A TAMMANY RUSE.

Electrical Inspectors' Salaries Added to the Supply Bill.

And State Comptroller Roberts Was Forced to Pay Them.

Only 355 Telephone Poles Below Fifty-ninth Street.

Tammany managed to have a little item slipped into the Supply bill which the last Legislature passed and Gov. Flower approved.

It settles the controversy between State Comptroller Roberts and the city authorities as to whether the fourteen inspectors employed by the Board of Electrical Control are entitled to their pay. The little joker directs the Comptroller to pay, and he has paid. He had withheld the salaries of the men since January, and he has settled with them for the six months in full. Each inspector received a check for $900.

Former Comptroller Campbell always paid the inspectors without any question as to their status. When Comptroller Roberts took office on Jan. 1, 1894, he raised the point that the Board of Electrical Control was a State Board, and as the inspectors had not passed examination before the State Civil-Service Commission, he held they were not legally entitled to compensation.

Mr. Roberts based his contention that the Board of Electrical Control came under the State's jurisdiction on the fact that they were paid through the State Comptroller. The Comptroller acts as a paymaster for the electrical companies, on whom the expenses of the Board of Electrical Control are assessed.

Corporation Counsel Clark, on the other hand, claimed that the Board was purely a local body, and that the Comptroller merely acted as an agent for the electrical concerns. The inspectors were advised to bring suit to determine the matter, but "the organization" came to their aid and forced a shorter way out of the entanglement. They used the lawmaking, instead of the law-giving, power to bring Mr. Roberts to terms.

Secretary Moss, of the Subway Commission, announces that all except 355 of the telephone poles below Fifty-ninth street, have been removed, and the wires placed underground. These 355 poles have fire-alarm wires strung on them, and will be taken down as soon as subway accommodations are provided.

It is proposed to shorten the poles of the Western Union Telegraph Company on West street and Eleventh and Twelfth avenues, twenty-five feet. The poles are ninety feet high. When reduced in length 500 miles of wire will be removed, and it is hoped thereby to make them less unsightly.

Subways cannot be constructed in those streets because the ground underneath is flooded by water in many places.

Painters Want Higher Wages.

A strike of painters at the Windsor Hotel, Fifth avenue and Forty-seventh street, was reported this morning. Four painters were found at work on the Forty-seventh street, was reported this morning. Four painters were found at work on the Forty-seventh street walls. At the office of the contractor, Thomas Harrington, of 1381 Broadway, it was learned that there was no trouble with his men as he pays the regular union wages of $3.00 a day. Manager Wetherbee says that he employs several painters the year round on the inside of the hotel and that these were peacefully engaged at interior work. It is understood that the inside painters have asked the hotel management for union wages.

NEW OFFICE PROPOSED.

To Be Called that of Superintendent of Corporations.

(By Associated Press.)

ALBANY, July 20.—The Constitutional Convention started in this morning by excusing twelve members from attendance next week. Under the head of petitions, Mr. Tucker presented one from the Socialist Labor party. It included two amendments, one of them providing for the gratuitous and non-sectarian education of every child of school age, and for the furnishing of free meals to the destitute children attending such schools; the other, for the perpetual ownership, operation and construction of all public works by the State.

Several petitions were received from the Farmers' Grange of the State in favor of woman suffrage.

A resolution was adopted, sending the matter of Congressional apportionment to the Committee on Legislative Organization.

The Committee on Judiciary reported a new amendment providing that the Legislature may provide for a Commission of Jurors in any county, to be appointed by the Justices of the Supreme Court and the County Judge. The report was agreed to and sent to the Committee of the Whole.

Among the amendments proposed was one by Mr. Sullivan, abolishing the offices of Superintendent of Banking, Railroad Commissioners and Superintendent of Insurance, and merging their offices into a new one to be known as the Superintendent of Corporations, who shall be selected by the people at the election in 1895, and to hold office for four years.

LIZZIE MUST STAND TRIAL.

Young Mrs. Patterson Arraigned for Defrauding Jewellers.

Mrs. Lizzie Patterson, the pretty girl accused of defrauding Jeweller J. A. Flomerfelt & Co., Seventeenth street and Broadway, and others by means of bogus checks, was arraigned before Judge Cowing in Part I. of the Court of General Sessions this morning and pleaded not guilty. She was remanded to the Tombs to await trial.

Among other complainants against Lizzie are Tiffany & Co., who allege that on March 8 last she ordered some diamond jewelry sent to "Miss Bertha Stearns, of 1936 Lexington avenue," and later attempted to pay for the same by sending a forged $500 check bearing the name "William Stearns." The jewels were not sent.

The police say that her husband, George Patterson, was convicted several months ago for passing worthless checks.

Judge Martine suspended sentence on account of the youth of the prisoner.

TWO SWINDLERS SENTENCED.

Hammill and Cunningham Get One Year Each.

Charles Hammill, nineteen years old, of 116 Ganseevoort street, and James Cunningham, thirty-six years old, no home, pleaded guilty to collecting money under false pretenses, and were sentenced to one year in the Penitentiary by Judge Cowing, in Part I. of the Court of General Sessions, this morning.

They went to Diedrich H. Helm's Hotel, 101 Bank street, a few days ago, and collected 25 cents on the strength of a bogus petition circulated for the alleged purpose of raising a fund to bury the child of a friend. The whole sum collected is said to have been $2.75.
