INSPECTION OF ARMOUR PLANT.

Possibly Some of Returned Meat Was Resold to Government.

KANSAS CITY, MO., March 17.—The army beef court of inquiry to-day inspected the Armour packing plant, from which more than one million pounds of canned roast beef was sold to the government during the recent war, and examined eleven witnesses. Nothing sensational was developed.

General-Manager Miles said cold air was the only preservative used by Armour & Co. His firm had furnished the government with 1,000,000 pounds of canned roast beef. It was sold to Commissary-General Eagan, at Washington, and Commissary Woodruff, at New York. Two car-loads were returned from Mobile, and three car-loads from Jacksonville. On the return of the meat to Kansas City the company found that less than one half of 1 per cent. was bad. That from Mobile, the witness said, had never been inspected there. The returned meat was put back into stock, and "possibly some of it was resold to the government."

Intercollegiate Debate.

ATHENS, GA., March 17.—The intercollegiate debate between the University of North Carolina and the University of Georgia took place here to-night before a large crowd. The North Carolinians were victorious.

HORROR IN NEW YORK.

role rescue of several women from the upper stories. One had been carried down from the fifth story. Mrs. A. H. Fuller, of Pittsburg, then appeared, with her maid, at a window of the fourth story. It seemed like an age before the ladder was lowered, firemen ran up, and with great difficulty brought down Mrs. Fuller and her maid. Just as she was gotten out of the window a middle-aged woman appeared at a window just north of that at which the ladder was placed. The woman, fearing she would not be rescued, prepared to jump. She was warned to keep back, and, being panic-stricken, stepped back into the dense smoke. A hook-and-ladder man, seeing the desperation of the woman, seized a scaling ladder and went up story after story through the blinding smoke. He climbed to the coping just as the woman reappeared. The fireman seized her by the waist, and holding her tightly to the wall of the building, crept slowly along the coping and passed the fainting woman to another fireman, who had braced himself to receive her. There was dreadful suspense as the fireman drew the woman toward him and finally had her safely on the ladder.

RESCUERS HEARTILY CHEERED.

A tremendous cheer went up from the crowd.

Fireman John Hanna, of the fire-boat Zophar Mills, rushed through the smoke to the top floor and found Night-Watchman MacNichols half asphyxiated. Hanna lowered him by means of wire to the fire-escape, two stories below, and let himself down the same way. His hands were badly cut by the wire. Then Hanna assisted the old man down the fire-escape.

Fireman William Kennedy, of Engine Company No. 23, rescued a Mrs. Bran from the fourth floor of the hotel by means of a scaling-ladder. Her rescue was cheered by the immense crowd.

A crippled woman was found lying on the floor of a room on the fourth floor, unable to move, and was carried in safety to the street.

SOLDIER AND POLICEMAN RESCUERS.

Captain Emil H. Pate, of Company L, Forty-seventh United States Volunteers, rushed up to the fourth floor and rescued an old crippled man, who was partly asphyxiated by the smoke and burned about the head. Policeman Luke Miley rescued three women from the fourth floor, was badly burned about the hands and face, and his uniform was nearly burned from his back.

A Brooklyn fireman who came over to see the parade saw a woman on the seventh-story right over where the fire occurred first. He rushed up-stairs and rescued Kate Flannigan, a domestic. She was badly burned and injured by falling debris, and was unconscious when brought down.

Thomas McPherson, an employee of the government docks at Brooklyn, went through the fire and smoke five stories, and rescued Mrs. R. Butler, who was unconscious from shock and fright. McPherson was so badly burned that he had to be taken to the hospital himself.

All of these rescues and many others occurred in the course of a few minutes. Many trying scenes were enacted by frenzied men and women in the big building.

MANY PROBABLY IN THE RUINS.

How many persons are buried in the ruins is not known, but at least three or four persons were seen to jump whose bodies have not been recovered. A young man, apparently an employee, jumped from the roof of the Forty-eighth-street side of the hotel. Another unknown man jumped on the Fifth-avenue side, and two more were seen to jump from the rear. Shortly after that two women jumped from the roof to the court-yard below. It is known that two of these at least are dead.

Eye-witnesses say they saw a woman throw a child from a window and fall a moment later herself, just before the collapse of one of the walls. As yet no trace of these bodies has been found.

