TO PLAY WAR AT SEA.

Naval Reserves Ship on the Cruiser New York.

Regular Marines Ousted to Make Room for Them.

One of the New York's Crew Reported as Deserting.

TOMPKINSVILLE, S. I., July 21.—Amid the booming of cannon and the tooting of whistles from incoming and outgoing steamships the cruisers New York and San Francisco, having on board the First Naval Battalion of the State of New York, started at 11 o'clock this morning on their annual cruise. The bay was dotted with craft of all kinds, while thousands of people crowded the Staten Island shore as well as the roofs of buildings to see the pride of Uncle Sam's Navy go down the bay.

All the morning the New York and the cruiser Columbia, which has been ordered to Bluefields, lay almost side by side. It had at first been intended to send the Columbia with the reserves, but at the last moment the other course was decided upon and the San Francisco took her place. Capt. Philip, of the New York had been instructed to have everything in readiness at 8.30 o'clock this morning, that being the hour when Admiral Stanton said he would appear with the San Francisco.

At 8.30 o'clock, however, not a single one of the reserves had put in an appearance, nor was there any word from the Admiral. There is so much room in the New York that it was not considered necessary to relieve any of the crew of 412 men which she usually carries.

Capt. Philip thought he could easily accommodate the 190 naval reserves which had been promised, but in order to be on the safe side he sent ashore sixty marines early in the morning. Work went on aboard the cruiser just as if no reserves had been expected. At 9.30 o'clock the crew were piped to quarters, and it was then found that every one of the 412 men had responded save Hugh Devine, a seaman, who had deserted.

At 10.30 o'clock one of the Navy-Yard tugs, having on board the detachment of Reserves for the New York, appeared and steamed alongside the cruiser. All the men, who appeared in natty uniforms, clambered nimbly up the port gang plank, and were mustered aft on the main deck. The number of men and their names were then officially reported to Executive Officer Lamberton in turn reported to Capt. Philip. The Reserves were then assigned to quarters.

The four guns which had been introduced for their benefit were given over to their charge. Instructions in hammock swinging then began, and in a few seconds, as it were, the reserves found themselves transformed from civilians into seamen and, under the most rigid discipline, compelled to swab decks and do other kinds of hustling which was entirely foreign to their ordinary avocations.

The old salts watched the reserves curiously, yet with a patronizing air. Many of them laughed outright, however, when some of the "land sailors" exhibited fullness suits. Before the cruise is over they will understand that "active service" has little use for such things. "These dude sailors will be sadded before they get back from this trip," remarked one waggish Jack Tar.

It was shortly before 11.30 o'clock when the guns from Governor's Island could be heard thundering out a salute to the Admiral's ship, San Francisco, as she hurried down the bay after leaving the Navy-Yard. The guns were heard by both the New York and the Columbia, which, after signaling each other, got ready to answer.

At 11.30 o'clock the San Francisco hove in sight, and then the New York gave its salute of nine guns. The hills on both sides took up the echo, which was continued as the Columbia took up the salute with nine guns more. The firing continued as the San Francisco came racing along, and passing between both cruisers, returned the salute.

Admiral Stanton allowed the San Francisco to slow up in order to enable Capt. Philip, of the New York, to come and receive instructions. The latter then put back to his own vessel and at 11.45 o'clock, the San Francisco put on full steam. The New York followed, and both vessels in a few minutes were lost in the mist that hung over the lower bay.

The delay in the start, although puzzling at first, was accounted for by several reasons. The headquarters of the reserves is on the old frigate New Hampshire and there at an early hour this morning the officers expected visitors from Rochester and New Haven.

The reserves were all turned out of their hammocks at 6 o'clock, bags and knapsacks were neatly packed, then came breakfast, and the dishes had scarcely been stowed away when a shrill whistle announced that the Navy-Yard tug was on hand to take the men to the two cruisers. The men formed into companies, boarded the tug, and then amid tremendous cheering they headed for the Navy-Yard.

The first big delay was encountered there, as the crew of the San Francisco had not at that time been transferred to the Vermont. The reserves were not put on board until the transfer had been made. When all but eighty of the regular crew had been transferred, the reserves were ordered aboard. The bugles struck up and then began the mustering to quarters. Those who could not be accommodated on the San Francisco were, as stated, brought down the bay on the tug and placed on the New York.

Gardiner's Bay will be reached early to-morrow morning, and after devotional exercises there will be an officers' meeting on board the Bancroft. The afternoon will be devoted to small arms practice. Gardiner's, Plum and Gull Islands will be occupied, and from these points signal communication can be had with Orient Point, Greenport and Fisher's Island. The signalling will be kept up all night, the boats putting back to Gardiner's Bay at 8.45 A. M. Monday. The day will be devoted to practice with the great guns, and the following day, until 5.30 P. M., target practice will be the principal feature.

