UNDER THE MICROSCOPE.

"TRUTH ABOUT THE CHOLERA."

Dr. Koch's Interview with a "Gaulois" Correspondent—Dissenting Views of French Physicians.

A Herald cable dispatch says: The Gaulois to-day (Friday) publishes the following interview with Dr. Koch:

Toulon, July 9—5:30 evening.—Appended is an exact report of an interview I had last night with Dr. Koch and his assistant, Dr. Libertz, of Frankfort:

"Are you off to Marseilles, Doctor?"

"Yes; there is no more for me to do here. I have quite made up my mind. All the post-mortems I have made confirm the results of my first investigation, which put the Asiatic character of the scourge beyond question. I have found some phenomena, as in the cases which I investigated in India."

"Were the microbes identical?"

"Precisely. I found numbers in the body of that soldier, Besnard, whose post-mortem I made on Sunday evening. Indeed, I found more than I had seen in Egypt. Messrs. Strauss and Roux, who were standing by, also recognized the presence of the Indian microbe in Egypt, but had always seen it mixed with others; whereas in post-mortems that I have made here the Indian microbes outnumbered the others immensely."

MICROBES IN EPIDEMIC TIMES.

"Where do you find the microbes in times of epidemics?"

"The microbe is rarely met with in the stomach. The disorders of the digestive organs and the gastric disorders are not favorable to it, so it takes refuge in the small intestines, where it can easily multiply."

"What mischief does the microbe do in the intestines?" the Doctor was asked.

"First, its presence causes diarrhœa and vomiting, leading to thickening and chilling of the blood; then it secretes an intoxicating poison, which causes the dry, instantaneous cholera in the original cholera—foudroyant sec—that is, cholera without diarrhœa."

"With such precise information as this, Doctor, surely one should soon be able to destroy the microbe?"

"No doubt; but I have nothing to do with cures; I am a mere observer; let others profit by my observation and suggestions. I have already told you that contamination is not caused by air, but by absorption of microbes infecting food, especially water and solid food introduced into the digestive tubes."

BOILED WATER IS SAFE.

"I presume that explains why this afternoon you advised the members of the Sanitary Committee to shut up the wells and counsel the people to drink boiled water, or water from non-infected places, or light mineral waters?"

"Yes. It also explains the necessity of taking only well-cooked food, peeled fruits, vegetables, and preserves. Remember, microbes die if exposed to a high and especially to a dry temperature."

"Will you kindly explain your theory, to enable me to repeat it?"

"With pleasure. I hold that microbes are transmissible only by excrement or objects soiled by excrement. Consequently the first precaution to take is to subject the linen of cholera patients to heat, hot air, and phenic acid more or less concentrated. Microbes cannot live in concentrated solutions of phenic acid or in a dry atmosphere. Remember, they develop and multiply in the damp. They have been found in ponds in cholera countries."

THE EFFECT OF DRYNESS.

"Would a great storm of wind—the mistral, for instance—destroy microbes in apartments, linen, &c.?"

"Yes, certainly; no soiled object is the least dangerous when once it is dry, for the microbe has become powerless to reproduce itself: indeed, it is dead."

"One more question," said your correspondent; "it is this: Did the theory of the destruction of the microbe by dryness lead you to advise the closing up and drying of contaminated apartments for several days?"

"Yes, and to pronounce the disinfecting of luggage, letters, and travellers ineffectual. I cannot understand how any faith was ever put in it."

"How about watering streets and the boulevards?"

"The practice is dangerous. It favors the conditions needed for the reproduction and propagation of microbes."

"Then it would be preferable to leave the streets dry and dusty?"

"Certainly."

ORIGIN OF THE CHOLERA.

"What is your opinion regarding the origin of the present epidemic?"

"I think I may say that, considering the precautions taken by the naval authorities, cholera was imported on some merchant ship, probably English. They do not scruple on English vessels to hide deaths which occur on voyages or to falsify logs."

"Of course," said I, "you disapprove of crowds altogether?"

"All public fêtes and fairs, and consequently the fête of July 14th should be forbidden."

Gaulois correspondent adds:

"Several French doctors to whom I talked of the above conversation made the following remarks: 'The inoculation of various animals with Asiatic microbes did not give them cholera; hence some doctors doubt whether Dr. Koch's microbes are the real cause of the cholera. If inoculated animals fell ill it would be easy to discover the means of killing cholera and the microbe, like other insects, tape-worms for instance.'"

The Franco-Chinese Troubles.

[By cable to the Dispatch.]

LONDON, July 12.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Times says: Sir Robert Hart, the Chinese Customs Inspector, is trying to negotiate with M. Patenotre, French Minister. The Foreign Consul seems blind to the dangers of a war of rebellion. Prince Chun trusts to boasting fanatics and to officials who conceal the defenceless condition of the coast. Ignorance, confusion, and treachery render the situation most critical. The British officers have left the Chinese fleet.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

WASHINGTON, July 12.—About half-past 8 o'clock this evening, as Train No. 7 from Martinsburg, W. Va., due at Washington at 8:12 P. M., was entering the city on a "Y" switch, it collided with train No. 2, west-bound, from Baltimore, and due at Washington at 8:00. Train No. 7 was twenty-four minutes late, but the other train was on time. The west-bound train was shown a white light, but a red light should have been shown to the Martinsburg train to detain it till the other train had safely passed the switch. Whether this light was shown will have to be determined by investigation. Michael Riley, engineer of the Martinsburg train, was killed, and his fireman, Solomon Rogers, badly injured. The engineer and fireman of the other train escaped with slight injuries. No one else was killed.

