ABBEY'S DRAMATIC PLANS.

Many Interesting Events Beginning with Italian Opera.

"Shore Acres" May Move to the Academy of Music.

Henry E. Abbey's enterprises are now so numerous and so eminently important that a brief summary of his season's engagements will not be out of place at the present time. The opening of the new theatre at Thirty-eighth street and Broadway by the Irving-Terry company Wednesday night is but one item of a long and immensely interesting list. At the head of the list is the season of Italian opera, beginning at the Metropolitan Opera-House Nov. 27. This season will cover a period of thirteen weeks and will include thirty-nine night and thirteen matinee performances. On Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, Mr. Abbey—and his associates, Messrs. Schoeffel and Grau—will present at the Metropolitan Opera-House Imre Kiralfy's spectacle, "America," that ran in Chicago during the entire Fair period. On Monday evening, Jan. 1, 1894, Coquelin and Mme. Jane Hading and their French company will begin a season at Abbey's theatre, and later M. Mounet-Sully, who has never yet been seen in America, will make his bow under the parental wings of Messrs. Abbey, Schoeffel and Grau. They find time abroad to direct the tour of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, who for years has been their star, and in Boston there is the Tremont Theatre, for which they are responsible. Yet there is no trio in this city so diffident, so unassuming and so absolutely lacking in swelled-headedness as Messrs. Abbey, Schoeffel and Grau.

There is a probability that "Shore Acres," now at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, will go to the Academy of Music after the holidays. Mr. Gilmore has been negotiating with the Herne management during the past week. It was at the Academy that the "Old Homestead" made its fortune, and wiseacres say that "Shore Acres" should even make a larger one. The pretty pastoral play can scarcely hope to shine on Broadway, where many people lounge into a theatre about 9 o'clock, and where the drawing-room drama and the variety show are the best drawing cards.

Richard Mansfield left by the limited yesterday for Chicago, where he appears as Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice" to-night. He took with him thirty-eight people, but left the fairy ballet at liberty to seek engagements in burlesque or comic opera. There were some negotiations last week with a view to Mansfield's occupancy of Daly's Theatre. Sol Smith Russell was willing to step out for a consideration of $800, but Mr. Dorney also wanted a guarantee of $2,500, and asked Mansfield to pay for the orchestra and advertising. Mansfield, with a fine touch of cynical humor, sent back word that he didn't think they needed him to play Shylock at Daly's.

Edward E. Rice is on the alert for good topical songs for "1492," but not one out of every hundred submitted has any merit. Nearly all harp on the well-thumbed strings of the yacht race, baseball and the Silver bill. Some are stupid, some are commonplace, and most of them are vulgar. And if there is any one thing that Rice is a stickler for it is clean and wholesome fun for his patrons. Topical songs are worth anywhere from $5 to $50, but a very fair average article can be had for $10.

Jennie Yeamans has cause for a good, round, vigorous protest. She is being billed in "Jane" this week, with pictures of Josephine Bennett, a most mistaken piece of economy on the part of her manager. Miss Yeamans is such a clever little actress that she will speedily obliterate the memory of Miss Bennett in the farcical "Jane." There is no reason why she should be handicapped by these lithographs, even if they do happen to be in stock.

Henry Irving has commissioned Dr. A. C. Mackenzie, of London, to compose music for Comyns Carr's play, on the subject of King Arthur. Sir Launcelot and Queen Guinevere. Irving intends to produce this play as soon as he gets back to London.

* * *

When Francis Wilson plays his next engagement in New York it will not be at the Broadway Theatre. The Wilson management and the Broadway Theatre management have clashed. In other words, there have been a few "difficulties," and, although these difficulties have not ruptured the amicabilities, Wilson will transfer his affections to Abbey's new theatre—a splendid house for comic opera, by the bye.

* * *

The Kendals, who will not play in San Francisco this season, are, nevertheless, being very much discussed on the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Kendal's "remarks" reached there in due course. The chronicler remarks: "There have been few episodes in the history of the drama lately more curious than what might be called the downfall of Mrs. Kendal. When she first appeared in New York she was much praised, and petted and the admiration of the press and society seemed to be concentrated upon her. Now, when they see her in the role of one of the most characteless of bad women in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," abuse surges around her, and threatens to engulf her. Now, it is Mr. Pinero who should be hauled over the coals, and not Mrs. Kendal."

The star dressing-room at Daly's Theatre is closed, and nobody is allowed to see the gorgeous apartment in which Ada Rehan prepares herself for the stage. They say that the key of this dressing-room is on the other side of the Atlantic. At any rate, no member of any company that may appear at Daly's Theatre during the manager's absence will get the Rehan room.

