CAN FACTORY BURNS.

Hass & Assman's Jane Street Establishment Destroyed.

Over 100 Horses in Danger from the Flames.

Watchman Trying to Rescue Them Butted by a Goat.

The five-story tin can factory of Hass & Assman, 128 to 132 Jane street, was destroyed by fire which broke out on the second floor at 2 o'clock this morning. The damage is estimated at $70,000, two-thirds of which was in the machinery and stock.

The building was 80 feet deep and 75 feet wide. Louis Manns, the watchman of the place, was sitting in the office on the ground floor, when he heard a crackling sound. Going out into the street to investigate, he saw volumes of black smoke pouring from the windows on the second floor. He turned in an alarm from a special building call in the office.

In the basement of the factory there were seven horses. Three were got out by the police before the arrival of the firemen.

Capt. McCutcheon arrived with the first engine, and sent in a second and third alarms on seeing the extent of the fire and the neighboring buildings.

While the lines were stretched four firemen rescued twenty-eight horses that were in the stable of T. Sullivan, in the west side of the burning building.

The third alarm brought Chief Bonner, and he sent out a fourth alarm.

The flames were quickly driven by the wind to the one-story soap factory of Doggett brothers. Lines of hose were run through the four-story furniture factory of Brown & Simpson on the east side of the can factory, which runs L-shaped around the back of the factory. Directly in the rear of the can factory is the four-story stable "E" of the Street-Cleaning Department.

The roofs of these buildings a dozen streams were directed onto the burning building. From the Jane street side, the water tower poured hundreds of gallons of water upon the flames.

There were eighty-five horses in the Street-Cleaning Department stables. It looked for a time as though the fire would reach this building, so the animals were taken out by Night-Watchman Frank Miller, John Crimmins, Peter Kenney and Edward Fitzsimmons.

Watchman Joseph Higgins tried to assist in the work, but he was disabled by a goat, which butted him down a flight of stairs, and he had to be taken home.

The fire burned fiercely for an hour, resisting all the efforts of the firemen. Just after 3 o'clock the roof fell. A little piece of the roof, ten feet square, remained, supported by the junction of the south and east walls. On this there was a water tank containing 6,000 gallons of water.

While Fireman Whalen was cutting a hole in the roof of a one-story shed in the rear of the building, a mass of burning timber fell. He was knocked to the ground, and his right leg was broken.

At 5 o'clock the flames were extinguished. At that time the building was a blackened ruin above the first floor.

Three years ago last June there was a fire in the same building. At that time seven horses were burned.

TRUCK OBSTRUCTS TRAFFIC.

Stuck at a Pier Under the "L" Structure.

A heavy truck, loaded up ten feet high with furniture, got stuck shortly before noon to-day at a pier under the Third avenue L structure in front of the entrance to the bridge and obstructed traffic for a long time.

The result was a great congestion of cable cars, wagons, carriages and pedestrians up as far as Chatham Square, and for awhile it looked as if the confusion of vehicles could never be straightened out.

The truck belonged to Heywood Bros. & Co., rattan furniture dealers, 195 Canal street.

STEAM YACHT WRECKED.

The Arthur Mallon Lost, but Her Crew Saved.

(By Associated Press.)

CAPE CHARLES, Va., April 19.—The steam yacht Arthur Mallon, owned by George W. Kugler & Sons, of Philadelphia, was wrecked off Black River yesterday. The heavy seas broke her in two and she sank in twenty feet of water.

Capt. Heathcote and Engineer C. M. Derrick were rescued from a small boat, and were brought here by the steamer Luce Brothers.

LIVE WIRE KILLED FIREMAN.

Ex-Ball Player Tom Dolan Fatally Injured in St. Louis.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, April 19.—One St. Louis fireman was killed yesterday, one fatally and another seriously injured. An overhead wire was melted by the heat of the flames at a fire and fell to the ground.

The firemen stepped on the wire and William Cannon was killed, and Tom Dolan, the old ball-player and former catcher of the St. Louis Browns, was fatally injured. Ben Shiveley was badly burned.

Cable Car Hits a Big Truck.

Isaac Brown, fifty years old, of 205 West Forty-seventh street, was driving four horses attached to a truck along Third avenue this morning. At Forty-sixth street his truck was struck by cable car No. 91 of the Third Avenue line. Brown was thrown to the pavement. He received a severe contusion of the left leg, which was dressed by an ambulance surgeon. He refused to have the gripman arrested.

BOUGHT BY GOULDS.

George and Howard Purchase the Yacht Vigilant for $25,000.

They Will Race the Speedy Cup Winner This Season.

James Gordon Bennett Withdrew His Offer to Buy.

Peerless Vigilant, conqueror of the British yacht Valkyrie, and the invincible steel flyer which won the America's Cup so handsomely last year, will not be taken from these waters this year. George J. Gould and his brother, Howard, have purchased the noble white single-sticker, and they will race her next season for all she is worth.