J. Lemett Morgan, of Birmingham, Ala., who had been watching the parade with a number of friends from the balcony, ran to the fourth floor and rescued Mrs. Algernon Jarvis and her daughter, Mabel. He took them to the balcony, and thence they were taken to the street by firemen.

ESCAPE OF THE M'KINLEYS.

Abner McKinley, brother of President McKinley, had four rooms on the ground floor of the hotel. Mrs. McKinley and her daughter, Mabel, occupied the rooms, with Abner McKinley. Miss Mabel McKinley had ordered a couch for a drive at 3:30, and was dressing for it when the alarm of fire was given. She was in her dressing gown at the time. She saw the smoke, and, becoming frightened, opened the window and was assisted out by an unknown man. She walked half a block and found her carriage in waiting. She was driven to the Hotel Buckingham.

Mrs. McKinley and her daughter, Helen McKinley, were entertaining Mrs. John Sherwood, the author. Both Mrs. McKinley and her daughter and her guest got out, assisted by two men, but they do not know who they were.

The McKinleys went to the Manhattan Hotel, where there was a joyful reunion of the family. They lost everything except the clothes they wore.

DEATH OF THE LELANDS.

Dr. E. Parmly Brown, of 509 Fifth avenue, and A. E. Brown, of Congress Heights, Washington, knowing the McKinleys were in the hotel, rushed to the place as soon as they learned of the fire, and rushed up-stairs. As they were going up the stairs they saw two men—one a fireman and the other an employee—bringing down Mrs. Warren Leland. The woman's clothes were burned from her body. The men told Dr. Brown that they had found the woman in the hallway, lying on the floor unconscious. The men said that they saw one woman leap from the window of the room, but they had no time to stop her. She was Miss Helen Leland, daughter of Mrs. Leland. This was the saddest incident of the fire. Warren Leland is the proprietor of the hotel. The Lelands have another daughter, Miss Fanny Leland, but she was away from the hotel at the time.

Mrs. Leland died in Flower Hospital at 9:15 to-night. Her son, Charles, was the only relative with her when the end came.

CHIEF ENGINEER'S EXPERIENCE.

Frederick Corbett, the chief engineer of the Hotel Windsor, said that he, with his assistant, Robert Walker, and twenty helpers, were in the engine-rooms. He was made aware of the fire by the crackling of the flames. There were a number of women and men coming down from the windows by means of ropes; some slid down a distance and dropped to the courtyard. A number of employees who were on the roof jumped to the courtyard and received fractures and injuries which, he thought, would cause their deaths.

Mr. Corbett said he met Mr. Warren Leland, who told him to shut off the electric current so as to enable the firemen to combat the fire with less difficulty and danger.

WOMEN JUMPED TO DEATH.

While Mr. Leland was talking with him several women jumped out of the windows and from the roof, and lay unconscious in the court-yard.

Dr. Robert Newton, who was one of the first doctors to arrive, said that many women and men had tried to make their exit from the hotel by the side entrance, but were driven back by the tremendous crowd that surged around the entrance-way.

LOSS ALMOST COMPLETE.

The loss on the hotel and its contents is almost complete. The salvage-men managed to save $20,000 worth of paintings that were on the first floor, but very little else was carried out.

Many guests lost valuable jewelry and bric-a-brac and other furnishings, among them being F. F. Flower, a nephew of ex-Governor Flower, who, among other things, lost a package of jewelry valued at $3,000.

LOSS ON HOTEL $1,000,000.

The loss on the hotel is estimated at least $1,000,000. Several adjoining buildings were damaged considerably, but the loss on these is comparatively small. All the papers and books of the hotel are believed to have been saved.

Up to midnight the ruins had not cooled off sufficiently to allow a search for bodies. A big force of men is now at the ruins ready to make a search as soon as possible.

BODIES IN THE RUINS.

It is believed by firemen and police that there are a number of bodies in the ruins. The list of missing for so many hours after the fire was practically over is very large. Doubtless very many of the missing are comfortably housed in the Fifth-avenue homes, which were thrown open to the sufferers. Doubtless, also, some of the missing will never be found.

ORIGIN OF THE FIRE.