KERWIN'S FEAT AS A SCOUT.

Told in Gen. Negley's Letter to the Police Commissioner.

Among about 150 letters of congratulation that Gen. Kerwin has received since being appointed Police Commissioner, is one from Gen. James S. Negley, ex-Congressman from Pittsburg, Pa., which gives him particular pleasure. The two old soldiers have not met since the war. The letter reads:

Gen. Michael Kerwin,
Police Commissioner, New York City.

My Dear General: Your new appointment to a highly responsible position is a distinct honor—recalls with vividness an episode of service as a private soldier, that I feel compelled to mention. Some years ago, while I was in Congress during the war, you were a captain commanded the Corcoran Legion, which was engaged in guarding the passage of Potomac fords above the Potomac.

I was ordered to cross the river above Harpers Ferry and engage Jackson's right. Not knowing the strength of the enemy, I was fearful the movement would be a hazardous one. After deploying information, it would be necessary to send a detachment into the lines of the enemy. I proposed your Colonel, Gwin, to send a trusty and intelligent soldier to perform that service.

On calling for a volunteer, you stepped to the front and were assigned. I assured your return with fearful misgivings, absolutely as well dead, if captured, as any one else, if I recollect rightly. The information you brought induced a change in the order of battle and compelled Jackson to retreat under fire.

If we had failed to follow up the advantage thus gained, we could have completed the evacuation of Winchester and probably won a victory at Bull Run. Hence you see, dear General, that you played a prominent part in the first act of the great drama.

I am yours very truly,
JAMES S. NEGLEY.

LOST HER HUSBAND AND MIND

Mrs. Meyer Pleaded to Be Allowed to Keep Her Children.

She Was Torn from Them and Taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. Jennie Meyer, twenty-seven years old, was committed to Bellevue Hospital by Justice Feltner in the Essex Market Police Court today to be examined as to her sanity. Her husband, Louis Meyer, a tailor, abandoned her and their three children about six months ago.

The Meyers lived on the top floor of the rear house at 156 Forsyth street. Mrs. Meyer was devoted to her husband, and believes that he left her because he was out of work and could not bear to see his family in want.

She struggled bravely to support herself and the children. She also searched for her husband, and in thinking so much about him lost her mind.

The tenants in the house told Agent Deubert, of the Gerry Society, that Mrs. Meyer made her children pray every night for their father, to keep him from all sickness and harm. Only for the kindness of the neighbors the mother and her children would have starved.

Although a raving maniac, Mrs. Meyer took good care of her children, and would allow no one to interfere with them.

When Agent Deubert entered the rooms last night and informed her that he had news of her missing husband, she threw her arms around the agent's neck and kissed him affectionately. She was so pleased with the information that she washed her children and dressed them in their best clothes. She then accompanied the agent to go, as she supposed, to her missing husband.

The agent took her to court, and she gazed longingly at the spectators in search of her husband. She told Justice Feltner that since her husband left her she had lost her mind.

When she was committed to be examined as to her mental condition she struggled desperately with the Gerry agent who attempted to take her children from her. She shouted that she had lost her husband and did not want to lose her children. After a great deal of commotion they were taken to the Gerry Society rooms.

COMPLAINANT IN PRISON.

Nellie Smith Not Allowed to Face Policeman Burke.

Policeman Burke, of the Eldridge street station, came before Justice Feltner, in the Essex Market Court, today. He denied that he assaulted Nettie Smith while taking her to court yesterday, and said that she received her injuries by falling on the sidewalk.

The policeman stated that the woman was very violent and tried to enter every saloon they passed. When the woman was arraigned yesterday she swore that the officer assaulted her without any provocation. She bore marks of violence.

The woman was not present at the hearing to-day and Justice Feltner after hearing Burke, said that he did not believe the woman, and told him that he merely sent for him to hear his explanation.

Policeman Burke had a number of witnesses in court who were willing to testify that they saw the woman throw herself on the sidewalk and injure herself.

It seems strange, however, that the woman should have been hurried to the island to serve her five days' sentence, which Justice Feltner imposed upon her. It was learned that almost as soon as she was sentenced yesterday she was taken to the island.

Mrs. Collins Agrees to Settle.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 21.—Mrs. Margaret Collins, who was arrested a week ago for contempt of court in refusing to testify in supplementary proceedings, was released this morning by Judge Dykman. She is indebted to the son of Judge Dykman in the sum of $200. Edward Birdsall, of Tarrytown, told in court to-day she said she would pay the money.

