14 DEAD IN FIERY FURNACE.

Others of 83 Hurt by Fall at Glass Works Will Die.

SAN FRANCISCO TRAGEDY.

Men and Boys Watching a Football Game Go Down with Roof.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—A revised list of the dead in the Thanksgiving Day football disaster shows that fourteen persons lost their lives. All of the victims, with the exception of three, were boys.

The injured now being cared for in hospitals or at their homes number 83, and of these several cannot survive.

The Dead.

Edgar Fairhaven, eleven years.
W. H. Eckfeldt, twelve years.
William Vaneleia, eighteen years
Thomas J. Rippon, twenty-four years.
James A. Mulroney, forty years.
Marquis Van Dura, forty-five years.
Virgil Neuby, fifteen years.
Charles Monahan, thirty-four years.
Talleyrand Barnwell, sixteen years.
Lemon Girard, sixteen years.
Will Rithstein, twelve years.
Robert Miller, seventeen years.
Hector McNeil, fifteen years.
Moses Ottenstein, fifteen years.

One of the victims, said to be James A. Mulroney, was also identified as E. G. Putney.

In sight of 20,000 people, watching the annual Thanksgiving Day football struggle between Leland Stanford University and the University of California, over 100 men and boys dropped from the bright sunlight into the torments of fire. They were on the roof of the Pacific Glass Works, adjoining the football field. Notified that they were in danger, that the frail roof was not made to support weight, and beneath them raged the fires in the glass furnaces, they refused to move.

So intent were they on the game that the prospect of an imminent and horrible death had no terrors for them.

Fell Into the Furnace.

The game had progressed but twenty minutes when there was a crash and a throng of men and boys seated on the apex of the roof were precipitated into the furnaces filled with molten glass. Others on the roof saved themselves by leaping into the football field from the roof. The crowd saw the accident, but recked little of it in the tense excitement of the struggle.

When the roof gave way the glass furnaces, which had been lighted for the first time Thanksgiving morning, had attained a temperature of 500 degrees Fahrenheit. It was on the outer surfaces of these superheated structures that the victims fell. The moment their clothes touched they burst into flame. Some dropped directly on the furnaces and were incinerated.

Others struck and bounded off, but fell close to the terrific heat, in which they roasted alive.

When the police and firemen arrived they found the furnace room strewn with dead bodies roasted out of all human semblance, men burned on one side, others with broken limbs or crushed skulls, and from every one in whom life was left came shrieks of agony.

New Yorker a Victim.

Among those fatally injured is Fred S. Lilly, of New York City. He came here six weeks ago. His father, Henry Lilly, is connected with the shoe firm of J. Richards & Co., of 59 and 61 Reade street.

While aiding in removing the dead and wounded T. J. Parker, a fireman, found his own son among those injured. The boy will die.

LILLY DOUBTS SON'S FATE.

Not Ready to Accept Report that Boy Was Hurt in Furnace Disaster.

Fred S. Lilly, reported as one of the victims of the San Francisco Thanksgiving Day football disaster, was a New Yorker. His father, Walter Lilly, is an auctioneer for A. Richards & Co., at 59-61 Reade street.

When seen this forenoon by a reporter for The Evening World Mr. Lilly interrupted an auction of shoes that he was crying long enough to say that he had heard nothing yet as to his son's fate.

"It was reported in the morning papers that my son lost his life in the fiery furnace at the football game, but early this morning I telegraphed to my other son, Harry R. Lilly, who lives at 25 Lyle street, San Francisco.

"Had anything happened to Fred I am sure I would have received the information by this time.

"My son Fred has been on the coast about four or five years. Recently he came home for a visit. He is twenty years old and was employed in a printing house. He lived at 409 Mason street, San Francisco, but I am sure nothing has happened to him."

Then Mr. Lilly resumed the selling of shoes.

QUEEN TALKS TO TROOPS.

Canadians Reviewed and Entertained at Windsor.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The members of the Royal Canadian Regiment who have just returned from South Africa were enthusiastically received by the people of Windsor to-day. The soldiers then proceeded to the Castle and were reviewed by the Queen in the quadrangle.

