THE PURE-BRED STALLION, ORIENTAL. DESCRIPTION. Keene Richards, importer of the stock, Georgetown, Kentucky. Sired by imported Australian. First dam, Transylvania, by imported Massoud, (Arabian). Second dam Pettona, by imported Glencoe. Sixth dam Lady Bolingbroke, by Pantaloon. Seventh dam Lady, by Wormley's King Herod. Eighth dam Primrose, by Dove. Ninth dam Sweet, by Othello. Tenth dam imported Selima, by the celebrated Arabian. FOR FURTHER PEDIGREE, SEE ENGLISH STUD BOOK. He makes his second season at A. Pasturage free; grain fed at reasonable charges, if desired. All accidents and escapes at risk of owner. Season will commence April 1, and end July 1. apr8 3m A. EAMES.

PEDIGREE OF SUNDOWN. A chestnut stallion, about to be taken to Lafayette county, Mo., by Michael Grady, the property of James J. O'Fallon, of St. Louis. Sundown, got by Uncle Vic, (he by Lexington out of Eudine by imported Yorkshire.) First dam, imported Sunny South by Irish Earl. Cadmus. Second dam, by Cecil. Third dam, Equitoe, by Emilius. Fourth dam, Maria, by Wheeler. Fifth dam, Gibelle Faire, by Hermes. Sixth dam, Vicissitude, by Pipator. Seventh dam, Beatrice, by Sir Peter Teazle. Eighth dam, Pyrrha, by Matchem. Ninth dam, Peacock Duchess, by Whitenose. Tenth dam, Mrs. Slamerkin, by Young Tree. Eleventh dam, by Lord Oxford's Arabian. See Bruce's stud-book 1st Vol. page 121. Sundown was foaled in 1865, and only ran in his three year old form, (1868.) He won at all distances from one to three mile heats, and won at Saratoga, Trog (three races in one day,) at St. Louis, and New Orleans, beating the best horses then on the turf, including Gulnare, Little Mac, Transit, Merrill, Sympathy, Endeavor, Vaux Hall, Boaster, Carrie Atkerton, &c. As a stallion Sundown was the stable companion of Pat Malloy, the Banshee and Planthegenet, and was certainly the equal of any of them. He was as fast as the Banshee, and she was only beaten three feet at Saratoga in a race of one½ miles, run at the rate 1:46¾, the best race ever run with full weight. We considered Sundown one of the best horses on the turf in America. He was bred by John R. Wiley, Lexington, Ky., and his pedigree cannot be surpassed. He has a splendid constitution, is very powerful, and must make a fine breeder for all purposes. JAS. J. O'FALLON. BASIL DUKE. The above thorough-bred stallion will make the present season at my table, two miles south of Dover, Mo., from Mar 31st to July 1st, 1871, and will serve mares at $6 each. Any mare not proving in foal can be replaced next season free of charge, should I retain or board her. feb25,6m n the M. GRADY.

Miscellaneous.

Are endorsed and prescribed by more leading Physicians than any other tonic or stimulant now in use. They are A SURE PREVENTIVE for Fever and Ague, Intermittents, Biliousness, and all disorders arising from Miasmatic causes. They are recommended as an anti-dyspeptic and in cases of indigestion are invaluable as an Appetizer and Recuperant, and in case of General Debility they have never in a single instance failed in producing the most happy results. They are particularly BENEFICIAL TO FEMALES, strengthening the body, invigorating the mind, and giving tone and elasticity to the whole system. The HOME BITTERS are compounded with the greatest care, and no Tonic Stimulant has ever been offered to the public SO PLEASANT TO THE TASTE, and at the same time combining so many remedial agents, endorsed by the medical fraternity as the best known to the Pharmacopeia. It costs little to give them a fair trial, and EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A BOTTLE. We ask every one to read the following certificates from many of the most eminent physicians in the country:

St. Louis, July, 1870.—James A. Jackson & Co. Gentlemen—As you have communicated to the medical profession the recipe of the "Home Bitters," it cannot, therefore, be considered as a secret or patent medicine, no patent having been taken for it. We have examined the formula for making the "Home Bitters," and unhesitatingly say the combination is one of rare excellence, all the articles used in its composition are the best of the class to which they belong, being highly Tonic, Stimulant, Stomachic, Carminative and slightly Laxative. The mode of preparing them is strictly in accordance with the rules of pharmacy. Having used them in our own private practice, we take pleasure in recommending them to all persons desirous of taking Bitters, as being the best Tonic and Stimulant now offered to the public.