M'DONALD STILL MISSING.

Patrick Kearney Denies that He Said He Had Killed Him.

Patrick Kearney, nineteen years old, living in a cheap lodging-house in Pearl street, Brooklyn, and James Dougherty, same age, of 79 Gold street, were arrested this morning charged with being implicated in the Robinson Stoneware Company burglary at 255 Water street, a few nights ago, when $100 worth of brass fittings were stolen and a large amount of property was destroyed.

Kearney has been wanted by the police for some time, as it was believed that he could explain the disappearance of Patrick McDonald, eighteen years old, of 20 Water street, who left home in April last and has not been seen since. His disappearance was reported to the police at the time.

Kearney reappeared in Brooklyn a couple of weeks ago, and the police heard that he had killed McDonald by throwing him off a freight train on their way out West.

To-day Detective Dolan and Policeman Gillen saw the men standing on the corner of Adams and John streets, and started to arrest them.

The men ran off in different directions and ran away. They went to the foot of Pearl street, where a number of coal barges are tied up, and hid themselves by lying flat on their stomachs.

The police made an ineffectual search, and were about to go away when they noticed a skiff move up close to one of the barges and two robbers were seen crowding over the side of a barge.

The police started in pursuit again, and the men in the boat hurried away. The two alleged burglars submitted to arrest and were locked up.

Kearney denies that he told anybody that he had killed McDonald. He admits that they went away together, and declares that they visited Chicago, where they separated.

The police have not been notified of the finding of McDonald's body.

BURGLARS AT SOUTHAMPTON.

Money and Silverware Stolen at A. Turner's Cottage.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., July 21.—Burglars are continuing their raids on Summer cottages at this place and vicinity.

Last night A. Turner's cottage here was entered and a quantity of solid silverware, some clothing and a sum of money, all to the value of $250, were stolen.

The thieves were experts and left some plated silverware behind them. The family was asleep in the upper rooms at the time.

COXEY MOVEMENT STILL ON.

The "General" Inspects the Army of Sleepers on Park Benches.

Contemplates Taking Them to Washington as a "Moral Lesson."

"General" J. S. Coxey, who denies that his army is now scattered to the four winds, arrived in this city from Washington last evening and went straight to the headquarters of the Populist party at 50 East Tenth street.

After a conference with some of the leaders, the "General" took a car for the Sturtevant House, on Broadway, where he remained for the night. He was up betimes this morning, and after a light breakfast went downtown on some private business.

To a reporter the "General" said he expected to be elected to Congress, and that he believed the Populists would win in the West and Northwest next November. Minnesota, he believes, is as good as carried, and the strike has made Illinois certain.

He spent an hour or so in Central Park last night, and when asked what he did it for, he replied:

"I have heard that great numbers of men are out of work here and are compelled to sleep all night on the hard park benches. I wanted to see for myself if it were true. I found it so.

"Now, in my opinion, it would be a great moral lesson to our legislators at Washington if all these men who fill the park benches here and in other cities would go to Washington and fill the park seats there. It would be a great moral lesson, and I think I will have to urge such a movement.

"The idea that our movement is ended is incorrect. Our army is encamped at Bladensburg, 500 strong, and there we will stay until we are heard or our bills are passed. I am making converts every day."

The "General" will attend the Populist picnic at Ridgewood Park, Brooklyn, to-morrow, when it is expected that he will say something about the recent labor troubles in the West. He will remain here until Monday morning, when he will leave for Baltimore, where he will appear in the evening.

A mass-meeting has been called by the New York Anarchists' Group for next Monday evening at Clarendon Hall to introduce Charles W. Mowbray, the agitator, recently arrived in this country from London.

BOOKER'S SUCCESSOR.

Sanderson Is a Soldier, Diplomat and a Bachelor.

The official announcement of the appointment of Percy Sanderson as British Consul-General at New York to succeed Sir William Lane Booker, who retired on the 14th inst., was published in The Gazette, of London, yesterday.

It will be Thursday before the Consul-General will reach his post, and in the mean time Consul Fraser will be acting Consul-General. Mr. Sanderson is a brother of Sir Thomas H. Sanderson, Under Secretary of State in India. He has been in the British consular service fifteen years, is fifty years old, is at present British Consul-General at Galatz, Roumania, and is also British Commissioner for the lower Danube. He was in the army before entering the consular service. It may be interesting to the women to know that he is a bachelor.

MR. OLIVER DEAD.

Well-Known New York Physician Passes Away at Rahway.

RAHWAY, N. J., July 21.—Dr. F. W. Oliver, aged thirty-five, died suddenly from an attack of cholera morbus this morning.

