POULTRY SHOW'S OPENING.

Over 4,000 High-Bred Feathered Beauties on Exhibition.

Indications That the Affair Will Be the Most Successful Held.

The fifth annual show of the New York Poultry and Pigeon Association opened this morning, at 10 o'clock, at Madison Square Garden, and will continue until next Tuesday. There was every prospect that this will be the best and most successful exhibition of the kind ever given in America.

Over 4,000 feathered high-breds of the various classes are on exhibition, and among them are the finest specimens in America.

"THE WORLD'S" CHALLENGE CUP.

As early as daybreak this morning, the Garden was pandemonium itself. The crowing of the proud-looking, high-bred roosters, the cackle of the hens, the squawking and quacking of the ducks, geese and other water fowl, the rattle of the wire cages, and the sawing and hammering of the workmen made a noise that was deafening.

When the hour for the opening of the doors arrived several carriages of the fashionable patrons of the show were drawn up in front of the Madison avenue entrance. At this time, however, the workmen were not entirely through with their work, but by noon everything was in shipshape.

Among the prominent exhibitors are W. K. Vanderbilt, W. T. Levering, of Baltimore; Bradley Bros., of Lee, Mass.; J. H. Thompson, of Paterson, N. J., and Adams Pardue and Young, of East Orange, N. J.

One of the most valuable and artistic special prizes is that offered by "The World." It is a silver cup, handsomely and appropriately engraved, and is to be given to the exhibitor showing the best black-breasted game cock and hen. Forty-one exhibitors have entered for this prize, and R. C. Thornton, of Philadelphia, will judge the exhibits.

Among the classes most largely filled are White Plymouth Rocks, Buff Plymouth Rocks, American Standard Buff Cochins, Full-Feathered Buff Cochins, Light Brahmas and Dark Brahmas.

There are two parallel rows of cages running the full length of the Garden, in which the exhibits of rabbits, pheasants, prairie dogs, &c., will be exhibited.

One of the most interesting features of the show is the incubator room. This is just to the right of the main entrance. Another pleasing feature of the show is the large tank in the middle of the Garden for the water fowl.

The carrier pigeon exhibit is said to be the best ever seen in this country.

The indications at the opening were that the attendance will be large and fashionable.

ON YOUR WAY, JOHNNIE.

Davenport's Exit as Supervisor of Federal Elections Near.

Postmaster Dayton, as custodian of the Federal Building, will never again be caused any annoyance by Chief Supervisor of Elections John I. Davenport. Yesterday the Federal Elections law was repealed in Congress, and within a day or two, when the President shall have signed the repeal measure, the hitherto unsuppressible Johnny, like Othello, will find his occupation gone.

The last job Supervisor Davenport had was at the recent special elections for Congressmen in the Eighth and Fourteenth Districts. United States Marshal Jacobus is awaiting a return from Davenport as to the number of Deputy Supervisors he employed at that election. When that is made a requisition for the amounts due the deputies will be made by the Marshal and the men paid.

Supervisor Davenport was in Washington yesterday watching the doom of his pet Force bill, and as he could not be found at any of his haunts to-day, it was accepted that he was still in the capital.

Through the courtesy of the Judges of the United States Circuit Court, Supervisor Davenport occupied a desk in Clerk Shields's office, room 77 Federal Building, pending the special Congressional election. It will require much time and trouble for him to remove his effects from that office after the President signs the repeal measure. Then that will witness the finale of John I. Davenport as Supervisor of Federal Elections.

TEN YEARS OLD AND IN JAIL.

Charley Stole Anything from a Chicken to a Bicycle.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 8.—Charles Frulick, ten years old, was taken to the Union County jail to-day from Plainfield. He is charged with stealing a gold watch, a bicycle, a tricycle, a lot of chickens, two sets of boxing gloves, a lot of candy and several small articles. He used the garret in his home as a storeroom for his plunder, which he secreted back of the chimney, where the goods were found. The chickens he sold.

STYLISH GOODS SACRIFICED.

Delmry's Stock of Gentlemen's Wear on Sale by Ludwig Bros.

With the immense stock now in the market a man must be poor indeed who cannot dress himself to the limit of the fashions according to his taste. Probably the finest opportunity for everything in the gentlemen's furnishing line at prices that are positively astonishing was offered yesterday by the firm of Ludwig Brothers, at Nos. 34, 36 and 38 West Fourteenth street.

This firm has purchased the entire stock of Delmry & Co., of Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue, who had the reputation of keeping only the best goods to be obtained. The prices were marked down 53 cents on the dollar, which brings the finest wearing apparel within the reach of everybody. The sale is arranged to continue all this week, but if the rush continues as it began yesterday it is doubtful if the latter part of the week will see many goods remaining.