* * *

Sol Smith Russell is rehearsing Clyde Fitch's play, "April Weather," and will shortly present it at Daly's Theatre. The company has been strengthened by the engagement of Eleanor Carey.

* * *

Clyde Fitch has published in sumptuous form the play of "Pamela's Prodigy," which was produced at the Court Theatre, London, in October, 1891, by Mrs. John Wood and her company. The volume is superbly illustrated by Virginia Gerson, and Mr. Fitch has dedicated it to Elizabeth Marbury. The play is light, exceedingly chatty, and full of opportunities for pleasing effects of scenery and costume. It seems to be somewhat lacking in backbone, but worse comedies have been seen and accepted in this city. Mr. Fitch has so many irons in the fire that he will find no time to regret the future of "Pamela's Prodigy." That he does not regret it seems evident by its publication.

Lola Yberri and Delmore will introduce new dances at the Eden Musee to-night. Yberri's contribution will be a variation of the pavan dances, and Delmore will have a new "wrinkle" in the way of serpentine dancing.

SAYS HE HAD A VERBAL LEASE.

Now Nevins Sues President Rhoades Because He Had to Move.

Patrick Nevins, a saloon-keeper, of Bethune and Washington streets, has, through his lawyer, Louis Lowenstein, of the Pulitzer Building, brought a suit for damages against John Harsen Rhoades, president of the Greenwich Savings Bank.

The claim, although for only $49, presents several novel features.

Nevins, who rented the house 57 Bethune street from Rhoades, claims that he had a verbal agreement with the bank president to get a renewal of the lease. On the strength of that agreement he papered the rooms and made other improvements.

To his surprise on the morning before his lease expired T. G. Pattrson, a lumber dealer, of 456 West street, called upon him and said he had purchased the Bethune street house. He added that if Nevins wanted to remain he would let him have the place, but at a much higher rent. Nevins moved out and now sues for the extra expense he was put to.

The case will come up before Judge Moore in the Third District Court on Thursday.

BIG LABOR COMBINE PROPOSED.

Effort Made in Pittsburg to Assist Weak Organizations.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 6.—The labor organizations of this county, with several National organizations whose headquarters are in Pittsburg, are arranging a gigantic combination to assist organizations which have suffered heavy reverses in the past year or two.

One of the leading objects is to put the Amalgamated Association on its former footing, and other organizations interested are those of the National Window-Glass Workers' Association, Flint and Green Glass Workers, Coal Miners, Carpenters and Knights of Labor.

"BIG FOUR" STRIKE IS OFF.

A Compromise Arranged After a Long Discussion.

(By Associated Press.)

CAIRO, Ill., Nov. 6.—The Big Four strike is off. A conference was held between the Big Four officials and a committee of strikers of Mount Carmel and Cairo, which lasted several hours, and the matter was compromised. The yardmaster was restored to his place, but accepted the reduction of $10 per month.

The engineers were restored and given a raise, but not to the amount of their former salary.

DIRECTUM AND ALIX TO RACE.

They Will Trot at Mystic Park on Nov. 15.

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—A despatch to The Inter-Ocean from Boston says the trotting match race between Directum and Alix has been definitely arranged for Nov. 15.

It will be best three heats in five over the Mystic Park track, the owners of Directum to put up $5,000 against $4,000 on Alix.

NOVEL START IN LIFE.

Child Born in the Street on the West Side of Town.

Clara Culum, twenty-seven years old, homeless, while at the corner of Forty-seventh street and Ninth avenue, at 1.15 this morning gave birth to a male child.

She had with her another child, seventeen months old. Mother and child were taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Coming Events.

The Hallowe'en Club will give an entertainment and reception for the benefit of All Saints' Church at Lexington Avenue Opera-House, Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue, next Friday evening.

Wordsworth Literary and Social Circle has an entertainment and ball at Terrace Garden this evening.

NEURALGIC headaches promptly cured by BROMO-SELTZER—trial bottle 10 cts.

MOTHERS will find MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP the best remedy for their children. 25c.

IN THE WORLD OF LABOR.

Next Sunday all vacancies on committees of the Central Labor Union will be filled.

Barbers' Union No. 51 has elected these officers: J. H. Chester, President; H. P. Boer, Recording Secretary; H. Perry, Financial Secretary.

The Cloth Hat and Cap Makers' Union has given $100 to the campaign fund of the Socialist Labor party.

The proprietors of Liberty Hall and Columbia Hall, located on the east side, have signed the contract of the Bartenders' Union.

