HAZING COMMON, SAY CADETS IN THE WEST POINT INQUIRY.

Military Board Hears More Testimony in the Booz Case.

HAZING DEFINED FOR BOOZ BOARD.

On a blackboard in the rear of the hall at West Point where the Booz Board of Inquiry heard testimony to-day was written:

"To haze—to play mischievous or abusive tricks on, try the pluck or temper of, especially by physical persecution, lower class students in a college or newcomers in an establishment of any kind."—Century Dictionary.

WEST POINT, Dec. 19.—With military promptness the Booz Court of Inquiry resumed the hazing hearing at 9:45 o'clock to-day. The doors were opened, and among the spectators who entered were several women, who were accommodated with seats in the gallery.

The attention of all was immediately attracted to a blackboard in the rear of the hall where the hearing was held, on which was written:

"To haze—To play mischievous tricks on, try the pluck or temper of, especially by physical persecution, lower class students in a college or newcomer in an establishment of any kind.—Century Dictionary."

Cadet Stephen Abbott, of Illinois, when sworn, was asked to read this definition of the words "To haze," and he said that was not his construction of the words as applied to the hazing by "bracing," etc., which took place in the academy.

Drank Tobasco Sauce.

He was not quite clear on the rules prohibiting these practices. He had been requested as a fourth-class man to take some few drops of tobasco sauce on a spoon, but was forced to do it. He took it himself at the order of two upper-class men. It was hot, but did him no harm.

"Did you see Cadet Booz after the fight with Keller?" asked the Recorder.

"Yes, sir; his left eye was blackened."

He went on to say that he had never known Booz to be abused or treated and denied that Booz was interfered with on account of his religious actions. In reply to Commandant Hein the witness said that he had known cadets as well as the commandants of the mess table to be severely punished for permitting or practising "restraint," "bracing" or other "exercises" on lower class men.

Cadet Raymond L. Linton, of Michigan, witness, said he knew Cadet Booz in 1898 and he seemed to be in good health. Booz was not hazed or treated brutally so far as he knew.

The witness described "bracing" as an exaggerated form of the position of a soldier. It was a drawing in of the chin and the throwing back of the shoulders at the same time.

Orders Against Hazing.

In reply to questions by Col. Hein Commandant of Cadets, the witness said:

"There are positive orders against bracing and exercising, and cadets have been severely punished for violating these orders."

Cadet Albert B. Dockery swore that nearly every rule in the military regulations that could be construed as hazing had been violated at West Point. Tabasco sauce, he said, was known as "hell sauce."

When Cadet Charles McII. Eby, of Pennsylvania, was asked whether he had ever seen anybody faint while being hazed, answered that he knew of one man who had feigned fainting.

"Who was that man," he was asked.

"Myself," he said.

Asked about forms of hazing which used to be prevalent, but which he said were discontinued about two years ago, Eby described them as follows:

Bracing—An exaggerated form of a soldierly position.

Wooden Willie—Continuous gun drill.

Football—Lying on the back and raising the legs to a perpindicular position and back again several times, probably for six or seven minutes.

Eagling—Standing on toes.

Hanging on stretcher—Suspended on hands from bar, with feet not on the floor.

He had pretended to faint while eagling.

Cadet John K. Herr, who had seconded Booz in his fight, said that Booz had "laid down" and was not knocked out.

Cadet Adam F. Casad, of Indiana, said he knew Booz and that he was unpopular on account of his cowardly conduct in his fight.

Cadet John A. Cleveland, of Alabama, said he was hazed in 1897, when he first came to the academy. The rough hazing of that time was totally done away with and was not in operation now.

The next witness was Cadet Philip H. Sheridan, of Illinois. He was a member of the class in which Booz was in 1898, but said he did not know enough about him to form an opinion of him or have any feeling toward him. Asked if he himself had ever been hazed the witness replied:

"I was made to say 'turn, boys, turn,' several times."

"From what is that taken?" asked Gen. Gross.