Dr. Oliver had a promising future before him, and was well known in this city and in the neighborhood of Twenty-seventh street and Broadway, New York, where he had an office. About three weeks ago, while out bicycle riding in company with half a dozen ladies and gentlemen, near Morristown, his wheel slipped from under him and he broke his knee cap, by which injury he was still confined to his bed.

NEW RECEIVER NAMED.

Several Members of a Fishing Club Oppose Its Dissolution.

Justice Andrews, of the Supreme Court, to-day appointed William H. Ricketts receiver of the Peekamose Fishing Club in the place of Josiah W. Wentworth, who was removed yesterday.

Proceedings have been begun for the dissolution of the Club, but several members oppose the proceedings, on the ground that the Club is solvent.

The new receiver is directed by Justice Andrews to allow the members of the Club to enjoy all the privileges of the Club, pending the dissolution proceedings.

CLEVELAND COMING NORTH.

Expected at Atlantic City Early Next Week.

(By Associated Press.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 21.—Ex-Senator Jacobs, of Brooklyn, who is a Summer resident here, received a letter from President Cleveland to-day, stating that he would arrive here early next week, en route to Buzzard's Bay.

Mr. Cleveland will come direct from Washington, and will remain a short time as ex-Senator Jacobs's guest. He will be accompanied by Grover Flower, who will make a stay of equal length.

This will be Mr. Cleveland's first visit to Atlantic City.

TO SUCCEED M'CLURE.

Adrian T. Kiernan Appointed a Commissioner of Appraisal.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 21.—Justice Dykman this morning appointed Adrian T. Kiernan, of New York, a Commissioner of Appraisal in place of David McClure, who refused to act with Commissioners Hamilton Fish, jr., and Frank Larkin, jr., in the appraisal of land taken for the Kensico reservoir.

Commissioner Daly, of the Department of Public Works of New York, made the motion for the appointment of the Commissioner.

The Rev. John Jaeger Sails Away.

The Rev. John Jaeger, who has charge of the mission of the "Living Waters," Chrystie street, sailed for Europe to-day in the steamship Ems. A large party of friends from that and other missions were there to bid him bon voyage. Mr. Jaeger will preach to the American colony in the English church at Mayence, his native city.

MacFarlane Has His Commission.

Wallace MacFarlane, the newly appointed United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York, has received his commission from Washington. He will be sworn into office by United States Commissioner Shields next Monday morning.

Found Dead in Bed.

PORT RICHMOND, S. I., July 21.—Hugh Clancy, sixty-five years of age, a flagman on the Staten Island Rapid Transit railroad, did not respond to the call for breakfast this morning at the boarding-house of Mrs. Devlin. A servant was sent up to Clancy's room and he was found dead in bed. Coroner Whitman was summoned and heart disease was given as the cause of death.

COURT-HOUSE SHAKEN

Terrific Explosion in the Kings County Building.

Reporter Lifted Off His Feet and Quite Badly Hurt.

Was There a Plot on Foot to Destroy the Structure?

A terrific explosion startled every one in the Kings County Court-House, Brooklyn, about noon to-day.

Court officials and lawyers ran from all parts of the building to see what was up.

The walls shook and frightened several women who screamed and rushed for the stairway. Investigation showed a very peculiar state of affairs.

Clifford A. Smith, a newspaper reporter, was found standing near one of the doors leading from the second floor to the front balcony.

His face was covered with dust, his eyes were bleeding and he was in great pain.

Nothing about the building revealed the cause of the trouble. Smith was too badly injured to talk.

He was removed quickly to the Eye and Ear Hospital on Livingston street, directly in the rear of the Court-House, where he was attended by Dr. Blake.

The doctor took some pieces of filing and dust from the injured man's eyes. The flesh surrounding the eyes was badly burned.

As soon as Smith recovered sufficiently to talk he said:

"I was about to go out on the balcony to see the direction taken by engines on the way to a fire. While lighting a cigar I noticed a square hole in the door-sill.

"I aimed at the hole with the burning match, and the match entered it. It had no sooner done so than an explosion followed.

"I was lifted bodily off my feet. The blast came from the hole like that from the mouth of a cannon.

"I do not think that I caught the whole force of the explosion. My eyes seemed as if on fire and my face burned terribly."

Smith was able to take a car home.

The court officials are at a loss to determine the course of the explosion. The fumes of powder were very noticeable.

It is thought by many that small boys had poured powder into the hole; others intimate that it was the work of persons who intended to blow up the Court-House.

An investigation will be made.

FOUND THE CAPTAIN DYING.

Taken Aboard the Scandia in Mid-ocean and Brought to This Port.

