THE STORY OF LIFE.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

Say what is life? 'Tis to be born:
A helpless Babe, to greet the light
With a sharp wail, as if the morn
Foretold a cloudy noon and night!
To weep, to sleep, and weep again,
With sunny smiles between; and then?

And then space the infant grows
To be a laughing, prating boy,
Happy, despite his little woes,
Where he but conscious of his joy:
To be, in short, from two tollers,
A merry, moody Child; and then?

And then, in coat and trousers clad,
To learn to say the Decalogue,
And break it as soon as taught Lad,
With mirth and mischief of all sort;
A truant of by field and flood
To capture butterflies; and then?

And then, increased in strength and size,
To be anon, a Youth full-grown;
A hero in his mother's eyes,
A young Apollo in his own;
To imitate the ways of men
In fashionable sins; and then?

And then, at last, to be a Man;
To fall in love; to woo and wed;
With seething brain to scheme and plan;
To gather gold, or toil for bread;
To sue for fame with tongue or pen,
And gain or lose the prize; and then?

And then is gray and wrinkled Old,
To mourn the speed of life's decline;
To praise the scenes his youth beheld,
And dwell in memory of lang-syne;
To dream awhile with darkened ken,
Then drop into his grave; and then?

LOVE.

I loved him as young ocains love,
When its own wild and radiant heaven
Of starry thoughts burns with the light,
The love, the life, by passion given:
I loved him, too, as woman loves
Reckless of sorrow, sin, or scorn,
Life had no evil destiny
That with him I could not have borne,
That love nursed in palaces,
Yet earth had not a spot so drear
That I should not have thought a home
In paradise, had he been near!

AN ORIGINAL OBITUARY NOTICE.

The editor of the Colorado Herald had occasion to leave town for two or three days, and he committed his paper, during his absence, to the charge of a young man, a novice in journalism, whom he had just engaged as his assistant. Before leaving, he instructed the ambitious young editor not to permit any chance to go unimproved to force the paper and the very small size of the subscription price upon the attention of the public.

"Always keep before your mind the fact that the object of this paper is to extend its circulation," he said; "and whenever you see a chance to insert a puff of the Herald in any notice you make, pile it on as thick as you can. Keep the people stirred up all the time, you understand, so that they will believe the Herald is the greatest sheet in this United States."

The parting tear was shed, and the editor left. The following night, while he was far away from home, his wife died very suddenly. Upon the assistant devolved the duty of announcing the sad intelligence to the public. He did it as follows:

"GONE, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN.

"We are compelled, this morning, to perform a duty which is peculiarly painful to the able assistant editor, who has been engaged on this paper at an enormous expense, in accordance with our determination to make the Herald a first-class journal. Last night death suddenly and unexpectedly snatched away from her domestic hearth (the best area advertised under the head of Stoves and Furnaces, upon our first page) Mrs. Agatha P. Birns, wife of Rufus P. Burns, the gentlemanly editor of the Herald. Terms, three dollars a year, invariably in advance. A kind mother, and an exemplary wife. Office, over Coleman's grocery, up two flights of stairs. Knock hard. We shall miss thee, mother, we shall miss thee. Job printing solicited. Funeral at half-past four, from the house just across the street from the Herald office. Gone to be an angel now. Advertisements inserted for ten cents a line."

Well, the editor arrived home that day at noon. Slowly and sadly he was observed to arm himself with a double-barreled fowling-piece, into which he inserted about two pounds and a half of bullets. He marched over to the office, followed by an immense crowd. The assistant editor at that moment was busy in painting a big placard, to be tacked on the hearse. It bore the legend: "Buy your coffins of Simms, over the Herald office." The assistant editor cast his eye around, and perceived his chief. Care sat upon that wan cheek, and thunder clothed his brow. He leveled his gun. The assistant did not wait. With one wild and awful yell, he jumped from the second-story window, and struck out for the golden shores of the Pacific. It is believed he swam over to China. But the Herald has only one editor now, and the clerk has standing orders to blow out the brains of any man bringing obituary notices to that paper.

WHAT ARE THEY GOOD FOR?

A young prince used often to wonder for what purpose God had made flies and spiders, as he could not see, he said, what use they were to men; and if he had the power to kill them all, he would. One day, after a battle, he was obliged to hide from his enemies; and, wandering about in a wood, he lay down beneath a tree and fell asleep. A soldier passing by, who belonged to the enemy, was quietly drawing near with his sword to kill the prince, when suddenly a fly stung his lip and woke him. Seeing his danger, he sprang to his feet and escaped.