"From 'Sheridan's Ride,' sir," said the young fellow proudly.

"What else were you asked to do?"

"Oh, some foolish things, such as ridding broom handles and sitting in washbarrels in the company streets."

"Did you think that these acts which you were asked to do humiliated you?" asked Gen. Gross.

"No, sir, they were not humiliating, although I did not like to do some of them."

SECOND BOOZ INQUIRY.

Congressmen Will Take Up Hazing Case After the Holidays.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The special committee appointed by Speaker Henderson to investigate the circumstances connected with the death of Oscar L. Booz, who is alleged to have died as a result of injuries received from "hazing" while a cadet at West Point, held its first meeting to-day and decided to enter upon the investigation immediately after the holiday recess.

The committee will meet at Philadelphia, Jan. 3, and so thence the next day to Bristol, Pa., the home of the young man's parents.

Chairman Dick was authorized to instruct the Burgess of the Town to notify all who have knowledge of the case that they will be expected to testify there.

The committee will go to West Point from Bristol.

NO PLOT TO KILL M'KINLEY.

Washington Chief of Police Denies Story Credited to Him.

A report was circulated to-day to the effect that a dynamite plot had been formed to kill President McKinley, Senator Hanna, Gov. Roosevelt and several other prominent men.

The story purported to come from Washington, and the Chief of Police, Richard Sylvester, was given as authority for it.

The Evening World called up Chief Sylvester over the long distance telephone, and this is what he said concerning it:

"The story is absolutely ridiculous as well as wholly false. I have not been informed of any such plot. There is no truth in it.

"It is unworthy of publication, and I wish The Evening World would state so for me."

RICH PACKER'S SON KIDNAPPED?

Edward Cudahy Thinks His Boy Is Held for a Ransom.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 19.—Detectives are searching this city and the surrounding country for some trace of Edward A. Cudahy, jr., fifteen years old, the son of the rich packer, Edward A. Cudahy.

The boy left his home last evening with some books, which he presented to a boy friend, the son of C. B. Dustin, living only a few blocks distant. That was the last seen of him and no trace can be found since he left the Dustin home.

Feeling certain that his son has been kidnapped for the purpose of securing a ransom, Mr. Cudahy notified the police and employed a score of private detectives, who at once went to work on the case.

As the boy had little money with him the theory that he might have decided to take a trip unknown to his parents is not credited.

Edward A. Cudahy, sr., is the youngest brother of John and Michael Cudahy, the packers.

The boy is described as slim of build, 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighing 120 pounds, light complexion, reddish hair, retrousse nose. He wore a gray suit of clothes and a black overcoat with a black velvet collar.

Chief of Police Donahue says this afternoon that he has a slight clue, but refuses to tell what it is.

DISCIPLES OF BEHAI HERE.

Missionaries of New Syrine Sect Hold Forth on One-Over-at-Acre.

Seekers of religious light have a new path opened for them through the arrival in this city of missionaries representing the Syriac sect of Behais. A Behai is one who believes in the One-Over-at-Acre. Acre will be recognized as a town in Syria on the Mediterranean which is familiar to all students of ancient history. The One-Over-at-Acre is some times called the Master.

His precise teachings or the facts of his personality were not made known by the missionary, known as the Witness, who held forth before a select audience in a west side hall last evening. The information was vouchsafed that a written transcription of his teachings was on its way here for the edification and enlightenment of the faithful.

The Behais, it is said, promise a revelation of divinity that will appeal to all races and religions. They claim that two-thirds of the Jews in Palestine already believe in the Master's teachings. It is further said that the Master's teachings will hurry along the millennium as soon as the Shah of Persia concludes to let him alone.

Capt. Parker Dead at Manila.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Acting Adjutant-General Ward to-day received a cable message from Gen. MacArthur at Manila saying that Capt. Montgomery D. Parker, of the Eighth Infantry, died in the military hospital at Manila on Monday night last of liver trouble.

ATTWOOD SAYS ALL WAS PROPER

Youthful Co-respondent and His Mother in Court.