Addressing the Canadians, the Queen thanked them for the immense services they had rendered to the Empire. The officers were then presented individually, after which the Queen summoned Private Armstrong, of New Brunswick, who lost a leg during the campaign, but who joined in the march on crutches.

After the soldiers had been shown over the State apartments they were entertained at luncheon in the Royal Riding School.

EMERSON'S ART AND HEALTH GONE

Minstrel of Fame Now Sings in Cheap Cincinnati Resort.

I'm a dandy copper on the Broadway squad
Metropolitan M. P.
And the boys all cry
As I go by
Are you there, Moriarity?

I feel just as happy as a big sunflower
That nods and bends in the breezes,
With a heart as light as the wind that blows
The leaves from off the trees.

From Cincinnati comes the news that "Billy" Emerson, one of the most famous of minstrels, is a physical wreck. They say he earns barely enough to keep body and soul together by singing in a cracked voice for the edification of the habitues of the back room of a saloon in that city.

The deterioration of Emerson has been slow but steady. It dates from 1895, when he played a brief engagement at the Union Square Theatre (now Keith's). He sang at that time the famous song "I'm As Happy As a Big Sunflower" and "Could I Only Pick the Winner, How Happy I Would Be," but it was seen then that he was not the artist he had been five years previous, when he had played here with Haverly's Minstrels.

His engagement at the Union Square was brief. From that time, down to the present little has been heard of "Billy" Emerson, and his practical collapse is not surprising to those who knew him.

For some time he was seen daily and nightly at a resort on West Twenty-ninth street, but about three years ago he disappeared, and New York heard nothing of him until the news came from Cincinnati.

In his day Emerson was easily the most popular minstrel man in the United States. His popularity was equally great in Australia, where he made a fortune. He was of that generation of burnt-cork men that included Backus, Wambold, Billy Birch, John McWade, Billy Kersands and George Primrose, preceding in popular favor, by perhaps a generation, such men as William H. West and Lew Dockstader.

Emerson was born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1846, and came to this country with his parents when he was seven years old. Four years later he was on the stage with Sweeney's Minstrels in Washington.

His fame was not gained in a single night, for it was years before he had an opportunity of demonstrating his peculiar talents. But when he once got a hearing he leaped into immediate fame. He visited Germany with Newcomb's Minstrels, and made the stolid Teutons laugh.

In 1874 he went to Australia, and returning to this country joined Col. Jack Haverly's "49—Count 'Em—49" Minstrels. His salary was $50 a week, which in those days was phenomenal, but Emerson was well worth it. While with Col. Haverly he played before Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales and half the royalty of Europe.

Returning from Europe he leased the Standard Theatre, San Francisco, where for three years he did the largest business ever known in the history of minstrelsy. His profits were said to be enormous. He again went to Australia, and when he returned his wealth was estimated at from between $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Emerson's name was O'Brien, but he would never admit it. The nearest he came to acknowledging this patronymic was during the campaign of 1896.

"Well," he said to the late Nick Engel, "it may be Bryan, but it's not O'Brien."

The song which did more to make Emerson famous than any other was "I'm as Happy as a Big Sunflower." This was written for him by the late Robbie Newcomb, who often said that he sold it to Emerson for $5. In these days of enterprising musical publishing houses such a song would probably yield a fortune of at least $100,000. Another song which added to his fame was "Are You There, Moriarty?" His last was "Could I Only Pick the Winner."

HUNTERS SHOT A LITTLE GIRL

Wounded in Head and Said to Be in Critical Condition.

Some hunters while gunning for rabbits late yesterday afternoon in the woods near Elizabethport, N. J., shot in the back of the head Maggie Kiegel, a nine-year-old girl who was playing in the vicinity with some companions.

The girl is now lying in a critical condition at the Elizabeth Hospital, where surgeons probed for the shot, but failed to reach it. They think it has lodged in the child's brain.

The girl's father, Thomas Kiegel, says when he followed the hunters to learn which of them shot his child two of them turned around, pointed their guns at him and told him to go home or he would also be shot. He retreated to his house and the hunters disappeared. The police are now working on the case. Mr. Kiegel does not know who the men are.