The steamer Scandia, Capt. Winkler, from Hamburg July 8 and Havre July 10, with merchandise and passengers, arrived at this port at 12.30 o'clock this morning.

The captain reports that on July 19 she fell in with the bark Ponymede, of Nantes, bound from Barbados to Quebec, with a cargo of molasses, and was signalled for assistance.

A boat was lowered and when the vessel was boarded it was found that the captain was in a dying condition, suffering from peritonitis.

His request to be taken on board the Scandia, together with his wife and child, was complied with, and as the bark had no other navigator, Chief Officer Kraft, of the Scandia, was sent aboard to take her to Quebec.

Since going aboard the Scandia the captain's condition has greatly improved and hopes are now entertained for his recovery.

TWO FIREMEN INJURED.

Thrown from a Hose-Cart While Responding to an Alarm.

Two firemen were seriously injured this morning while rushing to answer a false alarm. They were James Farrell and John Fullerton, of Engine Company 34. They hung on behind the hose-cart as the vehicle dashed up Fulton street. While it was between Schenectady and Troy avenues a wheel caught in a car track and was wrenched off. The cart upset and the firemen were thrown to the street.

Farrell sustained a fracture of the elbow and right arm, and Fullerton fractured his right hip. Both men were taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

MAY CAUSE A DEADLOCK.

An Interesting Time Expected at the Aldermen's Special Meeting.

Mayor Schieren's call for a special meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday morning to take action on the application for $750,000 to extend the water system, caused speculation among the politicians this morning as to whether the City Fathers would take any decisive action on the matter.

It was rumored that certain Aldermen would endeavor to maintain a deadlock unless the City Works Commissioner consented to surrender and have the work done as they desire. The Aldermen want the work done by the city, while Mr. White favors having it done by contract. By the latter method the work will be done much cheaper.

It was learned to-day that the report of the Water and Drainage Committee had not yet received the signatures of a majority of the members. Aldermen Walsh and Jahn are said to be the Aldermen who have neglected to sign it. A lively meeting of the Board is expected on Monday morning.

FROM GAYNOR'S DECISION.

The City Will Take an Appeal in the Traction Companies' Case.

Gen. James McLeer, Chairman of the Committee on Railroads of the Board of Assessors, said this morning that an appeal would be taken from Justice Gaynor's decision handed down yesterday, in which a writ is granted, requiring the Assessors to review their assessment of the Brooklyn Traction Company.

The Board first taxed the real estate and other property of the Atlantic Avenue Railroad Company. Then it taxed the Brooklyn Traction Company for the stock held by it of the Atlantic Avenue Railroad Company.

Justice Gaynor holds that this is all wrong. If the Board of Assessors lose on the appeal it will mean a loss of about $50,000 to the city.

CORNELL'S SMALL LOT.

Valued by the City at $1, and Taxed 1 Cent a Year.

Comptroller Fitch has discovered a lot in this city valued at $1, and taxed at one cent a year. It is owned by John Cornell, and situated between Giles place and Fort Independence street in the annexed district. On the map it is indicated by a dot.

It was formerly a full building lot, but was taken away by the opening of Fort Independence road. As it fronts on the street, it is of some importance to adjoining property owners.

AGAINST THE "L" ROAD.

Judgments Granted by Justice Truax This Morning.

Justice Truax of the Supreme Court, today handed down a decision granting a judgment to Felix Rieger, owner of property at 235 First avenue, against the Manhattan Elevated Railroad Company for $1,000 damages for the easements taken by the Railroad Company.

Justice Truax also grants a judgment to Henry Gieschen, owner of property 2215 and 2217 Second avenue, against the Elevated road for $1,000, also for easements taken by the Company.

THEY STRIKE JUST LIKE MEN.

And Michaels's Girls Will Try the Boycott.

But They Are Shy About a Little Fun Being Poked at Them.

The strike of the girls at S. Michaels's baby cloak factory, 29 Greene street, is still on.

Eight of the girls, or about half of the force, walked out yesterday because, as they state, their wages had been reduced so low that they could not live.

They issued a little manifesto announcing their grievances, and warning all working girls not to accept employment from Michaels.

The Executive Committee of the strikers, composed of Rebecca Rollis, Jennie Hagen and Olga Watman met this morning and unanimously voted to conduct the remainder of the campaign strictly under the rose.

A reporter for "The Evening World" who was looking up the committee found the meeting-room on the second floor front of the apartment-house at 247 Monroe street. The woman who answered the reporter's knock declared that wasn't the place and slammed the door.

While the reporter was trying other apartments there was a suspicious rustling about in those particular rooms, and presently a young man came forth and asked the reporter to enter.