Leland Montrose Atwood, the co-respondent in the suit for divorce brought by James Bathgate, assistant receiving teller of the Park National Bank, was the principal witness to-day in Chancery Chambers, Jersey City.

Atwood walked to the chair with the assistance of a crutch, having been lamed by a fall. He is dark, smooth faced, with gray eyes, and has black "football hair." Atwood said he was twenty-one years of age on the 27th of last October.

He said that after his call at the Bathgate residence on Oct. 15 Mr. Bathgate had asked him to intercede for him with his wife and try to patch up their differences. Witness said he had always treated Mrs. Bathgate in a proper and respectful manner, and he denied that he had ever had any improper relations with her.

Mrs. George Atwood, the mother of the co-respondent, testified that her son had always been in the habit of coming home for his luncheon. Plaintiff's witness had said that Atwood had often taken luncheon with Mrs. Bathgate in the absence of her husband.

Miss Frances Sitz, a dressmaker, who was employed by Mrs. Bathgate, said that his calls were such as any gentleman might make, and that he always acted in a proper manner. In answer to questions, the witness said that Mr. Bathgate had been attentive to Miss Avis Carter, an inmate of the Bathgate household.

During the testimony Mr. Koester, counsel for the plaintiff, complained that the spectators in the court-room were hissing. This brought out an explanation from the sergeant-at-arms, who told the Court that it was only a woman in the audience who spoke with a lisp.

RABBI'S WIFE HIS ACCUSER.

If She'd Live with Him He Says He'd Earn Salary.

Julius D. Bernstein, rabbi, of 57 East One Hundredth street, was ordered to-day by Magistrate Bramm, in the Harlem Police Court, to pay his wife and her two children $3 a week toward their support.

The charge against Rabbi Bernstein was abandonment and non-support.

Bernstein is not an active rabbi, for one who is married must, according to the rites, live with his wife. Bernstein has not done this for fifteen years. Two children were born to the pair, but as Bernstein left his wife long ago the children were not old enough to know him, and never saw him after until they, with their mother, saw him in a police court to-day.

Bernstein, according to his story, inspects liquor at a distillery. He said he could get a post as rabbi which would pay him $1,500 a year if his wife would live with him again. This she refused, as also did her two children.

DISEASE IS A MERE BELIEF.

Christian Science Healer Says So in Court.

The prospect that more details of the Christian Science treatment of the sick would be told on the witness stand drew to the Surrogate's Court to-day a larger throng than ever to listen to the proceedings in the contest of the will of Helen C. Brush, who left $20,000 to the "First Church of Christ Scientists" to the exclusion of her relatives.

Miss Agnes Baile was the first witness to-day. She said she came from England to study the science with Miss Stetson, First Reader of the First Church of Christ in this city.

"I was cured eight years ago," said Miss Baile, "by reading Mrs. Eddy's book. I have been a healer practically ever since."

Disease a False Belief.

In reply to Mr. John M. Bowers she said that to the human mind there is a "false belief called disease."

"There is no such thing, though, in the Divine mind," she said. Miss Brush believed as she did, she thought, when she went to her as a healer.

"What did Miss Brush have to cure?"

"She had false belief. If she hadn't, she wouldn't have needed my healing." She was too ill just the same, Miss Baile admitted, to talk to her.

"In healing, do you attempt to make the patient believe she is not sick?"

"The Divine mind can do that. I am one of the instruments through which the Divine mind sometimes heals.

"If Miss Brush had advanced far enough in the science she would never have had pneumonia. The Divine mind cured her through his agent, Mrs. Stetson. There is no such thing as disease to the Divine mind."

"Now about the human body?" demanded Mr. Bowers.

Disease in the Mind.

"Disease is in the human mind. It's a false belief."

"Was hypnotism used in Christian Science when you healed Miss Brush?"

"Certainly not!" exclaimed Miss Baile so emphatically that the Surrogate jumped.