The injured were as follows: David Drill, of Pittsburgh, express agent, badly injured in the legs; James Gallaher, of Pittsburgh, legs broken; R. A. Tucker, of Washington, slightly injured; Baggage-Master H. E. Carter, hurt internally.

The wreck of the rolling stock was complete, and it seemed almost a miracle that so few persons were injured. The engines were locked together, and a passenger-car that had been telescoped completely covered them. The loss to the company will be heavy.

My Love and I.

We loved each other, my love and I:
And the wind sighed low through the tasseled corn,
The bobolink sang in the dewy morn,
And the brook ran merrily by.

We loved each other, my love and I;
And the quail piped low 'mid the yellow corn,
We heard in the distance the huntsman's horn,
And the leaves were brown and dry.

We looked to the future, my love and I;
The future so crowded with hopes and fears,
That turns our smiles so often to tears,
As the days pass wearily by.

He spoke of the time when we two should dwell
Together beneath fair southern skies,
Where the rose in its fragrance never dies,
And love hears no parting knell.

The corn was garnered long years ago,
The bobolink's song is heard no more;
Only a shadow falls through the door
Where he used to come and go.

The sea is wide, and it lies between
My love and I, my love and I;
Where the flowers bloomed dead leaves now lie,
And the grass o'er his grave is green.

FOUR PERSONS CREMATED

And Four Others Seriously Injured.

A Bradford (Pa.) telegram says: A fire on Washington street, this city, early Friday morning, the flames spread so rapidly that four persons—two women and two children—were unable to get out of their rooms, and were burned to death. Two young ladies and two men were seriously burned while making their escape, and seven business-blocks and two dwellings were totally destroyed.

The fire started in the Reibly House, owned by Mrs. Charles Reibly, and it is supposed to have originated in the basement belonging to the establishment. When Mrs. Reibly awoke she found the flames all about her, and immediately started to rescue her children, who slept in an adjoining apartment. Her room-mate, Miss Gerwitz, jumped through the window, and received injuries that may prove serious, though not necessarily fatal. Mrs. Reibly was suffocated, it is presumed, and fell to the floor before she could reach her children. Thomas Clark, a brave employé of the water-works, was stopping at Reibly's and heard the first alarm. He sprang out of the rear entrance, with his coat and vest in his hand. He knew of the presence of the other lodgers in the building, and at once set about the work of rescue. He placed a ladder against the window, and, notwithstanding the flames, which almost surrounded him, he caught hold of Mrs. Reibly's arm. In trying to pull her out the cuticle of the arm stripped off like a stocking, and he was obliged to lean in the window to secure a fresh hold. All the time he was being drenched with water, and he thinks if the poor woman had not pulled back he could have saved her life.

When the building was reduced to ashes Clark began his search for the remains of the victims, and succeeded in gathering the charred and blackened bodies of two children and the servant-girl Helen. They were taken to the dead-house in boxes. The lower limbs of the girl were burned off to the knees and the greater part of the head was missing. Following is a list of the dead: Mrs. Charles Reibly, Mary Reibly, aged six; Lizzie Reibly, aged five; Helen Johnson, servant-girl. The following is a list of the injured: Mary Tourbey, severely burned about head and body; H. Garwich, Mrs. Reibly's father, seriously burned; Lena Gerwitz, severely burned about arms, body, and head; John Holden, barber, badly burned about head, back, and feet.

It now appears probable that the obligations of the late W. R. McGill, said to have been fraudulently contracted, will reach $100,000. It has been discovered that his method was to repeat genuine notes given in his favor and use them to obtain loans. It has been found that one note was repeated six times. He expected to come into the receipt of a large amount of money upon the completion of the Cincinnati and Eastern road to Portsmouth in a few weeks, when it is supposed he would have cleared up the whole matter. There is nothing wrong with his railroad accounts. The alleged crooked transactions were all personal.

CUTICURA.

MIRACLES OF HEALING UNPARALLELED IN MEDICAL HISTORY.

"I have been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s psoriasis, and others leprosy, commencing on my scalp, and in spite of all I could do, with the help of the most skilful doctors, it slowly but surely extended, until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there could be nearly a dust-pan full of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything almost that could be thought of, without any relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit, and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One Dr. —— treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs, feet badly swollen, toenails came off, fingernails dead and hard as bone, hair dead, dry, and lifeless as old straw. O, my God! how I did suffer.

"My sister had a small part of a box of Cuticura in the house. She wouldn't give up, said, 'We will try Cuticura.' Some was applied on one hand and arm. Eureka! there was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP. I commenced by taking one tablespoonful of Resolvent three times a day after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat, used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura morning and evening. Result, returned to my home in just six weeks from time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper.