"Not a woman was in sight.

"This is the place, all right enough," said the young man. "But the girls are out."

"They must have gotten down the fire-escapes or the air-shaft."

"They have decided not to talk to the newspapers any more," continued the young man, who was smiling largely.

"You see, everybody is asking them now when they are going to tear up car-tracks and all that sort of thing."

The reporter tried to induce the young man to bring forth at least one of the Committee, as it seemed certain he could if he wanted to, but he was loyal to his orders.

The Committee had said that it would meet some time to-day at Mrs. Blum's, 116 Norfolk street, to declare a boycott against Michaels. Inquiries at that address failed to discover any knowledge of such a person as Mrs. Blum, so that is likely another ruse of the war.

A dark-haired young woman came out of Michaels as the reporter approached the factory, and posted a letter at the corner. She was stopped and asked about the strike. With a startled look cast in all quarters at once, she took to her heels and dashed up the stairs.

A man with a heavy voice blocked the way at the second floor, and after saying something that sent the girl scaling the upper stairs at still livelier bounds, referred the reporter to a lower office, where Mr. Michaels sat at a desk.

Mr. Michaels was irritated.

"We haven't got a strike," he said. "Eight of our girls have quit and we are not trying to fill their places. If we wanted to, we could advertise and get no end of them. This is the dull season anyway. Our foreladyis going on a vacation in a few days and we will close down altogether for a week or two. We have about twelve girls at work now, and that is all we need."

Mr. Michaels denied that the strikers had complained, and was not at all alarmed at the threat of boycotting.

STILL THREATENS MURDER.

Ernest Pietzsch Unable to Furnish Bonds to Keep the Peace.

CONEY ISLAND, L. I., July 21.—Ernst Pietzsch, until recently proprietor of the Arcade Hotel, was arraigned before Justice Finnerty to-day on the charge of threatening to kill Frederick Scoppe, his landlord.

Pietzsch was ejected from the hotel, owing to his failure to pay his rent. Mr. Scoppe held a mortgage on the property of Pietzsch, and sold the furniture on Wednesday last to satisfy the judgment. Pietzsch claims that Scoppe sold furniture which was not included in the mortgage. The two men met last night on the island, and Pietzsch said he would kill Scoppe if he did not return the furniture. He was arrested.

When arraigned before Justice Finnerty to-day, Pietzsch again said he would kill Scoppe if the furniture was not returned to him. Pietzsch is the man who spent his money so lavishly, and who was confined in the Flatbush Insane Asylum for a short time, it being thought he was insane.

Pietzsch was unable to furnish bonds to keep the peace, and was locked up.

TRIED TO SURPRISE TROOPS.

Soldier Shot in a Fight with a South Enid Mob.

(By Associated Press.)

WICHITA, Kan., July 21.—A clash and interchange of shots occurred between United States soldiers and a body of men from South Enid, O. T., near that town yesterday. The Enid men attempted to surprise the troops who were guarding the Rock Island Railway bridge, and in the melee which followed Corporal Graves was seriously wounded by a bullet in the left side. The soldiers dispersed the mob and arrested several rioters.

The excitement last night was unabated. Acting Gov. Lowe, of Oklahoma, who is on the scene, had restraining orders served on 250 citizens of South Enid to cease from participating in mobs or discussing the situation publicly.

A Lowell Mill Will Resume Work.

(By Associated Press.)

LOWELL, Mass., July 21.—The Lawrence Manufacturing Company to-day notified operators that the mill will begin running on half time next week. Employment will be given to 1,200. The Middlesex mills will close down some departments to-night, and all departments will be closed soon.

Sentinels Attacked in Alabama.

(By Associated Press.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 21.—Private Stallworth, of the Cowesh Guards, while on duty as a sentinel before daylight yesterday morning was stoned by eight men. He fired twice at them and the entire camp turned out. One man was captured. At the mines near Pratt City shots were fired at sentinels during the night. Three men were captured.

Shops at Albuquerque Closed.

(By Associated Press.)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 21.—The big shops of the Atlantic and Pacific road at this point were closed for an indefinite time to-day. About 400 men are thrown out of work. The order closing the shops states that the financial depression makes the step necessary as a direct result of the A. R. U. strike.

BULL FIGHT IN OHIO.

Battle to the Death on the Main Street of Beaver Dam.

(By Associated Press.)

LIMA, O., July 21.—At Beaver Dam last evening there was a genuine bull fight. Two farmers, living in the neighborhood, quarrelled. One had a Durham bull and the other a Jersey bull. For some time past they have indulged in a great deal of bantering as to who has the better animal. It was finally arranged that they pit the bulls against each other in a ring on the main street of the town.