Match Thrown by Smoker Into Folds of Lace Curtains.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Regarding the origin of the fire, the Herald to-morrow will publish the following:

John Foy, a waiter in the hotel, was passing through the hall on the parlor floor, the first above the street. He was making his way to a place where he could catch a moment's sight of the parade. In front of him walked a man, a patron of the hotel. The waiter did not know him. Passing thus one behind the other they had nearly gained the angle of the passage near Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street when the patron drew a match and lighted a cigar or cigarette. He tossed the match aside. It was still blazing, and fell into the folds of a lace curtain. In an instant the flimsy fabric was ablaze, and instantly the flames shot to surrounding draperies.

This, from all accounts, was the origin of the holocaust, in which so many human beings perished and others were so severely mangled, while helpless thousands looked on in wild horror.

HISTORY OF THE WINDSOR.

It Was Popularly Known as "Wall-Street by Night."

NEW YORK, March 17.—The Windsor Hotel was one of the most comfortable and attractive hotels to be found anywhere. It was seven stories high, and almost square in form; had a frontage of 200 feet on Fifth avenue, and occupied the entire block between east Forty-sixth and east Forty-seventh streets. The front centre of the building was eight stories in height. It had also two wings, each seven stories in height and 75 feet in length. There were more than 500 rooms in the hotel. The building was chiefly of brick, and was architecturally simple. It was thoroughly equipped for fighting fire, and had pumps equal in force to six of the most powerful fire-engines in the city. It cost about three quarters of a million dollars to build. The Windsor's builder and first owner was John T. Daly, and the building was first opened as a hotel in September, 1873.

RENDEZVOUS OF FINANCIERS.

The Windsor for many years was one of the most exclusive hotels in the city, and was in the height of its glory up to ten years ago. It was the rendezvous of all the great Wall-street operators—of Commodore Vanderbilt and Daniel Drew, Jay Gould, who lived opposite, was there nightly. The hotel became known as "Wall Street by Night," because of the visits of the great financiers. Railroad men and capitalists from all parts of the globe made the hotel their headquarters, and many large financial and railroad deals have been planned there. President and Mrs. McKinley always stopped at the Windsor, and celebrities of all kinds were its guests.

Mr. Leland, the proprietor of the hotel, took charge of the Windsor shortly after the close of the World's Fair in Chicago.

There was $600,000 insurance on the building and $75,000 on the contents. Elbridge T. Gerry is the present owner of the hotel property.

GUESTS FROM THE WINDSOR.

Colonel and Mrs. Cowardin, of Richmond, at the Hoffman.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Among the Windsor Hotel guests now registered at other hotels are:

Waldorf-Astoria—Colonel Tom Ochiltree.

Hoffman House—C. O'B. Cowardin, wife, and son, Richmond, Va.; Charles Eady, Virginia.

Mrs. Price a Noted Beauty.

MACON, GA., March 17.—Mrs. Alice Price, who is reported injured in the Windsor Hotel fire in New York, is the widow of W. P. Price, a prominent cotton merchant of Macon, and sister-in-law to Governor Candler, of Georgia, and Mayor S. B. Price, of Macon. She is one of the handsomest women in Georgia and mother of Miss Alice Price, last season's belle at Narragansett Pier, and who died three months ago. She was formerly Miss Williams, of Jones county, Ga.

No Mrs. M. Pierce is known in Macon, so far as can be learned to-night.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best remedy when croup rages. It cures at once.

A RICHMOND LADY INJURED.

Mrs. Rosenthal Falls from a Window—Colonel Cowardin's Escape.

Colonel C. O'B. Cowardin, president of the Dispatch Company, and his wife were stopping at the Windsor, having been in New York for several days. Neither was injured, but they lost their baggage, and but for the merest chance might have been in the burning building. Mr. Aleck Meyer, of the firm of Julius Meyer's Sons, was also a guest at the hotel, and he, too, lost his baggage. His sister, Mrs. Rosina Rosenthal, wife of Mr. Leo J. Rosenthal, who has been living at the Windsor for more than a year, was quite seriously injured, but her sister, Mrs. Joseph Steiner, who was visiting her at the time, escaped without injury.

Mrs. Rosenthal was on the sixth floor of the hotel when the fire broke out, and her only means of escape was by way of a rope-ladder from the window. She started the descent, but in the excitement lost her balance and fell to the sidewalk below, breaking her leg in three places. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital, and Mr. Aleck Meyer, in a telephone conversation with his brother, Mr. W. D. Meyer, stated last night that she was resting easily.

