HUGHES SPEAKS ON AMERICANISM

Takes Up Preparedness and Protective Tariff at Three San Francisco Meetings

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—Charles E. Hughes reached his farthest West here yesterday. Before three audiences in this city he spoke of dominant Americanism, preparedness and his belief in the need for a protective tariff.

Mr. Hughes reached San Francisco at 1 o'clock, went to his hotel through crowds which applauded him along the way, held a reception shortly afterward and made the first of his addresses before the Union League Club at 3 o'clock. He hurried back to his hotel, and there addressed a meeting of women voters. Last night he addressed a mass meeting in the civic auditorium, which was presided over by William H. Crocker, Republican national committeeman from California.

Mrs. Hughes has a busy day of speech making before him here and at Oakland to-day. In addition he is expected to continue conferences looking to the restoration of harmony between California Progressives and Republicans. His program called for four addresses three in this city and one at Oakland.

In addressing the women voters, Mr. Hughes repeated his conviction that the suffrage issues should be speedily decided and the vote granted to women throughout the country by amendment to the Federal Constitution. He reiterated his reasons for wishing this done, assailed the administration for waste and extravagance, and declared that under proper leadership it would be possible for America to achieve all its ideals.

Republican Party Coming Back

"The Republican party, reunited and reconstructed in this campaign, stands for those ideals and the method of their attainment, and as a great liberal party is coming back to its own."

In his address before the Union League Club, Mr. Hughes spoke chiefly of the protective tariff, reiterating his convictions that it was necessary for upbuilding American industries and that its enactment and enforcement should be interested to the Republican party.

Between addresses Mr. Hughes conferred with Republican and Progressive leaders here in the interest of party harmony. The nominee confined his suggestions to a plea for co-operation among Republicans and Progressives. In so doing Mr. Hughes said that he did not propose to interfere in the State's local affairs, but that he wanted all elements of both these parties to work together in the interest of the national ticket.

Among the leaders who conferred with the nominee were Chester H. Rowell of the Republican national campaign committee, who joined the Hughes party yesterday on its way from Portland to this city; Francis V. Keesling, chairman of the Republican State central committee, and William H. Crocker, national committeeman. Messrs. Kessling and Crocker met the Hughes train before it reached San Francisco and conferred with the nominee en route.

Mr. Hughes was met at the Oakland Mole by a delegation of San Francisco Republicans and was escorted across the bay. At the ferry building a brass band was on hand and led the automobile parade to the Palace Hotel, where the nominee was given the presidential suite.

UNCLE SAM IS ASKING FOR STENOGRAPHERS

We Have Just Received This:

"The U. S. Civil Service Commission announces that it has been unable to supply the demand for male stenographers in the governmental service, especially at Washington, D. C. Young men who are willing to accept appointment at an entrance salary of $900 to $1,000 per annum have excellent opportunities. Advancement is reasonably rapid. Occasionally appointments are made at $1,200.

"The government service offers a desirable field to bright and ambitious young men."

Every time examinations are held in this city we receive a similar communication from the Civil Service Commission. Bright young people who want to get into pleasant, paying positions should enter our classes Monday, September 4th.

Fashions in Skirts u an Interesting Subject

The fashion editor of the Woman's Home Companion says in the September issue:

"Let me tell you of the skirt situation. The hip fullness has surely started on a downward course. Plaited effects are the style. Plaits are introduced to give the straighter figure line, but without cutting out any of the fullness at the skirt edge.

"I assure you, however, there is nothing monotonous about the new plaited skirts. There are loose plaits, pressed plaits, side plaits, and wide and narrow box plaits. Some of these skirts are made with yokes, and then again the plaited effect is often broken with a panel.

"Plaited plaid skirts will be worn with tailored jackets of plain cloth, while velvet jackets will be worn with skirts of satin or broadcloth.

"The skirt with the high waist line is here. You know I said there was a tendency toward Empire styles.

"Paris—to be particular, the house of Martial et Armand—has introduced a skirt with a wide, straight front breadth mounted up to the corsage onto a three-inch belt which fits the waist closely. To the lower edge of this belt, the material is gathered over a thick cord, and then hangs perfectly straight. There are straight side breadths, and a wide back breadth in which the closing is concealed."
