GOSSIP OF POLITICS.

The managers of the Republican Club, No. 459 Fifth avenue, are so confident of carrying the State that they are making elaborate preparations for a banquet to "Gov. Odell" at 7.30 P. M. Nov. 7, the night after the election.

E. A. Newell, Chairman of the House Committee of the Republican Club, says there will be 200 plates, and the expense is unlimited. Senator Depew, President of the club, will have Odell on his right and Woodruff on his left. Platt will come on Odell's right, and so on.

"I did the same thing two years ago, and we dined Lieut.-Gov. Woodruff. I am just as sure now."

"What if Odell is not elected? Well, then we will have no dinner and the club will bear the expense."

Dogberry sits on the Election Board in the Eleventh Election District of the Twenty-sixth Assembly District. When Thomas Copek, a well-known lawyer, went to register, he said he was born in Bohemia. Dogberry said: "Oh, then you are an Austrian?" "No, sir; I'm a Bohemian," replied Copek. Whereupon Dogberry announced that the board would register him as an Austrian or not at all. It took a mandamus from Justice Freedman to make this Election Board Dogberry register him as a Bohemian.

All Harlem is immersed in politics just now, and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street is a continuous political meeting nightly, from end to end. Ex-Senator and defeated Gubernatorial Candidate Clarence Lexow, of Nyack, was the star at the tent "Camp McKinley," at the Seventh avenue corner, last night. Ike Hooper's stereopticon threw epigrams from Bryan's speeches on a canvas between Seventh and Lenox avenues. A Prohibition orator declaims nightly for Woolley and Metcalf from a plains wagon at the Lenox avenue corner. George Black, the famous 16-to-1 Club President, backed by its 600 members, spouts from a truck at the Fourth avenue corner, and there's a meeting every night at Camp Odell, on the Lexington avenue corner.

• • •

Len Wager is wandering around like a lost soul with a hat full of $500 bills in his trousers pocket. He is looking for the man who wanted to bet 5 to 1 that McKinley would carry Ohio. "I've got $5,000 of a friend's money to put against $20,000 that McKinley will not carry his own State," says Wager; "find the man and I'll give you a percentage."

• • •

"What's the political news, Postmaster?" an Evening World reporter asked of Cornelius Van Cott.

"We are going to try to elect my boy Congressman, and we are making the fight of our lives on that," he replied.

Richard Van Cott is the Republican nominee against Thomas J. Creamer in the Eighth Congressional District, one of the strongest Democratic districts in the city, though John Murray Mitchell was swept in on the reform tidal wave of 1894 when Tammany lost every office. Riordan, the present Democratic Congressman, got 10,000 majority.

• • •

Immigration Commissioner Fitchie will give you facts and figures to show that the influence of Typographical Union No. 6 brought about the defeat of Harrison and Reid in 1892. "Big Six" is spending $2,000 a week in an educational campaign to defeat McKinley and Roosevelt.

• • •

Fred Gibbs and Magistrate Clarence W. Meade, who is Mrs. Gibb's father, were walking down Seventh avenue when Gibbs's eye caught a streamer spanning the avenue opposite his Ninth District Republican Club. "There, Father-in-law," he exclaimed, "you see my boys are wide awake!" The pair moved on. Presently they got near enough to spell out the inscription on the streamer. The Magistrate spelled "H-E-Y-A-N." "I'm," he said, "Son-in-law, it seem sto me you ought to put your boys back to bed!" It was one of Mr. Croker's kite tangers.

• • •

Jacob Levilberg, the cigar man, has successfully resisted all enticements to enter the American Tobacco Company trust, but he has caught the idea. His cards read "The Levilberg Cigar Company (unlimited), closed corporation." And on the corner of the card one reads "Jac. Levilberg, President; Jac. Levilberg, Secretary and Treasurer; Jac. Levilberg, Managing Director, and Jac. Levilberg, Salesman." On the back is inscribed "This corporation is perfectly safe and declares its dividends regularly. If more like this were allowed to exist it would benefit the masses, not the few."

• • •

When Senator "Dry Dollar" Sullivan is asked about that story that he registered from two different places he never denies it, but replies characteristically.

"Aren't you afraid McCullagh will arrest you?" some one asked.

"I guess John won't arrest me," said Tim, significantly. "If he did he'd let me go quick." John was Police Captain in my district once."

• • •

"McCullagh stirs up a lot of dust, makes a lot of threats and some arrests," chipped in one of Martin Engel's Eighth District braves, "but he has never secured but two convictions yet. I suppose he's got to make some kind of a bluff for his $7,000 salary and to satisfy the people that his bureau is worth the $200,000 a year it costs to run it."

• • •

The laugh is on the Honorables John B. Sexton and Isaac Fromame, who are running the Democratic machine in the Nineteenth Assembly District. They were furnishing "copy" to a banner painter, but neither of them could give the name of the candidate for State Treasurer, which is looked upon as remarkable in Tammany men.

• • •

In one of the newspaper offices opposite Police Headquarters has reposed for years a plaster bust of an unknown worthy of the dead past. Irreverent reporters have painted its nose vermilion and one eye black and blue. An old hat is cocked over its other eye, and a sash of red, white and blue is draped from its shoulder. Some one pinned a McKinley portrait button to this sash, at which a visitor remarked: "I don't wonder the Women's Christian Temperance Union is praying against McKinley, but I never expected to see him on a bust."

• • •

A speaker had been ridiculing Bryan as a business man at the Camp McKinley meeting, Harlem. A quiet man in the audience asked: "You say Bryan knows nothing about business. I want his opinion as to how much Mr. McKinley knew about business when he indorsed notes for $100,000 when he was not worth $10,000 himself?" There were yells of "Put him out!" and the inquisitive man was hustled out into the cheerless night with a Yale-Princeton rush. The speaker's answer was lost.

• • •

Down in "old Greenwich village," otherwise the Ninth and Fifteenth Wards, the Republicans held a campaign meeting last night in Zion Methodist Church, Bleecker and Tenth streets, and the Gospel according to Mark Hanna was preached by J. J. Russell to a large congregation.

• • •

The William J. Leehane Association held a successful ratification meeting at its headquarters, 545 West Forty-eighth street, last night. A big crowd of voters were addressed by many prominent Tammany Hall orators, including Senator George W. Plunkett and Assemblyman James E. Smith.

The Hudson Democratic Club, of the Seventeenth Assembly District, has completed arrangements for a mass-meeting to be held Monday night, at Fifty-ninth street and Amsterdam avenue. Alfred J. McCormack is President of the Hudson Club.