"Does the mental treatment directed in Mrs. Eddy's book tell how to treat consumption?"

"Yes, it does."

Mr. Bowers read from Mrs. Eddy's directions that the first treatment in consumption is to teach that the disease is not inherited. This was to be taught to the healer, she said, and the patient would get the benefit.

"How can you tell whether a disease is contagious or not?"

"I know there are some diseases called contagious by the human mind."

Wouldn't Know Small-Pox.

Miss Baile was doubtful, she said, if she would know small-pox, diphtheria or scarlet fever if she saw it.

In redirect examination by Mr. Rand, Miss Baile said that Miss Brush had frequently told her of the discord in her family and that she had doubts about being able to live amicably with her brother and sisters.

She said she had never tried to influence Miss Brush's mind by her own. That, she thought, would be hypnotism.

It is a tenet of Christian Scientists, she said, not to speak to one another of sickness or sin or death.

Susanna Margaret Duncan, a pretty young woman, told next how she attended Miss Brursh for years as a companion and a Christian Scientist. She was with her in her last illness. She said that Miss Brush sent for Dr. Pease, a Christian Science dentist, during her last illness.

"He is the same man who signs your death certificate, is he not?" asked Mr. Bowers.

"He is a physician, too, and has signed a great many death certificates."

"Do Christian Scientists need dentists to cure toothache?"

"When the Christian Scientist is not advanced enough to cure it a dentist is called in."

Miss Duncan said Miss Brush did not have complete enough understanding of Christian Science to combat death.

"If she had, she would not have died," she said.

N. Y. CENTRAL DIVIDEND.

Directors Agree on 1 1-4 Per Cent. $1,500,000 for Elevators.

The Board of Directors of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad met this morning at the Grand Central station and declared a dividend of 1 1-4 per cent, payable Jan. 15.

An enlargement of elevator facilities of the West Shore terminus at Weehawken was also decided upon. These will be increased by a million bushels at an estimated cost of $1,500,000. A contract will also be awarded for 10 additional locomotives.

CAR RAN DOWN FIRE TRUCK.

Fireman Seriously Hurt in a Collision on Broadway.

While Hook and Ladder Truck 21, with quarters at 432 West Thirty-sixth street, was going east on Forty-ninth street last night it came into collision with a south-bound Broadway car. The car was badly damaged and the truck suffered slightly.

Martin Murphy, of 422 West Thirty-sixth street, the tillerman of the truck, was thrown from his place and had his right hip fractured and his left shoulder dislocated.

James Kilcullen, the motorman of the car, was arrested and held for examination next Friday.

POLITICIANS CAN'T RUN POLICE, SAYS DEVERY.

CHIEF DEVERY SEEN "AT HOME."

When Chief Devery is called upon these dark days by the ubiquitous reporter, he just sticks his jovial physiognomy through the door ajar. This is a correct picture of the Chief saying, "Appertaining to the report that I'll resign you go and tell the people that York'll resign before I do."

ducted his office ably, only he was too 'chesty.'

"They say I sent my own men down to Coney Island to look after things. I never did. I haven't any of my own men to send. York and McLaughlin did send their men down there, and whatever has gone wrong they know about it and are responsible for it.

He Won't Stand for York.

"They've been shielding themselves too long. I don't propose to stand for what York is responsible for.

"As to the other transfers, I haven't anything against the men, but it is good for the department to shake them up now and then.

"I repeat that all the transfers were made solely on my own judgment without consultation with another individual and absolutely without political advice."

Chief Devery was asked when he expected to return from his vacation.

"You see," he said, "there was a little vacation due me, and I decided to take it. I intended going away with my wife, but she changed her mind, so I'll stay in town. But I'm getting tired of it already. I'd rather be back at work. I won't go out of town, and will probably be at Headquarters some day this week."

President York, of the Police Board, called on Corporation Counsel Whalen this afternoon, and the two were in conference for some little time. It is believed the subject of their conversation was the opinion to be delivered by Mr. Whalen defining the powers of Chief Devery in transferring police officers.