U. S. Marine Hospital, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 8, 1870.—Jas. A. Jackson & Co. I have examined the formula for making the "Home Stomach Bitters," and used them in this Hospital for the last four months. I consider them the most valuable tonic and stimulant now in use. H. MELCHER.

St. Louis, July 6, 1870.—Jas. A. Jackson & Co. Having examined the formula from which your celebrated "Stomach Bitters" are prepared and having witnessed the method of combining the different ingredients, we can safely recommend them as the best tonic with which we are acquainted. From the great care with which the components are selected, and from the choice materials which enter into them, we have no doubt that they will prove, as they deserve to be, the most popular tonic and stimulant in use. Respectfully, yours,

They are very scientifically and pleasantly combined and as stimulating tonics will be found especially adapted as correlorants to the treatment of the chronic debilitated stages of the system, whether arising from impaired digestion or from malarious diseases.

MORNING MEDITATIONS

Let Taylor preach upon a morning breeze,
How well to rise while nights and larks are flying.
For my part, getting up seems not so easy
By half as lying.

What if the lark now carols in the sky,
Soaring beyond the sight to find him out—
Wherefore am I to rise at such a fly,
I'm not a trout.

Talk not to me of bees and such like hums,
The smell of sweet herbs at the morning prime,
Only lie long enough, and bed becomes
A bed of time.

To me Dan Phœbus and his car are nought
His steeds that paw impatiently about—
Let them enjoy, say I, as horses ought,
The first turn-out.

Right beautiful the dewy meads appear,
Besprinkled by the rosy-fingered girl:
What then—if I prefer my pillow biet
To early pearl!

My stomach is not ruled by other men's,
And grumbling for a reason, quantly begs
Wherefore should master rise before the hens
Have laid their eggs?

Why from a comfortable pillow start,
To see faint flashes in the east awaken
A fig, say I, for any streaky part,
Excepting bacon.

An early riser Mr. Gray has shown,
Who need to haste the dewy grass among,
To meet the sun upon the upland lawn—
Well—he died young.

With charwomen such early hours agree,
And sweeps that earn betimes their bit and sup,
But I'm no climbing boy, and need not be
All up—all up!

So here I lie, my morning calls deferring,
Till something nearer to the stroke of noon—
A man that's fond precociously of stirring,
Must be a spoon.

CHIEF JUSTICE CHASE.

His Views on the Democratic "New Departure."

ITS IMPORTANCE AND INFLUENCE.

Democrats will Accept it throughout the Country.

MR. CHASE SUPPORTS IT.

The Republican Party Cannot Restore Amity.

Misrepresentation of the South and the Southern Leaders.

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald.]

CINCINNATI, June 22, 1871.

Years ago, when Salmon P. Chase came to Cincinnati, his reception was of that character which is always given a man whom the people recognize as a leader. He was received with proper honors at the railroad depot. His rooms at the hotel were constantly overrun with visitors, and he was always given an opportunity to address the masses. The times have changed. Mr. Chase, with the additional honors of chief-justice upon him, comes and goes, and nobody seems to take particular notice of him. The local papers announce his arrival in the city column, just as they would the arrival of a corn doctor or some traveling montebank. As late as 1868 there was such a thing in this State as "Chase Republicans," but they have well nigh ceased to exist, and now you can scarcely get a man to confess that he ever was a "Chase Republican." During his recent visit here, the chief justice kept himself very retired. After staying a few days at the hotel, he accepted the hospitalities of a rich, retired merchant a few miles from the city. Here he remained in comparative seclusion, seeing only a few old personal friends, and consulting with Wash. McLean, and some of the leaders of the "new departure" movement.

Your correspondent, having known the chief-justice in other and more prosperous days, was favored with an interview. It was just after breakfast, and I found Mr. Chase reading the morning papers. He is greatly changed in appearance. His figure is still tall, erect and commanding, but he has grown so thin that his clothes seem to hang loosely upon him. They look as if they had been made for another man. His large, expressive eyes are sunken in his head, and with his heavy, shaggy eyebrows, he reminds you of Daniel Webster in his riper years. There is a visible nervousness of manner about the chief-justice which makes you feel anything but comfortable in his presence, and yet when he talks he seems quite at ease.