Shortly after the fire Colonel Cowardin talked with the Dispatch office over the long-distance 'phone. He said he had just concluded lunch, and was preparing to go to his room for a nap, when his wife persuaded him to accompany her on a shopping expedition. They lingered about the hotel for about half an hour, and had just gotten out on the street when the flames burst forth. Colonel Cowardin made an effort to reach his room in order to save some of his belongings, but he was cut off by flames, and lost everything. Had he followed his inclinations and gone to his room for a nap he would, he thinks, have perished in the flames.

Colonel and Mrs. Cowardin will come home to-day, and Mr. Meyer will also return, bringing with him his sister, Mrs. Steiner.

The town is still under a small guard of militia, a portion of the Capital City Guards returning to Atlanta to-day. No further trouble is anticipated.

Princess Kaiulani Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—The steamer China, from the Orient via Honolulu, brings news of the death of the Princess Kaiulani on the morning of the 6th instant. The cause of death was attributed to inflammatory rheumatism. The Princess was born October 16, 1875.

No Break in Deadlocks.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—There was no change in the Pennsylvania Legislature to-day, and consequently no break in the deadlock. But one more day remains for the California Legislature, and reports to-night indicate no sign of an election.

My Old House.

(Written by a Lady of Ninety-four Years.)
(Boston Transcript.)

I hail once more my natal day,
Still in my tenement of clay,
With many favors blest.
New He who placed the structure here
Can prop it up another year,
If He should think it best.

Long hath it stood, through snows and rains,
And braved life's fearful hurricanes,
While many a stronger fell.
The reason why we cannot see,
But what to us seems mystery,
The Builder knows full well.

But now 'tis weather-worn and old;
The summer's heat and winter's cold
Pierce through the walls and roof.
'Tis like a garment so worn out,
To mend there seems no whereabout,
So gone is warp and woof.

The tottering pillars are all weak;
The poor old rusty hinges creak;
The windows, too, are dim;
These slight discomforts we'll let pass,
For, looking darkly through a glass,
We catch a hopeful gleam.

Nature and reason tell us all
This withered frame ere long must fall,
When, where, or how's unknown.
We'll leave that to the Architect,
And trust His wisdom to direct
The taking of it down.

And when you see it prostrate lie,
Let not a tear bedim your eye,
The tenant is not here.
But just beyond time's little space
She finds some quiet resting-place,
No more to date her year.

And though she walks with you no more,
The world will move just as before,
'Tis meet it should be so.
Let each his house in order set,
That he may leave without regret,
Whenever called to go.

Bleeding Piles

and all other forms of this common and often dangerous disease readily cured without pain or inconvenience.

Thousands of men and women are afflicted with some sort of piles, without either knowing the exact nature of the trouble, or knowing it, are careless enough to allow it to run without taking the simple means offered for a radical cure.

The failure of salves and ointments to permanently cure piles has led many to believe the only cure to be a surgical operation.

Surgical operations are dangerous to life, and, moreover, not often entirely successful, and at this time are no longer used by the best physicians or recommended by them.

The safest and surest way to cure any case of piles, whether blind, bleeding, or protruding, is to use the Pyramid Pile Cure, composed of healing vegetable oils, and absolutely free from mineral poisons and opiates. The following letter from a Pittsburg gentleman, a severe sufferer from bleeding piles, gives some idea of the prompt, effectual character of this pile cure. He writes:

I take pleasure writing these few lines to let you know that I did not sleep for three months, except for a short time each night, because of a bad case of bleeding piles. I was down in bed, and the doctors did me no good. A good brother told me of the Pyramid Pile Cure, and I bought from my druggist three 50-cent bottles. They cured me and I will soon be able to go to my work again.

WILLIAM HANDSCHU,
46 street, Cotton alley, below Butter St., Pittsburg, Pa.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is not only the safest and surest remedy for piles, but is the best known and most popular. Every physician and druggist in the country knows it, and what it will do.

Send to Pyramid Company, Marshall, Mich., for little book on cause and cure of piles, describing all forms of piles and the proper treatment.

The Pyramid can be found at all drug-stores at 50 cents per package.