J. W. Hodges is the newly elected Treasurer of L. U. 141, of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators, and Charles Torrien was added to the Board of Trustees.

Branch 1 of the Workmen's General Benefit Union gained eighteen new members last month. The receipts were $1,870, and the expenditures for benefits amounted to $638.25.

United Machinists' Union No. 2 will elect a delegate this evening to the Convention of the International Machinists' Union which is to take place in Chicago.

Millwrights and Millers' Union No. 746 will on Nov. 19 discuss the question what to do in regard to its unemployed members whose number is not yet decreasing.

William Schimmel and George Schall have been admitted as delegates to the Miscellaneous Section of the Central Labor Union, from Bartenders' Union No. 1, L. U. No. 2.

Owing to the general depression in their trade the United Brewery Workers have definitely postponed their National Convention, which was to have been held in Rochester, N. Y., next week.

Waiters' Local Alliance No. 11, whose members are colored men, has decided that its members will not endeavor to work with waiters not represented in the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' National Alliance.

The New York Framers' Union resolved yesterday to stand by the Cornice and Skylight Makers' Union in the strikes in several jobs ordered by the Tin and Sheet Iron Workers' Union.

A special meeting of the Architectural Workers' Union has been called for next Wednesday evening to discuss the question of introducing working cards, also to change the day of meeting.

Most of the unions whose regular meetings occur tomorrow evening have adjourned over to next week on account of the election. The Miscellaneous Section of the C. L. U. will also meet next week.

Waiters' Union No. 1 will be notified by the Secretary of the Central Labor Federation that one of its delegates will be suspended unless he withdraws certain statements made by him.

The Pentagon Association, composed of delegates of Knights of Labor assemblies in Kings County, will hold a special meeting on Monday, Nov. 13, 8 P. M., to transact important business in connection with the publication of their official organ, The Pentagon.

Independence Hall, Broad and Vine streets, Philadelphia, has been selected for the annual meeting of the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor, which will be called to order by General Master Workman Powderly on Tuesday, Nov. 14, 10 A. M.

Textile Workers' Union No. 2 has extended the term of its sick benefit from three to six months, and the unemployed members had their dues remitted until they again find employment. The Union also contributes $2.50 towards the price of every ton of coal bought by any of the unemployed members.

The Executive Board of the Architectural Iron-Workers' Union has instructed Delegate Westenberger to protest against the report of a special committee which stated that Alexander Schmal, who lost his life through an accident while at work, had by his own negligence partly caused that accident.

The trustees of the Central Labor Union were instructed yesterday to take legal steps against ex-Secretary Mortimer O'Connell, who, it is alleged, has retained a copying apparatus and other property of the C. L. U. and refuses to give it up, stating that it belongs to him individually.

A resolution has been adopted by the United Pavers and Rammers and Bridge and Curb-Setters' Unions of New York, Brooklyn and vicinity declaring that men who know little or nothing about the laying of street pavements are inspectors of street paving, and demanding that in making such appointments the authorities should recognize organized labor.

The organizations composing the United Trades Unions, representing 15,000 men, with Hasenclever and other opponents of the United Hebrew Trades Unions were admitted to the Central Labor Union yesterday, provided they abide by the rules and regulations of the C. L. U. and its trade and subsidiary unions.

New delegates from the Surgical Instrument Makers and Brooklyn House-Painters' Unions were admitted to the Socialist Labor Federation yesterday. The surgical instrument makers reported that more than one-half of their members are out of employment and that those who are still working receive wages hardly sufficient to save them from starvation.

There is more trouble ahead for the building trades unions on the Metropolitan Opera-House, as Contractor J. L. Boyer, of Union Square, is employing non-union electrical workers on that job, and Electrical Workers' Union No. 3 has taken steps to have a strike ordered unless Mr. Boyer hires men who are organized men or induces them to join the organization.

Beer-Drivers' Union No. 1 received yesterday that in the future members of committees on duty on Long Island, Staten Island or New Jersey will be paid $1 for expenses. While in this city only 75 cents will be paid. The annual contract with the Bavarian Star Brewery was informally and a special committee was appointed to confer with the proprietor of Loewer's Brewery.

The Workingwomen's Society sent a communication to the Central Labor Union yesterday stating that State Senators Brown, Cantor, Fitzpatrick, McMahon, Parker, Plunkitt and Walker were responsible for the defeat of the bill regulating women's work in stores and commercial houses.