"How is your health, Mr. Chief Justice?" I asked as we shook hands.

"Pretty good," he replied, with an effort at cheerfulness: "that is, better than it has been." After a few seconds' hesitation he said, "I am so much in the habit of saying that my health is good that I sometimes forget that I have been an invalid, and am only just recovering. Still I am much better than I have been, and I hope this summer to regain my strength."

"You are on your way to Michigan," I said, "for your health?"

"Yes; I am going to try some springs there that have been recommended to me very highly. They are reported to possess great efficacy."

Here the chief-justice fell into a sort of reverie. After staring at vacuity for a few minutes he suddenly recollected himself and inquired what the news was.

"The absorbing news here," I replied, "seems to be the sudden and tragic death of Vallandigham."

"Yes, that was very sad indeed. Just at this time, I think it is unfortunate. Vallandigham was a man of great ability and undoubted courage. Even when I had occasion to differ with him politically, (which, I am free to say, I do not now), I always admired his courage. There are a few of our public men who possess this quality in a greater degree."

"Do you think Vallandigham's death will have any serious effect upon the 'new departure' movement, of which he was the author?"

"No, sir, I do not. That is sure to go on until it covers the whole country. I don't remember any political movement that has made so deep an impression upon parties and and upon the country as the one which may be said to have been inaugurated by Mr. Vallandigham. Had he lived, it would naturally have given him great influence not only with the Democracy, but with the honest thinking men of all parties; for this movement, I think, commends itself to the best men in the Republican party as well as the Democratic."

"I have heard some Republicans, Mr. Chief Justice, say that had Vallandigham lived he would probably have come over to the Republican organization. What do you think of it?"

"Oh, no, that's a great mistake. All the Republicans would have come over to him; there would have been no occasion for him going to them. Mr. Vallandigham fortunately discovered what many Republicans had been looking for—a platform upon which the honest, patriotic men of both parties could come together." After a brief silence, the chief-justice added thoughtfully, "It is only a question of time."

"Then you think some of the Republicans will join the 'new departure' movement.

"Well, yes; I think they will. It looks to me like the nucleus of a new party. There are a great many people who are dissatisfied with both parties. They are anxious for a new order of things. The war is over and the people want peace. The Republican party, or at least some of its leaders, seem bent upon perpetuating the memories of the war, and thus keeping alive the feeling of hatred and sectionalism which engendered it. This is destructive to the best interests of both sections. Some of the Democrats, on the other hand, refuse to accept the results of the war, but I don't believe their numbers are formidable at all."

At first the chief justice made no reply to this statement, but after awhile he said: "Davis has been acting very foolishly of late in making speeches. I rather think he has been misrepresented, to some extent, by the reporters, but he would have done better to have pursued the course he did at first and have refused to make speeches. Davis, Stephens and Toombs represent but a small class of Southern people. I believe the masses of them accept the results of the war in good faith. You see some of the most influential of the southern newspapers repudiate the utterances of these men."

"What effect will the 'new departure' movement have upon the election of President in 1872?"

"I should think it would have a very great influence upon that election. A great deal depends upon the candidates and the platforms. If the Democrats nominate a good man who will command the popular confidence, and place him upon the 'new departure' platform, he will, I think, stand a good chance of being elected. There is a great deal of dissatisfaction with the Republican party. Many people who are anxious for peace believe that we cannot have peace between the North and South while the Republican party remains in power. Before the harmony between the two sections is restored there must be general amnesty proclaimed. Now, while there are a number of prominent men in the Republican party—men like Greeley and Butler—who favor general amnesty, the mass of the leaders of the party are against it. You remember last winter, how Congress refused to pass an amnesty bill?"

"The Republicans seem to be concentrating upon Grant as their candidate. What will the Democrats do?"

"I don't know. There are a number of good men whose names have been mentioned, any one of whom would make an able president. I suppose the Republicans will renominate Grant. They don't seem to have any great number of available candidates."

"They think Grant is their strongest man?"

"Well, so he is, I suppose; and yet I understand there is considerable opposition among some of the Republicans to his renomination."

"The Republicans lay a great deal of stress upon the fact that he has collected the revenue; paid off the debt, and settled the Alabama question?"

"The secretary of the treasury, I think, deserves quite as much credit for collecting the revenue and paying off the debt as the president. Gov. Boutwell has been very fortunate in his management of the treasury. But, after all, it is the people who pay off the deb