After an hour and a half of fighting the Jersey bull came out victorious, having killed his opponent. Both animals were terribly lacerated.

A FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD HERO.

John Murray Risked His Own Life to Save Jessie Sinclair's.

Coroners' Office Neglect Again Glaringly Manifested.

The drowning of fourteen-year-old Ina Gunn yesterday while bathing in the Hudson River, near One Hundred and Forty-sixth street, and the subsequent removal of her body furnished another illustration of the delay and neglect that distinguishes the work of the Coroners' office.

The rescue of Jessie Sinclair, of One Hundred and Forty-fifth street and Eighth avenue, a cousin of the drowned girl, has won well-deserved praise for John Murray, fifteen years old, who risked his own life to save the girls, who had unwittingly ventured beyond their depth.

Ina Gunn's mother lives in Chicago. Soon after the death of the girl's father Ina came to this city to live with her cousin, Mrs. John Patterson, of 1642 Amsterdam avenue, who has no children, and wanted Ina for a companion.

Yesterday about noon Ina and her three cousins—Jessie, fourteen; Bella, seven, and Maggie Sinclair, five years old—were walking near the river. The heat impelled them to go in bathing. The two younger girls remained near the edge of the water, clinging to the shore. The edge of the bank at One Hundred and Forty-sixth street descends abruptly, and the water about five feet out is as many feet deep.

About two blocks further up the river Lewis and Thomas Murray of One Hundred and Forty-sixth street, near the Hudson River, were also in bathing. Thomas heard screams coming from the direction where the girls were in bathing and told his brother John that some one must be drowning.

Both ran down to One Hundred and Forty-sixth street and saw Jessie Sinclair struggling feebly to keep up, clinging to her right arm was Ina Gunn, who then seemed lifeless.

John Murray, because of his delicate health, had been warned by his mother not to venture too far into the river. Forgetful of this, he rushed into the water and swam towards the drowning girl. By the time John sprang into the water Jessie's cries had ceased and both girls were rapidly sinking, when the brave rescuer grabbed Jessie by the hair and struck out for the shore.

For a few seconds Ina clung to Jessie, but losing consciousness entirely, she let go and sank. After Jessie was landed safely on shore, Thomas worked hard to resuscitate her.

Samuel Hartman, fifteen years old, of One Hundred and Forty-third street and Eighth avenue, who was in bathing further down the river, was attracted to the spot. He said he saw Ina Gunn had gone down, and after diving several times, brought the body to the shore.

Policeman Harty, of the West One Hundred and Fifty-second street station, notified the Coroners' office at 3.30 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson were also notified, and went down and viewed the body of their cousin lying on the shore. They waited until 7 o'clock, and, as no Coroner put in an appearance, Mr. Patterson went in search of an undertaker, who, however, said he could not remove the body unless he had a permit from the Coroner. It was 1.30 o'clock this morning before a permit could be secured.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., BLAZE.

Caldwell House and a Big Business Block Burned.

(By Associated Press.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 21.—The immense four-story building occupied by the Perry & Mason Wholesale Shoe Company, and Stowers Wholesale and Retail Furniture Company, is in ashes. The loss on building and stock amounts to $250,000; insurance unknown.

The Caldwell Hotel, the handsomest building in the city, six stories high and supposed to be fire-proof, is also totally destroyed. It was valued with its furnishings at $500,000 and had an insurance of $175,000. It was owned by the Caldwell Company.

The Perry & Mason Building was owned by J. W. Johnson, of New York, ex-President of the Georgia Central Railroad.

Report of the Pioneer Collision.

Capt. Cameron, of the freight boat Pioneer, to-day helped with the steamboat inspectors a report of the collision which occurred off Franklin street on July 15, between his boat and the J. H. Schuyler. He says the Schuyler tore down upon him without blowing her whistle or giving any warning, and struck the Pioneer amidships on the port bow. He then reversed his engine and backed, but was too late to avoid a collision.

Has the Burned Bark in Tow.

What is left of the oil-laden bark Emma T. Crowell, which was burned on the night of July 17, is being brought to this city, a wrecking tug having her in tow, passing Fire Island just before noon.

THEY WILL RETALIATE.

American Fishermen to Ask for Legislation Against Canada.

From reports received in this city from New Yorkers who are spending the Summer at Alexandria Bay considerable feeling is being manifested by well-known American fishermen in opposition to the recent action of the Canadian Fish and Game Commissioner in regard to the enactment of the old Canadian law forbidding all non-residents of Canada to fish in Canadian waters or to land on Canadian islands without a permit or license.