The General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor requests Assemblies and Districts away from the following places where organized labor is unfairly treated: Leadville, Colo.; Springfield, Ill.; Osage County, Kan.; Cedar Falls, Ia.; Williamsburg, Ky.; Louisville, Ky.; Jellico, Tenn.; Black Hills, South Dakota; Beaver County, Pa.; Washington County, S. D.; Helena, Mont.; Brewton, Ala.; Bevier, Mo.; Newcomb, Tenn.; Bevier, Ky.; Galveston, Tex.; Biddeford, Me.; and Coal Creek, Tenn.

The Arbitration Committee of the Central Labor Union reported yesterday that Manager Keith absolutely refuses to have the employees of the Union Square Theatre unionized. It was thereupon resolved that the Central Labor Union boycott the Theatre, but also the other theatrical enterprises in which Mr. Keith is interested in Philadelphia, Boston and other cities, whose central bodies will be required to take these steps if asked to do so. The representatives of Cigar Packers' Union No. 251 stated at yesterday's meeting of the Central Labor Federation that his organization joined the Federation because the International Cigar-Makers' Union acted against the interests of the trade and of organized labor, as proposed by the delegates of a majority of the cigar-makers' unions in this city. Cigar Packers' Union No. 251 has at present over 500 men in good standing, of whom, according to the statement of the delegate, not one is interested in party politics.

Delegate James J. Daly stated at yesterday's meeting of the Central Labor Federation, while discussing some changes in the constitution of the Building Trades Section, that some papers had reported him as saying that the Board of Walking Delegates had usurped the functions of the C. L. U. He wished to emphatically state that the Board had "absorbed" the functions of the Section. The discussion relating to these changes took up some time yesterday, and it was finally resolved to request the affiliated unions to take a general vote upon the amendments, which are principally intended to give stability to the sections and the finances of the central body.

SPORTING NEWS AND GOSSIP.

Brady Says Corbett and Jackson Are Sure to Meet in the Ring.

Hare and Hounds Chase on Travers Island To-Morrow.

"Whether Corbett or Mitchell ever meet or not," said Manager Brady, "Jackson and Corbett will surely come together in the ring next June. We (Corbett and Brady) expect to sail for England about the first of April. The National Sporting Club, of London, has informed me that it will give as large a purse as any other club, and I expect the contest will be decided there. Corbett will put in the time between his match with Mitchell and our departure for England on the road."

The latest development in the Corbett-Mitchell matter is the signing of the articles to fight before the Olympic Club in New Orleans, Dec. 18. There isn't any overweening confidence on either side that the contest can be pulled off in New Orleans. Gov. Foster, of Louisiana, after learning what had taken place here yesterday, said he would do all in his power to prevent the fight. In the original articles sent by the Olympic Club nothing was said about the Club making provisions to protect the principals in case of interference by the authorities. So, when Brady drew up the new articles, signed by Corbett and Mitchell, he inserted this clause:

The Olympic Club hereby guarantees both principals in this contest absolute protection, before and after the contest, in regard to all and any interference on the part of city or State authorities, and to pay all expenses that said principals may be forced to incur to free themselves from any interference on the part of Louisiana authorities, city or State.

Another change which was made was to put in the clause requiring the Olympic Club to deposit two certified checks of $2,500 each, payable to Corbett and Mitchell, to cover training expenses and transportation. In the Olympic's articles a heavy black ink line was drawn.

"I am not sure that the Olympic Club will agree to this guarantee," said Corbett's manager. "As far as Corbett and I are concerned, however, we will agree to fight without such a guarantee. Mitchell wanted a guarantee, so this clause was inserted. The Olympic Club articles, you will see, are not signed by any representative of the Club, so they are not worth anything."

"Do you really think this fight will ever take place?" Brady was asked.

"I do. It is bound to take place somewhere."

The Harvard football team made a favorable impression in this city, despite the fact that the weather conditions were against it, as it precluded the possibility of the team showing its full strength. Harvard's strongest point was its defensive playing. The breaking through was a bit the best seen in and about New York this year. It was sharp and certain. Time after time the line men were fairly knocked out of the Cornell fullback before he could get in position for punting.

True, the ball was hard to hold, but they were there as soon as it was passed. The offensive work of the Crimson was not so good, making allowances, too, for the slippery field. Good interference, of course, was out of the question, but the mud and water were hardly an excuse for the Harvard line not holding the Cornell rushers any better than it did. The latter were on top of Brewer at nearly every punt, and the latter wasn't any dryer where they were than where the Harvard men stood. The Harvard backs hit the line hard the few times they were sent against it.

