THIS FIRE WAS A QUEER ONE.

Early Morning Blaze Whose Origin Is a Mystery.

Started in a Cloak Factory, but Was Soon Under Control.

Fire Marshal Mitchell will begin to-day an investigation of a blaze which broke out early this morning in the five-story building numbered 84 to 96 Canal street, and about the origin of which there is considerable mystery. The flames started at 1.20 o'clock on the second floor of No. 96, which is occupied by Edelson & Schwarz, manufacturers of cloaks and trousers.

All the workmen engaged by the firm left the building at 7 o'clock last evening and the windows and doors on that floor were firmly fastened. Apparently everything was then all right. One little jet of gas was left burning, as is customary. Beyond this, and the possibility of smouldering cigarettes, there was nothing to cause a blaze.

The floor overhead is occupied by I. S. Cohen and the fourth floor is used by Jacobs & Son. All are in the same business. Jacobs & Son have a watchman named Sam Weitzman, who sleeps in the place. He was awakened by the smell of smoke, and rushing to the windows on the Canal street side he shouted "Fire!" Then he started to run downstairs, but found escape cut off by the flames.

Roundsman Colton, of the Eldridge street station, heard his cries and ran to give an alarm. The fire-box at Canal and Eldridge streets was out of order, so he had to go to Forsyth and Division streets. When the firemen arrived Weitzman was taken down a ladder.

Everything on Edelson & Schwarz's floor was then burning, and for a time the firemen had a hard fight of it. The flames were finally subdued, after the jewelry store of A. D. Goldstein, in the basement, had been badly damaged by fire and water. None of the other floors was damaged, except by water and where the glass and skylights had been smashed by the firemen to let out the smoke.

Mr. Edelson told an "Evening World" reporter that he could not account for the fire in any way. He was insured, he said, for $4,000, but does not know in what companies. All that he said was attended to by an insurance broker named Tienberg, whose office is on Broadway. He said he had been many years in business, and never had a fire before, save three years ago, when there was a slight blaze in his dwelling-house, 21 Eldridge street. He valued his stock at more than $4,000.

"There are lots of Anarchists all around here," Mr. Edelson added, "but I don't know why they should burn our place. We are on good terms with our workmen."

The building is owned by the Samuel D. Babcock estate, and Agent M. L. Goldman, with his bookkeeper, Henry Berger, after inspecting the place, said the damage would be about $1,000. The police estimate is $150. Edelson & Schwarz claim to have lost over $4,000. The police think $800 a large estimate. J. D. Goldstein claims to have lost several hundred dollars. The police estimate his loss at $100.

Slashed with a Pocketknife.

Thomas Manery, eighteen years old, living in Morrisania, was removed to Harlem Hospital early this morning, suffering from severe stab wounds in the back and face, the result of a fight in Lane avenue, near Baring street, about 10 o'clock last night. Manery and an eighteen-year-old youth named Harry Hammer, quarrelled, and Hammer slashed Manery with a pocketknife. Hammer was arrested.

Sues the Third Avenue Road.

Suit has been commenced in the City Court by Paul Pischkalla of 229 East Eighty-ninth street, through his lawyer, Leopold W. Harburger, of 29 First street, against the Third Avenue Railroad Company for $2,000 damages. Pischkalla avers that on July 28 last he with six other people was transferred from the cable road which runs through One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street to the Third avenue line. When Pischkalla tendered the transfer ticket to the conductor on the Third avenue line it was refused. During the argument which ensued Pischkalla claimed that the conductor threw him out of the car, tearing his coat.
