' Union, No. 43; Machine Wood-Workers' Union, No. 38, Laborers' Union, No. 9, and the International Cigar-Makers' Union.

The Committee of Arrangements is composed of George H. McVey, Ernest Bohm, A. Waldinger, George Herasics, C. Opperman, M. O'Brien and J. Rosenzohn. Reception Committee, A. Daniel, J. Lechy, E. Kintlein, L. Finger, S. Weiss, J. Henkler, J. Davidson, S. Greenfield, S. Swendsen, C. Arnault and C. Winter.

Prof. Daniel De Leon was down for an address, in which he was expected to relate some of his experiences during the trip to Zurich, Switzerland, where he attended the International Labor Congress as a delegate of the Socialists in the United States.

District Assembly 49, K. of L., has a grand seaside festival at Feltman's Ocean Pavilion, Coney Island, where the thousands composing the several assemblies went at an early hour.

The members of the Operative Painters' Society are assembled at their Labor Day celebration in Washington Park, Sixty-ninth street and Eastern Boulevard.

The Furriers' Union went to Urbach's Morrisania Park, One Hundred and Seventieth street and Third avenue, where its members are enjoying themselves with target shooting, prize bowling and all kinds of popular games for ladies and children.

The Brooklyn Machinists' Unions have their Labor Day picnic at Hemeyer's Park, in Ridgewood, L. I.

The Yorkville Branch of the Workmen's General Benefit Union took a charge by advertised excursion to Fredgang's Park, in College Point, L. I.

The Winfield Branch of the Workmen's General Benefit Union is celebrating Labor Day at Arnold's Schweizer Park, in Winfield, L. I. Athletic sports and games are being indulged in.

Building Constructors' Assembly, No. 83, picnicked at Brommer's Union Park.

Brewers' Union No. 2, Newark, N. J., holds its Labor Day picnic and summer-night's festival with the Socialist Section of Newark, at Oertel's Phœnix Park.

District Assembly No. 19, Knights of Labor, is holding a picnic and games at Caledonian Park, Baldwin avenue, Jersey City.

At Salzer's Harlem River Park the Salzer colony is continuing its Swiss National festival, which began yesterday. There were games, a Volk's festival, and bowling and shooting contests for prizes on the grounds. Chief Forsmann, Natalie Spies and the Swiss Turners did stunts of all sorts for the afternoon, and dancing and the awards of prizes for this evening.

The Swiss singing societies gave five vocal selections during the day, and Conscript's Postmaster's Regimental Band furnished the music for the revellers.

Alfred de Claparede, Swiss Minister to the United States, gave prizes for target shooting.

An interesting competition will occur from 6.30 to 7.30 this evening, when prizes will be awarded in the ballroom for Swiss National costumes, worn by men, women, boys or girls. A resplendent parade is anticipated when the competitors promenade at 8.30 o'clock.

QUIET AMONG THE REDS.

No Disposition to Make Trouble on the East Side To-Day.

Everything was quiet on the east side to-day. There seemed to be no disposition on the part of those who were most conspicuous during the recent trouble there to make any demonstration. The only crowds to be seen were around the places where free food was distributed.

At the Arbeiter-Zeitung building, 9 Delancey street, the Hebrew Trades Union began giving out food at an early hour.

The capmakers will have a big bunch at Golden Rule Hall this afternoon at a o'clock.

The Pike street Anarchistic headquarters was closed up tight all day.

BROOKLYN'S CELEBRATION.

Parade of 15,000 Men Under Grand Marshal John J. Cannon.

Fifteen thousand workingmen turned out in Brooklyn this morning to celebrate labor's great holiday. It was not a parade of the unemployed, but a procession of prosperous union workmen, of brawn and brain.

Led by a mounted police escort, under Sergt. Cole, the column assembled at Lafayette avenue and Cumberland street, and the word to march was given by Grand Marshal John J. Cannon shortly after 10.30 o'clock.

The column marched in the following order:

Laborers' Protective Union of Long Island. Aide-in-chief, William C. Rosencranz. Typographical Union No. 98. Assistant Marshals, Edward Gallagher, Horse-Shoers' Union No. 7; Anthony Duffy, Boiler-Makers and Iron Ship Builders' Branch No. 56; Edward Fielding, Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators No. 10.

First Division, Charles Reuther, Marshal. Horse-shoers' Union No. 7; Boiler Makers and Iron Ship Builders' Branch M.