Brewer, the fullback, is a star. Had the ground been dry and his interferers been able to keep their feet while running, he would have made twice as many touchdowns. Lewis, at centre, is probably without an equal at that point. He follows the ball remarkably well for a man in that position. Newell's following of the ball was also something very fine. If Acton, the left guard, could be uncalled for slugging and watch the ball better, he would improve. While he is busy hitting somebody, an alert man opposite will get by him. The holding in the line of Mackie, the other guard, was important and frequent. He would throw his arms around the neck of the charging guard and nearly trottle him. He is a splendid guard, however, and there won't be many jams between him and Lewis.

Arrangements have been made for a hare and hound chase at Travers Island Election Day. H. E. Billings, jr., and F. M. Hartshorne will start from the club-house with the trail hares at 3 P. M. Fifteen minutes later the hounds will follow, and under the guidance of Mortimer Bishop, Master of the Hounds, it is expected they will soon be hot upon the trail. After a spin of about five miles over the country in the vicinity of the island the runners will sit down to a repast.

The management of the broadsword tournament to be held at Madison Square Garden Thanksgiving week says it will furnish the most exciting sport ever seen in this city. "Why, a boxing match or a football game is not in the same class with a broadsword fight," said one man. "Wait until you see Bryan O'Lynn, the New Haven crack, and Duncan Ross come together, and the sparks will fly. The spectators will be on their feet with excitement.

"In order to guard against such a thing as two contestants taking the names of those competing will be shaken up in a hat and they will draw, so no man will know who his antagonist is until just before they meet. There will be four contests each night, of thirty minutes each. After the expenses are deducted from the gate receipts 50 per cent. of what's left will be divided among the winners, the first man to get 40 per cent., the second 25 per cent., and so on."

The following comes from Erie, Pa., this morning:

Mike McCormick, lightweight champion pugilist of Erie County, knocked out Joe Kane of this city in a prize fight which took place over the New York line near here at 6 o'clock this morning. A deputy sheriff of Chautauqua County and a constable of the township in which the fight occurred raided the ring, but the crowd scared them off and refused to let them get to the ring. Walkable accounts say that McCormick was able to be in bad shape, but Kane has the worst of it.

In the articles of agreement signed by Slosson, Schaefer and Ives for their billiard tourney in this city Dec. 11-18, nothing is said as to whether the money shall be divided for the chiefest or greatest average at a finish in case of a tie. This was an oversight which will have to be settled before the tournament begins. Slosson wants it to a finish, and the others will probably be of the same mind.

OLD LOVE AWAKENED.

A Broken Engagement Which Was Repaired in After Years.

Tom Barclay and Elizabeth Murray never understood each other very well, and yet they had been engaged for a year. They had known each other long before the engagement, too, but although a man quite seldom understands a woman, Tom was even more so in this respect than most men, and Elizabeth, more difficult than most women for any man to comprehend, unreasoning of the fact, wondered at Tommy's many failures in this respect.

They were very good friends, however, and thought they loved each other—had even said so in strict confidence—and as I said, were engaged to be married. In fact, Miss Murray was already in the mercy of dressmakers and milliners, for it was December—late December—and the wedding was set for the 9th of January.

Meanwhile, the dressmakers and milliners having kindly waived their claims for a few hours, Mr. Barclay called to see his prospective bride. He was not in the best possible humor; an ugly east wind drove the sleet into his face as he walked the few blocks from the cable car to Miss Murray's home, for Tom thought the mules of his horses to take them out on such a night; a man had failed him in an important business appointment, and it was quite possible that he was a trifle bilious; at all events, he was about as cross as he ever allowed himself to become.

Now it happened that Elizabeth was nearly worn out with the turmoil incident to the preparations for a fashionable wedding. She was nervous and irritable; probably the east wind affected her also. She needed some one to smooth her hair, talk tender, comforting words—in short, pet her until she was rested, for the woman never yet lived who did not like occasional petting.

Now Thomas Barclay was not a demonstrative man, and petting was out of his line. How was he to know, especially in his unamiable mood, that the young girl soon to be his wife was in no condition to meet impatience patiently.

"Thank fortune," he said graciously, kissing her as a matter of course, and dropping into a chair, "this dressmaking row will soon be over. I've scarcely seen you for a month. I won't have a dressmaker on the place after we are married."

Mr. Barclay did not mean anything by this speech. It was simply an ebullition of temper, and Elizabeth should have met it as such; it suited her mood, however, to resent it.

"Indeed! I mean to have a dressmaker in the house all the time."

"I wouldn't if I were you," disagreeably, "especially against my wishes."

"And I should!" she returned defiantly.

"Well"— then common sense asserted itself, and he laughed. "Do you know, Beth, we are just ready to quarrel about nothing? My