There are gloves of the finest French make in every shade, handsome dress shirts of all patterns, warranted to fit, a full line of underwear, a numberless assortment of fine canes and umbrellas, heavy Hourply linen collars and cuffs in all shapes and sizes, and neckties, scarfs and bows of the latest shades and most fashionable design. Everything is warranted and the prices are practically your own.

MORE TIME IS NECESSARY.

Otherwise the Police Investigation Will Be a Failure.

Dr. Parkhurst Says All Depends Upon the Senate Now.

Unless the Senate Investigating Committee makes up its mind to adopt the suggestions contained in the letter of President Smith, of the Chamber of Commerce, published this morning, the attempt to expose the alleged corruption in the Police Department will result in dismal failure. The Committee is scheduled to come down from Albany to-morrow and actually begin the taking of evidence. As matters stand now, however, there are no witnesses ready to testify and no lawyer to conduct the examination.

"Yes," said Rev. Dr. Parkhurst to an "Evening World" reporter this morning, "the whole matter is in a chaotic condition. All depends upon what the Senate will do to-day. It has twenty-four hours in which to discuss the situation. If it adopts the suggestions all will be well. If not, I don't see what can be done.

"The letter forwarded by the Chamber of Commerce answers all purposes. It was practically decided upon on Tuesday last. In the time limited by the Senate it would be impossible to do anything. To make a thorough investigation will take at least two months.

"We are in favor of having the investigation after the Legislature adjourns for this reason. The Committee is composed largely of Republicans, but the Republican majority in the Legislature is so small that many of the committeemen might be called up to Albany at any time.

"This investigation, when taken up, if at all," concluded Dr. Parkhurst, "must be continued day after day without any intermission. Everything now rests with Albany. If we have unlimited time, lawyers who now hold back will gladly accept."

While the Committee and the different anti-vice organizations are wrestling with the subject of investigating the police, Dr. Parkhurst and his Society for the Prevention of Crime, intends to keep hammering along in the same old way. The Doctor, with Lawyer Frank Moss, is due before the Grand Jury to-morrow. If not, on Monday. Charges of blackmail and extortion against a well-known Police Captain will then, it is said, be made.

The names of many lawyers are mentioned as being the probable associate counsel to conduct the police investigation. John W. Goff, as first announced in "The Evening World," has actually been invited to serve. If the Senate Committee extends the time for the investigation he will undoubtedly accept.

The decision of Chairman Lexow, of the Senate Committee, that only the Police Department could be investigated under the terms of the resolution appointing the committee is not taken as a barrier to the investigation of any other department. It is alleged that the police system is dovetailed into every other branch of the municipal service, particularly the Excise Department. The Fire Department, it is alleged, also hinges on it.

One of the most important subjects which the Committee will be called upon to investigate is why the city has not been provided with police alarm signals and a patrol wagon service.

BEAT A FELLOW PRISONER.

Henkin Had McCarthy Down When Policemen Entered the Cell.

"Help! help! He's killing me!" were the cries that startled the Sergeant on the desk in the Lower Fulton street police station, Brooklyn, shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. The cries came from one of the cells, and when the Sergeant and several officers reached the iron doors they found John Henkin sitting astride of Patrick McCarthy, beating a tattoo on his face with both fists. Both men had been arrested for intoxication.

The arrival of the officers did not disturb Henkin in the least, and he kept on pummelling McCarthy until the doors were unlocked and he was dragged away.

McCarthy's head was badly cut, and required the services of an ambulance surgeon.

Henkin was also badly bruised. The men spent the balance of the night in separate cells.

Paid with Beer Instead of Money.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Feb. 8.—On the charge of shooting and threatening to kill his wife, John Tracey was arraigned before Justice Hyman here this morning. Tracey moved furniture for Selleck Leonard McNeil yesterday and was paid for his labor with beer instead of money. When he became capable of drinking any more he went home and started to carve up his wife, and afterwards chased her through the streets with a knife. On his plea that McNeil was to blame Travers was discharged.

POLICEMAN DRUNK IN COURT.

And He Was to Make a Charge Against a Bartender.

Policeman William E. Boyle, of the East Fifty-first street station, was so intoxicated when he appeared in the Yorkville Police Court to-day as complainant against Alphonse Buehler that he was unable to stand straight.

Buehler is twenty-four years old, a bartender, and lives at 200 East Forty-seventh street. He is employed at Rummler's saloon, at 497 Lexington avenue. He was charged with violation of the excise laws. Buehler was arrested on complaint of a supposed Parkhurst agent named Martin, of 515 Lexington avenue.

Martin, in company with a former bartender, known to Buehler as "Tony," and a young girl, went into a back room in the saloon at 11 o'clock last night. At 1 o'clock this morning Buehler told the party to get out, as he was going to close up. This did not suit the party, and, as it was then after 1 o'clock, Martin said he would have him arrested for violation of the excise laws. He left the place and returned with Policeman Boyle, who arrested Buehler and locked him up for the remainder of the night.