That night the prince again hid himself in a cave in the same wood, and during the night a spider wove her web across the entrance. Two soldiers belonging to the army which had defeated him, and who were looking for the prince, passed the cave in the morning, and the prince heard their conversation. "Look," cried one of them, "he is surely concealed in this cave." "No," replied the other, "that is impossible; for if he had gone in there, he would have brushed down the spider's web at the entrance." When they had gone away, the prince raised his hands and his eyes to heaven, and thanked God for yesterday saving his life by means of a fly, and now again by a spider, and acknowledged that the ways and works of God are perfectly good and wise.

The young prince learned a very useful lesson. Twice did insects save his life from his enemies.

IN THE SURF.

A good joke happened to a fresh Philadelphian the other day. He prides himself somewhat on his shape and other recommendations to female notice. He donned his suit and stalked gallantly into the surf, intending to show people how it is done. He had not been there long, however, before his keen eyes espied a charming girl struggling all alone in the breakers, and, with the gallantry that distinguishes him, essayed to learn her to swim. She very thankfully accepted the kind offer, and the result was that quite a diversion ensued. Quoth our Philadelphia friend: "Are you staying at the Stockton, Miss—" "Murphy," with a sly glance upward. "Miss Murphy—ah! You are stopping at the—" "Stockton; yes, sir." "Ah! Are your parents with you?" "No, sir." "Your brother, possibly?" "No, sir." "Ah, I have it; you are here with your friends?" "No, sir," a very perceptible smile breaking over her countenance. "Excuse my seeming impertinence, Miss Murphy, but I am extremely anxious to know in what capacity you are here." "I am in the bath-house, sir."—[Cape May Correspondence.

THE IMPROVED
EMPIRE
SEWING
MACHINE.
Is a Shuttle, Lock-Stitch Machine.
HOW MADE.
It has a straight shaft running from the hand or balance wheel to the needle bar. It throws the needle-bar with a grooved cam attached to this shaft, in which plays the small roller attached to the needle-bar. It has a crank attached to the shaft which works the rocker shaft underneath; the shuttle is driven by a crank attached to the rocker shaft. The feed wheel is moved by a roller worked by a cam on the rocker shaft. It has a revolving tension wheel, regulated by a thumb screw. The take up is the needle-bar raising the thread passing through it. A small stack wire on the face plate keeps the thread constantly tight.

ADVANTAGES.
1.—The direct action given to the needle-bar gives more power and less lateral motion than wear, and of course less friction, which makes it run easy.
2.—The tension being set so there are eighteen inches of thread between it and the needle, the elasticity of the thread enables it to pass uneven and rough places and insures an even and regular tension.
3.—We can tie a knot in the thread at the spool of No. 60, Coats' cotton and it will sew past it without breaking, with a No. 1 needle; fight size for 60 cotton.
4.—Our machine is made of the best material and superior workmanship, and will do good work for 25 years, with reasonable usage.

AN OLD STORY MADE NEW.

The plea of Mr. Whittlemore, urged so dismorously to his client by Gen. Butler, that the cadet money all went to the poor, has revived the story of the miller who sometimes had crazy fits, in which he always imagined himself to be the Lord judging the world.

On these occasions he would put on a paper crown, ascend a pile of meal bags with great dignity, and call his neighbors in succession. The same once always judged, and these were the millers in his vicinity.

The first summoned was Hans Schmidt.

"Hans Schmidt, stand opp?"

"Hans, vat ish peen your pishness in dat oder world?"

"I was a miller, O Lort."

"Vas you a loyal man?"

"Yell, ven de vater vas low and de pishness ish pat, O Lort, sometimes I takes a little extra doles."

"Yell Hans, you shall go over mit de goats already yet."

And so in succession all were tried and immediately sentenced to go over to the goats.

Last of all, the miller inevitably tried himself in the following style:

"Yacob, vat ish peen your pishness in de oder world?"

"I was a miller, O Lort."

"Vas you always a loyal man, Yacob?"

"Yell, O Lort, ven de vater was a leetle low, and pishness vas pad, I sometimes take a little extra doles; but, O Lort, I all de vile give dose extra doles to the poor."

After a long pause, "Yell, Jacob Miller, you can go ofer mit ter the sheep—but it was a dam tight squeeze."

GUNPOWDER AND PESTILENCE.—Gunpowder has been sometimes used as a desperate remedy by sick men to cure their ills. The remedy has proved effectual, but with the trifling drawback that the disease and the patient pass away together. Mr. Hardee, of Florida, now proposes to improve on the old practice by shooting the disease instead of the sufferer. His theory is that cholera, yellow fever, and other epidemics, are caused by animalculæ in the air, and that concussion of the atmosphere will destroy them. For the city of Charleston, now plagued with yellow fever, he would use a ton of powder every night, commencing at 9 P. M., with five pounds for every combustion in the street, and smaller quantities in the rooms and cellars. He is willing to blow himself up, if he can't kill the fever in ten days.