Second Division, Stephen J. Connolly, Marshal. Typographical Union No. 98, Laborers' Protective Unions, Division No. 1, Division No. 2, Division No. 3.

Third Division, John Crawford, Marshal. Laborers' Protective Union, Division No. 4, Division No. 5, Division No. 6 and Division No. 8.

Fourth Division, P. D. Monahan, Marshal. Plumbers' Laborers, Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators No. 10. Fifth Division, Joseph Lahar, Marshal. Cigar-Makers' No. 132, Clothing Cutters' Union.

The route of the parade was as follows: From Lafayette avenue to Bushwick, to Harmon street, to Myrtle avenue, to Ridgewood, to Ridgewood Hall, Myrtle Opera House. Many men are holding a picnic this afternoon.

Of the 1,500 working men to take part in the demonstration the Central Labor Federation contributed 600, composed of unions in the Eastern district.

The parade terminated in the Federation parade assembled at the Labor Lyceum, at Myrtle avenue and Myrtle street, under the leadership of Grand Marshal Max Forker.

At 9 o'clock they were prepared to start, and the word was given.

The march was through Humboldt street to Stagg street, to Bagg street, to Johnson street, to Broadway, to Throop avenue, to Floyd street, to Broadway, to Melrose street, to Central avenue, to De Kalb avenue, to Knickerbocker avenue, to Sand Lots, to Willoughby avenue, and back to the Labor Lyceum, where they dispersed.

NEWARK READY FOR TROUBLE.

A Party of Disturbers from New York Was Expected.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 4.—The police of this city took extra precautions to prevent trouble at to-day's labor parade, as it was reported that a party of Russians from New York had decided to come to Newark to make trouble.

Large lines of policemen were on duty along the line of march, while a large number of reserves were kept at the stationhouses for an emergency. Their services, however, were not required, as the parade was orderly.

It was after noon before the members of the labor organizations to the number of 1,500 started in line and began the march through the principal streets to Caledonian Park.

George L. Byron, Secretary of Essex Trades Council, acted as Grand Marshal. Typographical Union 103 paraded for the first time in a number of years. At Caledonian Park there were speeches, dancing and other festivities.

CONEY ISLAND'S BIG CROWD.

It Is the Last Day of the Regular Season.

CONEY ISLAND, Sept. 4.—Labor Day is looked upon as the last day of the regular season. The island is decorated profusely in honor of the day, and a large number of visitors are here. There was no parade.

At Brighton Beach the managers are already beginning to pack up. The hotel will close to-morrow night.

At the Manhattan Beach and Oriental hotels many prominent people were seen this afternoon. There was one of the largest crowds of the season there.

Altogether there are about 100,000 visitors on the island to-day.

Tarrytown's Big Parade.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 4.—A big labor parade took place in this village to-day. Labor organizations from nearly every town in Westchester county participated and 19,000 men were in line. Charles McMichael acted as Grand Marshal.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS CHAIR.

Watchman Chase Dies of Heart Disease While on Duty.

Edward P. Chase, a watchman and timekeeper employed by the Brush Electric-Light Company at 220 Elizabeth street, was found dead at his post of duty early this morning.

The police of the Elizabeth street station were notified, and about 2 o'clock Deputy Coroner Conway viewed the body and decided that Chase's death was due to heart disease. The body was removed by an undertaker at 82 Stanton street.

Chase was married, and his wife, who is sickly, is in Maine. He boarded at 225 Fifth street, with J. S. Powers, and had been there for several years. An effort will be made to locate his relatives.

DRUNK AND ARMED.

A Jerseyman Creates a Reign of Terror on Sixth Avenue.

Richard Burke, a tall, young Irishman, reached town from Westfall, N. J., this morning very drunk. He had two loaded pistols in his possession, with which he menaced people along Sixth avenue in the vicinity of Fourteenth street.

He chased several women, and when Policeman Barnes, of the Ninetieth precinct, attempted him Burke said he had only been joking, and threw his pistols on the sidewalk.

He was handcuffed and taken to Jefferson Market, where Justice Koch committed him to the island for a month for intoxication and held him in $500 bail for trial for carrying concealed weapons.

THE LUCANIA IS A FLYER.

Making an Average of Twenty-one Knots on the Way from Queenstown.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 4.—Capt. Watt, of the Cunard steamship Pavonia, which sailed from Boston on Aug. 26 and arrived here today, reports that he met the steamship Lucania, the new sister ship of the Ice Quarter Campania, at 10 o'clock last evening.