This morning, when Policeman Boyle took Buehler to court he was beastly drunk. When the pair reached court, the condition of Boyle was noticed. Sergeant J. K. Fuller, of the court squad, took Boyle into a side room, where he slept off the effects of the liquor. Martin, who caused Buehler's arrest, did not appear, and Buehler was held until to-morrow.

Sergeant Fuller will prefer charges against Boyle at once.

Assistant District-Attorney Wellman came into court to-day with a pleased and confident expression on his face, caused by the triumph in the test case of Neville.

They are now in the hospital attached to the New York Veterinary College. If their cages are rocked ever so slightly, they whine from terror, again imagining themselves on shipboard.

HAS HICCOUGHED TEN WEEKS.

The Doctors Can't Stop It, and Carberry Has Become Very Weak and Emaciated.

Ten weeks ago last Tuesday John Carberry, of No. 22 Webster street, Newark, went around the corner to his barber and rested his back in the chair for a shave. During the lathering process the barber chafed Carberry's throat vigorously, and a violent attack of hiccoughs set in. His paroxysms were so severe that he left the chair unshaven, and went home and sought perfect quiet. The hiccoughs continued in such rapid succession that he almost strangled. His succession that he almost strangled.

The hiccoughs were loud enough to attract the attention of passers on the street, but gradually grew slower, until at 6.30 P. M. he called at Dr. Chapman's office, on Belleville avenue, and procured a prescription. The medicine did him little good, and he did not sleep that night. The next day Carberry attempted to work, but says he made a sorry job of it. He called Dr. Cocwin, and attributed an hour's intermission to the paroxysms to that physician's prescription. He was relieved for an hour or two at a time, so far as their violence was concerned, but he said last night to a World reporter:

"For ten weeks there hasn't been an hour that I have not had the hiccoughs, the feeling or sensation of regular spasms, though not so violent that I could not sleep. But they always come harder and harder, until they wake me up.

"The patient was resting on a couch when the reporter called last night. He was very thin and haggard, and his clothes seemed to have been made for a much larger man. His sister talked, as he could not, the greater part of the time. He told his story with spasmodic interruptions about every twenty seconds. He is thirty-two years old, and was once in the ship-yard. For a few weeks previous to the attack he had been tending bar at Lalars's saloon, on Belleville avenue. At that place it was said that Carberry was not a drinking man. He had drank nothing since he was employed there.

The family consists of elderly parents and a sister of eighteen, who cares for him. She said they had tried all sorts of home remedies before Dr. Lyon was first called. They had given him sugar in vinegar and sugar in almost every form. They hadn't tried spider's web, she said, nor any of the numerous ridiculous remedies suggested by callers. Hundreds of persons had called to see him, and no less than fifty between 6 and 9 o'clock last evening.

The course of treatment is to wash out the patient's stomach with warm water. A pipe is put down his throat to introduce the liquid. He retains very little on his stomach, and turns himself over with great difficulty on account of his extreme weakness. The spasms are less severe than they were, on account of the patient's weakened condition.

"I could not live an hour," he said, "if they were as violent now as at first."

NO DIVORCE FOR MRS. MATTHEWS.

Her South Dakota Suit for a Wonder Decided in Favor of the Husband.

James C. Matthews, chief clerk of the Gilsey House, was married in 1882 to Miss Adeline Sturtevant, the daughter of Charles P. Sturtevant, the eccentric millionaire. In time, Matthews became proprietor of the Sturtevant House, but finally lost its control. This, it is said, brought about an estrangement between husband and wife, and she threatened to apply for a divorce, going to Pennsylvania for that purpose. The courts there denied her a hearing, and in October, 1892, she took up her residence at Sioux Falls, S. Dak. At the end of six months she brought an action for absolute divorce, alleging as the grounds habitual intemperance, cruelty, desertion and non-support. She also asked for $1,000 for attorney's fees and $1,000 a year alimony.

In November last Matthews went to Sioux Falls and, through his attorney, A. H. Kittridge, denied every allegation. The case was tried, and Matthews returned to this city and resumed his duties at the Gilsey House. Mrs. Matthews journeyed East a little later, and is now with her brother.

Yesterday Matthews received word that the suit against him had gone in his favor, it being the only case of the kind, his attorney says, ever decided against a woman in South Dakota.

TO STOP THE PROGRESS

of Consumption, you will find but one guaranteed remedy—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In advanced cases, it brings comfort and relief; if you haven't delayed too long, it will certainly cure. It doesn't claim too much. It won't make new lungs—nothing can; but it will make diseased ones sound and healthy, when everything else has failed.

The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's caused Consumption, like every other form of Scrofula, and every blood taint and disorder, yields to the "Discovery." It is the most effective blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder that's known to medical science. In all Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

A permanent cure for your Catarrh—or $500 in cash. This is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

What Is Said of THE WORLD ALMANAC For 1894.