BROOKLYN BOSS IS BITTER.

Roasts Devery for His Statement to the Public on Police Shake-Up.

Hugh McLaughlin, the Brooklyn Boss, when shown the Devery interview this afternoon, said, regarding the statement that Deputy Chief McLaughlin would not visit him officially:

"He's a liar! He's a liar! I don't know that Brooklyn people are doing anything about the removal of a good man like McClusky, but I do know they are protesting against the removal of a faithful police officer like Deputy Chief McLaughlin.

"Why didn't Devery state his reasons for the shake-up days ago. I'm glad to know he has come forward at last and given us some information on this point.

"McLaughlin was removed because he wore a high hat. That's the first I have heard that that is a good reason for removing an honest man. McLaughlin has ha dthe high-hat habit for more than twenty years, and therefore he should never have been a commanding officer.

"McClusky is too chesty, eh? Well, well, I must ask Devery to come over here or send one of his henchmen to interpret that expression. We Brooklyn people are too simple. We do not know what he means.

"York was responsible for Coney Island. Yes, he was, and things were conducted decently there. Devery was not not satisfied. He didn't want decent, honest, clean men. He would rather let the disreputable have full sway."

Exhibition at Fellowcraft Club.

Beginning to-morrow there will be an exhibition at the Fellowcraft Club, No. 19 West Twenty-fourth street, of the originals of theatrical posters, portrait caricatures and scenes from plays that have won success during the present and past seasons. The exhibition will last three days, and during its continuance the rule debarring women from the club will be waived.

NEW SHAKE-UP AMONG POLICE.

Sergeants and Roundsmen Transferred by Order of Devery.

Another big shake-up of the Police Department began to-day, this time the transfers of sergeants, roundsmen and detectives being the result.

Many of the transfers show to those versed in Police Department history that the Vice-Crusade Committee has plenty of work before it.

Capt. James Price, who was transferred from the Grand Central Station to the Elizabeth street station, and who formerly was in command of the "Tenderloin," secured in to-day's detail several of his former subordinates.

Among them was Patrolman Henry H. Schill, who went from the Elizabeth street station. Schill figured in the Lexow investigation. He was doing special duty with Capt. Price.

Price Gets His Old Men.

Patrolmen Pat Curry, of the East Sixty-seventh street station, and John Henderson, of the East Twenty-second street station, were also transferred to Elizabeth street station. They were Capt. Price's former wardmen in the Tenderloin. Capt. Price also got Patrolman Edmund Kahler, of the Oak street station, who was with him formerly.

Deputy Chief William W. McLaughlin, in charge of Bronx Borough, who has had his office at Police Headquarters, transferred it to-day to Highbridge in the Bronx. This action caused much surprise in Mulberry street.

He took with him as his staff Roundsman James Dunn, who was with Inspector Kane, of the Fifth Inspection District until the shake-up sent Kane to Brooklyn; Patrolman Emil H. Stubbins and John H. Sweeney.

McLaughlin was the adviser of Capt. McClusky while the latter was head of the detective bureau. For some season, not explained at Headquarters, he has moved uptown.

Sent Further North Still.

Sergt. James McGlynn, just before today's checker-board play, was sent from Highbridge to Mulberry street. To-day he was sent to Kingsbridge, which is one station further north than his old assignment.

Roundsman Herman Weiss is transferred from Kingsbride to Mulberry street as acting sergeant.

Patrolman Thomas Ryan, of Eldridge street, is sent to the Detective Bureau and assigned to the Central Office squad under supervision of the Chief of Detectives.

Precinct Detective James Devaney goes from the Madison street precinct to Bronx Park, following Acting Capt. Sam Hammond, while Precinct Detective Pat Brady comes down from the Bronx with Capt. Fitzpatrick. Precinct Detective Thomas Walsh, of the Elizabeth street station, goes to Wakefield with his Captain, "Smiling Dick" Walsh.

Many other transfers in Manhattan and Brooklyn were made.