The Lucania was then 190 miles west of Fastnet Light, and therefore had made an average speed of twenty-one knots an hour since leaving Queenstown.

21 Years of Pain

"I suffered with eczema on my right shoulder, in such terrible agony at times that I could not walk about the house. I finally took Hood's Sarsaparilla. The moment I took it I felt better, and I have taken it ever since. I am now completely well and feel like a new woman." Mrs. Joseph Bergen, Book Binder, Hood St., Lowell, Mass. Mrs. Bergen's daughter, Miss Jessie Bergen, also takes Hood's Sarsaparilla.

LABOR DAY BREAD.

The Holiday Observed by a Larger Crowd of Applicants.

It Flooded "The World's" Bureau at an Early Hour.

Sad Story of an Aged Woman's Fight for Existence.

Charity never takes a holiday.

"The World's" Free Bread Fund for Labor Day with wide open doors, and poverty was almost made merry.

In honor of the day a few changes were made in the regular programme of exercise.

The first bread wagon arrived at 147 Allen street an hour ahead of schedule time, but it was a whole hour behind want. At 7 o'clock men, women and children were waiting for their daily bread. They stood in little knots and groups; they sat along the curbstone opposite the station or wearily leaned against "L" road pillars, fences or building walls and patiently, silently waited.

At 8 o'clock, when the first load of fresh bread drew up to the station, the cobblestones disappeared, the pavement went out of sight and the street swarmed with humanity in all shades of distress and wretchedness.

There were 1,750 loaves, but hungry in the wagon. It took ten men about ten minutes to unload them. A police officer and a "World" guard had as much as they could do to keep a passage open across the sidewalk wide enough for them to work in.

It was a fierce ten minutes for distribution was formed. The entire force pushed the crowd. It was literally rush! through the station.

There was no time to waste. The street was alive with people and rattling with baskets. Neither season nor pedigree could get in out of the block. Anybody who had a basket was in the race, and thousands had a basket.

Poor, old grannies, who were never come and wanted to ride, came to every and took a little bad to be hustled off with a basket. "That's all right, honey! Bless you, honey, you are an angel, a angel! You can. Hop along. She's waiting."

By keeping the pushing crowd off was able to distribute the loaves for a few minutes. Then came another wagon with 1,250 loaves, and the line had to be cleared off and the crowd forced back until it was a mile.

And so it went, first a load and then a line, until 10 o'clock, when the bakers began to arrive, and the way had to be cleared to empty them.

At noon there was a pile of bread on the counter that reached to the ceiling and that covered the stove-pipe hole.

There were 8,000 loaves in the Labor Day supply altogether, but the crowd looked 80,000 strong. As usual, the station was kept open until 4 o'clock, and every applicant got some, if not, all of the bread asked for.

A better way to celebrate a holiday could not be suggested. One had only to spend five minutes in Allen street to realize this.

The first Labor Day loaf of bread was given to an aged woman past seventy-five. She wore a quilted bonnet with a frilled cap inside, and she was so feeble that she could scarcely walk.

All her life she had been a laboring woman, she said. She had outlived others and she had buried her children, and now she is alone, friendless, penniless, healthless and too sick to earn enough to live on.

She sleeps in a garret hallway in an old house in Eldridge street for which lodgings she pays 25 cents a week, and for which she climbs the stairs. Her face had almost the color and character of Spanish leather, such as artists design for fine upholstery work.

She was allowed to help herself. She took three loaves of the best bread, enough to last her a week, and went away thinking her poor old eyes with tearless tears.

Behind her came ten younger women, between sixty and seventy years of age. Then came a little snuff-colored creature, possibly thirty years old, who had a white complexion of bloom crushed into her life. She carried a skeleton baby in her arms that she said was "as good."

After the aged women a host of little children rushed into the station. Two men who followed were sad assembly. Some of them went away with Gladstone-bedecked excursions to their threadbare coattails.

It was too bad to have to hurry those poor, self-respecting people. Many of them carried a crushed spirit in every one carried a crushed spirit. Some of them went away with Gladstone-bedecked excursions to their threadbare coattails.

It was too bad to have to hurry those poor, self-respecting people. Many of them carried a crushed spirit in every one carried a crushed spirit. Some of them went away with Gladstone-bedecked excursions to their threadbare coattails.

Labor Day is not for old age or helpless childhood, and it is meet and just that they be fed and comforted. It is better on the day Mr. Cleveland delivered about sixty pounds of meat to make broth or soup for the sick poor. All that meat cost was $5. A very good management, a little go a long way.