BROOKLYN STANDARD-UNION.—"Invaluable to those who wish to keep abreast of the times."

DAILY ITEM, ALLENTOWN, PA.—"Having the whole globe as its field and covering it thoroughly and impartially. * * * Crammed full of interesting and invaluable facts and figures."

UTICA PRESS.—"The statistics on all important subjects for the past year are very valuable and accurate."

SIGNAL, JOLIET, ILL.—"The New York World Almanac for 1894 is a beauty, excelling all its predecessors. To our notion it is as good as half a dozen encyclopaedias combined."

DAILY REVIEW, WILMINGTON, DEL.—"Unquestionably the most superb publication of the kind ever attempted in this country. It is, in fact, unrivalled and unequalled. There are nearly five hundred pages of matter of universal and absorbing interest. How such a volume can be published and sold for 25 cents is a marvel to us, but such is nevertheless the fact."

DAILY MERCURY, NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—"Improved form and with many new features. It is a convenient and accurate source of reference on many matters, especially those pertaining to politics."

MORNING BULLETIN, NORWICH, CONN.—"One of the most complete of handbooks. There are millions in it—five million figures and letters—and it is a good book for a figurer to have at hand for daily reference."

FIREMAN'S STANDARD, BOSTON, MASS.—"There are very few books of reference that are oftener in requisition or of more practical use than The World Almanac. It is, in fact as well as in name, an encyclopaedia, and has come to be a standard work in the home, counting-room and the workshop. Just what every one needs to give and verify dates and facts of past events, answer questions and settle the innumerable little controversies of every-day life."

EVENING JOURNAL, WILMINGTON, DEL.—"There is a marked improvement in its form and method of binding, and many pages have been added. This book has become an indispensable oracle and guide to many who need a ready reference, and this Almanac is bound to be greeted with general approval. All the well-known important departments of the Almanac have been enlarged. The aim has been to keep this annual fully abreast of the times by the publication of things about which somebody or everybody wants to know right off."

THE HERALD, ROCHESTER, N. Y.—"Has larger pages than ever before, and some seventy more of them. It contains all the old features and many new ones, making it a veritable encyclopaedia of information."

THE AMERICAN, WATERBURY, CONN.—"The New York World's Almanac for 1894 is a volume of 518 pages, and if there is anything that one wants to know that is not to be found in it, it must be a rare piece of information. That is as little as can be said of so large a book, and yet it tells the whole story."

GAZETTE, ELMIRA, N. Y.—"The New York World's Almanac for 1894 is better than ever. No higher praise than this can be written. It is a volume of facts, complete, comprehensive and yet concise. No citizen of the United States who has use for a handy book of reference, down to date on all topics under the sun, can afford to be without it."

DAILY AMERICAN, TRENTON, N. J.—"Fully sustains the past reputation of this valuable publication. In all that goes to make up a complete reference book for the year this volume recommends itself as far in advance of every other publication of the kind of which we have any knowledge. Its astonishing cheapness, whether the vast amount of valuable information contained, the number of its pages or the beauty of its typographical execution are considered, will doubtless give it the wide circulation which it eminently deserves."

THE DEMOCRAT, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—"As usual, one of the best political general handbooks printed."

STAR-INDEPENDENT, HARRISBURG, PA.—"One of the most carefully compiled and systematically arranged publications of this class issued so far this year in the country, and, for that matter, in any other country in the world. As an encyclopaedia it contains matter not included in any of the other almanacs published by the newspaper proprietors of the United States."

NEW DOMINION, MORGANTOWN, N. C.—"More nearly than any other work answers all questions relating to public events which come before the average business man."

GOV. PATTISON, OF PENNSYLVANIA.—"Has learned to rely so much upon the information therein contained that the book has become invaluable to him."

GOV. GREENHALGE, OF MASSACHUSETTS.—"Have placed the Almanac on my desk, where it will be a valuable source of information on a great many subjects which are liable to come before me during the year."

GOV. L. CROUNSE, OF NEBRASKA.—"I regard it as one of the most complete and comprehensive volumes of statistics and valuable information ever published."

GOV. DAVIS H. WAITE, OF COLORADO.—"Appreciates it for the convenience with which valuable statistical information may be obtained."

GOV. RICH, OF MICHIGAN.—"So filled with general information as to be almost indispensable."

GOV. NORTHEN, OF GEORGIA.—"A very useful reference book, and I value it very highly."

GOV. MATTHEWS, OF INDIANA.—"Not only a fund of great and useful information, but also such ready reference and systematically arranged. It is handsomely prepared."

JAMES F. MEECH, ADJUTANT-GENERAL, G. A. R.—"I find it very complete and shall refer to it with a great deal of interest."