This ill-feeling is growing warmer and warmer, and has already grown to such an extent that many prominent New Yorkers at Alexandria Bay have met together and appointed committees to look into the matter and, if necessary, ask Congress for retaliatory legislation.

Charles Steckler, the well-known New York lawyer, who is stopping at the Thousand Island House, has taken a leading part in the matter. To a reporter who interviewed him on the subject, he said:

"We are going to find some means of having this unjust measure abrogated, or we will ask Congress for retaliatory legislation. We will endeavor first to settle our differences before the Canadian Government at Ottawa, and if there an amicable agreement can be arrived at, all right; if not, retaliatory measures will be taken."

SUE FOR $11,000,000.

Russell Sage and Executors of Gould's Estate Defendants.

Kansas Pacific Bondholders the Plaintiffs.

Fraud Alleged to Have Been Committed Under a Deed of Trust.

The Kansas Pacific Bondholders' Committee, of which Silas P. Dutcher is chairman, has entered suit in the United States Circuit Court for New York in the name of John Quincy Adams against Russell Sage and the estate of Jay Gould to recover $11,000,000, being the proceeds of securities alleged to have been taken from the trust.

Under the deed of trust executed to Sage and Gould about $5,000,000 of the capital stock of the Denver Pacific Railroad Company was deposited with the trustees as collateral security for the payment of the Kansas Pacific Consolidated bonds. These securities have been, it is charged, taken out of the trust, and the proceeds applied by the trustees to their individual benefit.

The latter claimed to have obtained title to them through a suit which they instituted in the name of the Kansas Pacific Railway Company (which was controlled by them) against themselves. All that they alleged in these proceedings, it is contended, was that the Denver Pacific stock was of little value and that the mortgagor Company would like to have it.

Upon these allegations, and within a period of seven days, they obtained an order from Judge Donohue, of the New York Supreme Court, to take the trust stock out of the trust and turn it back to the railroad company. The Company thereupon, it is alleged, handed the stock or the proceeds thereof over to Gould and Sage, who, it is alleged, have retained it for their personal purposes.

The complaint in the suit also charges that the proceedings were null and void and that they gave no color of legality to the acts of Gould and Sage, who they now claim to be accountable for the trust property, which, with premiums, dividends and interest, now amounts, it is stated, to more than $11,000,000.

It is asked that Russell Sage and the executors of Gould be called upon to account for the funds, and that Sage and George J. Gould be removed from the trusteeship.

STILL ACCUSES DUDLEY.

Hellman Prefers Charges Against the Policeman at Headquarters.

Max Hellman, one of the firm of M. Hellman & Sons, wholesale butchers of 76 First avenue, who was fined $5 in Yorkville Court, yesterday morning, on a charge of annoying a young woman who gave the name of Bessie Colwell, appeared at Police Headquarters, this morning, to make a complaint against Policeman Dudley, of the East Thirty-fifth street squad, who arrested him.

Hellman says he caught the young woman just as she was about to jump into the river, and that he was taking her to the police station, when the policeman came up and led her away, but did not offer to take her to the station.

Hellman alleges that he followed Dudley and told him the woman should be locked up, and he says the policeman then clubbed him, and afterwards put him under arrest.

PLENTY OF SEALS NOW.

Col. Hall Says 20,000 May Be Killed per Year.

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—Col. E. T. Hall, Assistant United States Treasury Agent, who for a year past has been stationed on St. George Island, Behring Sea, to look after the seals, is in the city. He says about 2,500 seals have been taken from St. George Island this year, and enough more from St. Paul to make up the quota of 7,500 permitted to be killed by the Government.

"I think the seals are now increasing in these Northwestern waters," said Mr. Hall, "and that managed properly there will be no scarcity. Henceforth we will take 20,000 a year. We can kill this number and yet have an abundance."

BIT OFF HIS BROTHER'S LIP.

Patrick, Timothy and John O'Donnell Have a Serious Fight.

Patrick O'Donnell, twenty-six years old, of 223 East Forty-first street, who bit off the lip of his brother Timothy in a fight last night at their home, was held for examination this morning in Yorkville Police Court.

Patrick, Timothy and a third brother John quarrelled. Patrick, it is alleged, had insulted Tim's wife and Tim resented it, John taking sides with Patrick, who was under the influence of liquor. When Tim was down Patrick bit his lower lip.

Women Held for Examination.

In the Essex Market Police Court to-day Justice Feltner held Mrs. Regina Boer for examination on a charge of keeping a disorderly house at 38 Clinton street. The place was raided last night by Detectives Farrell and Brennen, of the Union Market station. They found Mrs. Boer, four-year-old boy and two women there. The women were held for examination and the boy was committed to the Gerry Society.