"The World's" Free Bread Fund invites the contribution of the well-to-do and wealthy. NELL NELSON.

WORK FOR CHICAGO'S IDLE MEN.

Eight Hundred to Be Given Employment on a Canal.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Before the week is over at least 800 of Chicago's unemployed will be earning a living on the drainage canal. Yesterday afternoon at the booths on the lake front, bids and applications for work on the canal were received.

After the first 800 are sent down on Wednesday a selection will be made of 100 more to go the following day, and other on each succeeding day of the week until 800 more are at work.

WAS SMITH ONE OF THE GANG?

Saloon-Keeper Walsh, Who Accuses Him, Is Also a Prisoner.

James Smith, eighteen years old, of 20 East One Hundred and First street, was held in the Harlem Police Court to-day by Justice Ryan on the charge of burglary preferred by Patrick Walsh, a saloon-keeper, of 1872 Second avenue, of being one of a gang which attempted to rob his saloon Saturday night.

Walsh charged a number of northern Sandy hook to do burglary. The complaint was made by Detectives Flynn and Ryan, who arrested Smith and Walsh, who had had his head broken by a bottle in the hands of a burglar, was taken to Bellevue Hospital. Walsh was held and Smith was allowed to continue his work day morning.

Local News in Brief.

Harry Leonard, of 121 Greenwich street, got his pocket picked at Essex Market Police Court to-day. He had his wife and another witness.

Henry Fojacek, who stole $70 worth of jewelry, besides a watch, from Charles Zimmerman, of 75 Monroe street, was held for trial at Essex Market Court today.

Bernard Rothmanstein, of 176 Monroe street, and Henry Kennedy, of 220 Monroe street, were held for trial at Essex Market Court today for selling impure milk.

John Brown, a carpenter, of 142 Bowery, was held for trial at Essex Market Court today. Brown is accused of robbing Louis Simonson, cigar stand, at 116 Station street, of $24 worth of cigars.

Charles Weaver, of 310 East Ninth street, was held for trial by Justice Ryan, at Essex Market Court, today, on a charge of robbery. Weaver asked the time of Benjamin Alpeiter, of Hoboken, in Elbridge street yesterday. He then snatched Alpeiter's watch.

LETTERS FROM THE POPE.

One Coming to Satolli and One to Cardinal Gibbons.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Rome correspondent of the Central News telegraphs that the Pope has written to Mgr. Satolli, Papal Delegate to the United States, and Cardinal Gibbons important confidential letters, with which Father Frederick Rooker, the rector of the American College in Rome, started on Friday for America.

Father Rooker will deliver these letters personally to the Cardinal and Apostolic Delegate.

It is understood, says the correspondent, that these letters are the outcome of reports which have reached the Pope concerning alleged opposition in New York to Mgr. Satolli.

THE FRENCH ELECTIONS.

513 Republicans to 68 Conservatives in the Next Chamber.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Pall Mall Gazette prints this 2 o'clock from Paris concerning the total results of the first and second ballots:

"The final results in 571 constituencies are known; the remaining constituencies (seven in number) are colonial, and the ballotages are between opposing Republicans.

"The Chamber virtually consists of 68 Conservatives and 513 Republicans of all shades, embracing 90 Socialists and 25 Conservateurs 'Ralliés.'"

Oscar Hopes to Strengthen the Bonds Between Norway and Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 4.—In opening the State telephone between this city and Christiana on Saturday King Oscar said he hoped to counteract the separatist movement in Norway, and to strengthen the union between Norway and Sweden. The existence of this movement, he added, was the greatest affliction of his reign.

BOY DYING IN AN OUTHOUSE.

Little Robert Kane Taken from His Dissipated Mother.

The janitor of the flat, 146 East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, heard moans in an outhouse in the rear yard early this morning. He tried to enter the place and failed.

Then he called Policeman Beckwell, of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station, who rapped on the door, and succeeded in gaining admittance.

Inside he found Margaret Kane and her four-year-old son Robert Emerson Kane. The boy was dying, the result of exposure and neglect.

The woman and the boy were taken to the station and locked up. This morning Justice Tolman in the Harlem Police Court sent the woman to the Island for three months. The child was taken to the Harlem Hospital, and it is not thought he will live.

Two years ago Mrs. Kane was committed to the island and the boy Robert went to an orphan institution. Later she reformed, and was earning good wages as a cook and the boy was returned to her. She soon went back to her old ways.