The Gould boys paid $25,000 for Vigilant, and the syndicate, composed of Commodore E. D. Morgan, C. Oliver Iselin, Cornelius Vanderbilt, August Belmont and others, who invested $125,000 in the yacht last year, were pleased to dispose of the Vigilant at that figure.

Yachtsmen in these waters were fearful that Vigilant would be taken to foreign waters to compete for greater honor and glory next Summer.

Indeed, it was almost a certainty that James Gordon Bennett had bought her. Mr. Bennett had offered $30,000 for Vigilant, but it was contingent upon his ability to satisfactorily arrange a series of races with the Prince of Wales's Britannia. The sale to the Gould brothers is conclusive evidence that Mr. Bennett and the Prince were unable to agree on sailing conditions.

George Gould has been after Vigilant for some time. He approached August Belmont, treasurer of the syndicate which owns the boat, some weeks ago with an offer to buy. Then Mr. Bennett came upon the scene as a prospective purchaser and the Gould offer was lost sight of temporarily.

But word came that the Prince and Mr. Bennett had given up the notion of a contest, and the syndicate again looked to the Gould offer. Yesterday they accepted the $25,000 bid made by George Gould. To-day the latter confirmed the story and sent out this statement to the reporter:

"The Vigilant has been bought by my brother Howard and myself for $25,000. We have made no plans for her as yet. Of course we will race her if we get an opportunity."

The Goulds need have no fear as to there being a lack of opportunity to race Vigilant the coming season. Yachtsmen will hail with glee the knowledge that she will remain on this side. Gen. Paine, of Jubilee, will welcome the chance to again pit his fin-keel boat from Boston against Vigilant.

The General didn't say much last year when, through a series of accidents, he was thrown out of two races. The Boston contingent felt that barring accidents and flukes Jubilee had a good chance for first place in the trial races. This year ought to satisfy Gen. Paine just how speedy Vigilant is.

The position of Vigilant on this side of the Atlantic means a lively season for yachting all through the East. George Gould is a member of the New York Yacht Club and owns the big schooner Hildegarde, formerly the Prince of Wales's property. He also owns the big steam yacht Atalanta.

PATIENT BURGLAR CAUGHT.

Handcuffed, He Waited Until the Policeman Returned.

Bluecoat Was Chasing Another Thief Over Roofs.

While patrolling his beat early this morning Policeman John Forrester saw two men endeavoring to force an entrance to the saloon of Henry Hahrs, 835 Greenwich street. He captured one and handcuffed him, but the other dashed into a hallway and upstairs.

Leaving the handcuffed prisoner, the officer gave chase to the other. He reached the roof in time to see him disappearing over the adjoining roof. The chase continued for nearly a block, when the fleeing prisoner made for an open scuttle at 835 Gansevoort street, through which he disappeared and fastened it on the inside.

By the time the policeman had wrenched it from its hinges the man had made his escape. Returning to his handcuffed prisoner the policeman found him patiently awaiting him. He gave the name of John Reilly, eighteen years old, of 644 Henderson street, Jersey City. In the Jefferson Market Court he was held for trial for attempted burglary.

ADMITTED TAKING $109.

Bookkeeper Sayles Said He Had Been Living High.

Detectives Fraser and Lang, of the East Fifty-first street squad, last night arrested Joseph D. Sayles, a bookkeeper, twenty-three years old, of 14 Willow street, Brooklyn, on a charge of embezzlement. The complainant against him was Charles Corner, an insurance and real estate broker, of 971 Third avenue.

Sayles has the appearance of a young sport. For several weeks he was in the employ of Corner as bookkeeper. A few days ago Corner found a shortage in the books, and requested him to make up his accounts to date.

Instead of doing so, Sayles left the place. An expert accountant was then engaged, and he discovered a discrepancy of $109. Through a decoy letter that the case would be fixed Sayles went to the corner of Third avenue and Fifty-eighth street, where he was placed under arrest.

He acknowledged his guilt and said he had been living high. Justice Burke, at Yorkville Police Court, to-day committed him for trial in $1,000 bail.

BIG CUT IN STEERAGE RATES.

Continental Lines Will Charge Emigrants Only $15.

First Gun in a Battle Between Rival Companies.

A rate war is in progress among ocean steamship lines which redounds to the profit of people travelling in the steerage from foreign countries to this side of the big pond.

The Continental steamship lines have in consequence reduced their emigrant rates to $15. This is a cut of $11. The cut has not yet been met by the English companies. The latter are adhering to their former figure of $26, though it is regarded by steamship men as a mere matter of time when their rates will be lowered.

The Continental lines comprise the Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd, Netherlands-American and Red Star companies, and for a time they practically controlled the emigrant traffic from Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

The English lines began running ships by way of Liverpool and Hull to the Scandinavian peninsula, and got most of the emigrant trade. The Continental people claimed that this was an invasion of their territory, but the Britishers refused to make a change. Conferences were held, but nothing resulted and the Continental people reduced their rates to $15.

