LAUNDRYMAN WAH ASSAULTED.

Three Young Men Enter His Laundry and Rob His Till.

They Escape Upon the Arrival of Two Neighbors.

Sam Wah, an aged Chinese laundryman, of 19 Henry street, is nursing a cracked head to-day as the result of a murderous assault upon him by robbers. Wah and his nephew, Sam Wah, jr., were ironing shirts in the laundry at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a boy about sixteen years old, but very tall, and two other young men entered the place, one of them being a negro.

Without any ceremony, the boy went to the money-drawer and began filling his pockets with the pennies that were in the top compartment. Sam Wah grasped his iron tighter and demanded that the boy return the money and get out. For answer, the boy seized a stool and struck Wah a terrible blow on the head, which felled him to the floor. When he attempted to get up, he was struck in almost the same spot by an iron bar wielded by the negro.

Sam Wah, jr., had, at the first sign of disturbance betaken himself to the rear room, where he hid behind a curtain.

The elder Chinamen had made no outcry during all this time, although the blood was streaming from his wounds.

Two Italian barbers next door, who heard the noise, looked into the laundry, but sight of them the robbers walked leisurely into the street and as far as Catherine street, where they broke into a run.

Wah had his wounds dressed by Kwong Luing Jin, a Chinese doctor, of 8 Mott street. The police had no report of the affair up to 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Brauner Wants His Freedom.

Gustave Brauner, a barber, of 181 Orchard street, was before Justice Gaynor in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to-day on a writ of habeas corpus. He is under indictment in Brooklyn for arson, and has been in jail since March. The statute provides that a prisoner shall be tried not later than the next term subsequent to his indictment. The case was adjourned to give the District-Attorney an opportunity to put in a defense.