"The English lines have adopted a waiting policy," Emil L. Boas, passenger agent of the Hamburg-American Company, said to an "Evening World" reporter to-day. "They probably will not announce any new move for a few days."

At the offices of the Cunard and White Star companies it was said that no new information had been received regarding the emigrant rates and there will be no stir selling at the old figure of $26.

MARK TWAIN'S ASSIGNMENT.

Failure of Webster & Co. May Cripple the Humorist.

Believed to Have Been Perfectly Solvent Last January.

The assignment of Samuel L. Clemens, or, as he is he is more universally known, "Mark Twain," is the topic of conversation to-day among commercial people and others who believed his financial standing was unassailable.

Mr. Clemens's firm was started sixteen years ago under the name of C. L. Webster & Co. Its primary object was the publication of Mark Twain's own works, but later it embarked in other enterprises, the chief among them being the publication of the memoirs of Gen. U. S. Grant, and biographies of Henry Ward Beecher, Roscoe Conkling, Pope Leo XIII., and Gen. Winfield S. Hancock, and "Diversions of a Diplomat," by S. S. Cox.

"Mark Twain" was known to be the moneyed member of the firm.

When Mr. Webster, who was the husband of "Mark Twain's" niece, died in April, 1891, he was succeeded by Frederick J. Hall. The firm carried on business at 67 Fifth avenue.

This morning Bainbridge Colby, of 40 Wall street, the assignee, said that the firm's affairs were in too involved a condition to afford an opportunity for even guessing at this early stage at what the amount of the assets and liabilities might be.

Mr. Rushmore, of the law firm of Stern & Rushmore, the assignee's attorneys, said that he could not yet say to what extent Mr. Clemens would be personally affected by the failure, but that there was no doubt that he would lose a great deal.

It was at first reported that the firm's liabilities were so great that "Mark Twain" would be left practically penniless. Mr. Hall had told a representative of Bradstreet's agency last January that the firm's resources amounted to about $200,000 above any debts, and that Mr. Clemens owned in the neighborhood of $400,000 above his money invested in the firm.

This morning Mr. Hall refused to discuss the matter when seen by an "Evening World" reporter.

Lawyer Rushmore also declined to express an opinion as to how Mr. Hall's statement of last January was reconcilable with the firm's failure as announced yesterday.

The extent to which Mrs. Grant, the General's widow, will lose by the firm's failure has not yet been ascertained.

Mr. Clemens himself says that he has money invested in other concerns, and that his losses by this failure will not seriously affect him.

William Bindle Discharged.

William Bindle, who was arraigned in the Court of General Sessions before Judge Cowing and a jury, charged with assault in the first degree in shooting at August Haberman on March 28, has been discharged. Lawyers Alfred and Charles Steckler, who appeared as counsel for the prisoner, established to the satisfaction of the Court and jury that the prisoner fired the shot for the purpose of frightening the complainant, who was throwing missiles at the room of the defendant.

THAT ASTOR INJUNCTION.

Judge Gildersleeve Hears Argument Upon It This Morning.

Affidavits of Experts, Pro and Con, Submitted.

Judge Gildersleeve, of the Superior Court, this morning heard argument on his order requiring John Jacob Astor and the trustees of the Astor estate to show cause why the temporary injunction restraining them from building a stable at Sixty-fifth street and Madison avenue, adjoining the B'nai Jeshurun Temple, should not be made permanent.

Lawyer Charles Strauss, who represented the congregation, read a lot of affidavits. Some of them showed the expensive character of the temple, which, according to the affidavits, cost $415,000. Others were from residents of the neighborhood, claiming that the value of their property would be decreased.

Experts in building and conducting of stables swore that it would be impossible to build and conduct a stable from which unhealthy odors would not emanate.

Several physicians swore the building of the stable would endanger the health of residents in the neighborhood and attendants at worship in the temple.

"If the defendants were of a different class," said Mr. Strauss, "I would unhesitatingly charge them with a deliberate attempt at blackmail. Their financial position in this community is so high I do not wish to make such a charge. But their action in agreeing to accept a price, 50 per cent. more than they paid for the property, by less prominent people, would be called blackmail pure and simple.

"In fact, I see but little difference, except that these defendants have made their demands in a more haughty manner."

Joseph H. Choate, representing the Astor estate, also read a lot of affidavits contradicting those of the other side. He claimed that the stable from an architectural standpoint would be more attractive than the temple.

He then called attention to the fact that most of the wealthy residents of this city had stables adjoining their houses. He read affidavits from physicians that the stable would not be unhealthy.

He denied that there was a desire to make money out of the residents of the neighborhood, and said a prohibitory price was named because his clients did not wish to sell.

The argument not being closed at 11 o'clock, Judge Gildersleeve adjourned it until after the regular call of the daily calendar.
