MILLIONAIRE'S IDEAS OF LIFE IN A JAIL.

Charles W. Barnes Found Ludlow Street Quite an Agreeable Place and Improved in Health While There.

Charles W. Barnes, millionaire clubman, who was a voluntary prisoner in Ludlow Street Jail for seventy-four days because he opposed the payment of alimony decreed by the court to the beautiful woman who was formerly Mrs. Barnes, has a new cure for indigestion.

It is simple and is not copyrighted. It is available to all the dyspeptic multi-millionaires of New York.

John D. Rockefeller, who has $150,000,000 and a weak stomach, is just as welcome to use it as any one, for Mr. Barnes believes in passing good things along.

Simple Cure.

The new cure is: Go to jail; but be sure you can get out when you think you are cured.

For seventy-four days Mr. Barnes, accustomed to all the luxuries, remained behind prison bars, ate prison fare and observed prison rules, all for a principle.

True, he lost in one way, for he went to jail to spend six months in order to purge himself of contempt in refusing to pay $639 alimony, and finally decided to pay.

But he gained in other ways.

Recounting his experiences to a reporter for The Evening World, Mr. Barnes said:

"It is easier to get in jail than it is to get out once you are there.

"I spent seventy-four days in Ludlow, and while I was glad to get out my life there was not wholly distasteful.

No Reforms Needed.

"I went there expecting to find some things that needed reforming. After close observation and an actual experience lasting nearly three months I have no reforms to suggest. I discovered nothing that needs drastic change, unless it be in some of the laws which send men there.

"My voluntary stay as a Ludlow prisoner terminated on the day before Christmas. I ate my Thanksgiving dinner in jail, but I could not stand the idea of spending Christmas behind bars, so I came out, though there remained 101 days of the term I proposed to spend there.

"I gained ten pounds while in jail and am in splendid health. I feel better than I have for a long time.

"Life in Ludlow is one of routine, of discipline, of strict enforcement of the rules.

"One day's routine is a fair sample of all that followed. Here is how I, as well as others, spent the time:

One Day Like Another.

"Up at 5.30. Clean and care for your cell. Breakfast from 6.30 to 7 o'clock. Light bill of fare. Exercise in yard from 10.30 to noon. Lunch at 1. More exercise in the afternoon. Dinner between 5 and 6 o'clock. This meal consisted of a soup, usually a stew, with vegetables and coffee.

"From 7 to 9.30 at night we read in our cells, or played cards with our cellmates, if we had any. By 10 o'clock the jail was quiet and remained dark until the regular hour next morning.

"That is the regular routine. It varies little. The monotony wears on you. All our food was well cooked, however, and was nutritious and palatable. I like rare roast beef, but I found the Ludlow jail beef too rare—they have it only once a week.

"Of the causes which induced me to spend so much time in jail I have nothing to say. I do not regret the experience, and I have gained flesh."

A MILLIONAIRE'S CURE FOR INDIGESTION.

Get committed to Ludlow Street Jail.

Stay there for seventy-four days at least.

Observe all the prison rules.

Get up at 5.30 o'clock in the morning.

Clean and care for your cell.

Eat prison fare morning, noon and night.

Exercise in the prison yard every day.

Play cards with your cellmate evenings.

At the end of your term a pink skin, a clear complexion, increased weight and a splendid appetite will mark your physical betterment.

GAMBLERS FLEE TO THE GOATS WITH BANKS AND WHEELS IN TOW.

GAMBLERS FLEEING TO WESTCHESTER.

Small Fry Seek Safety in the Wilds of Westchester.

Magnates of "Splits" and "Little Willies" Smile at the Exodus.

An exodus of small fry gamblers to Westchester County has begun since Philbin succeeded Gardiner as District-Attorney. Fear of arrest and vigorous criminal prosecution caused the flight of the poolroom keepers, who cannot boast enough influence to defy reform movements.

The city, while not "wide open," is not closed so far as gambling goes.

Downtown many poolrooms did not open to-day, and when bettors got around to learn the jockeys and early betting at New Orleans and San Francisco they found the doors barred. If they were regular customers a lookout approached and whispered, "Nothing doing. There'll be a curb book later."

Laughed at the Law.

The "rooms" run by the big gambling syndicate did business as usual, with perhaps an extra "lookout" or two posted at the entrance. In the Tenderloin and Harlem no one would suspect that Philbin, Nixon and Baldwin were not characters in a comic opera. Poolrooms and the crap games along lower Sixth avenue and upper Eighth avenue, took a few extra precautions, but welcomed every one who didn't look like a ward detective.

Aside from poolrooms, not a gambling house was closed. Mr. Philbin could have found twenty within five blocks of his office. He might have strolled up Park Row, down toward Fulton, or Barclay streets, or dropped in several Park place establishments on his way home. Unless he announced he was the District-Attorney of the City of New York in search of evidence, an obsequious negro "lookout" would have welcomed him anywhere.

The various "clubs" on the side streets in the Tenderloin do not consider the closing question. The mention of the vice crusade would have raised a merry laugh last night in "Honest John" Kelly's, "Dick" Canfield's, "Billy" Coe's or "Al" Adams's gilded parlors, where one can lose thousands of dollars quicker than some dry goods clerk's hard-earned $5 disappears on Park Row.

The big gamblers are willing to see the small fry forced to leave the city. They predict that Westchester will become a Mecca for the "pikers" as it was when the town was "closed tight" two years.

The Westchester County officials are saying nothing and may soon be seen wearing diamonds.

BLAST DAMAGED HOUSE.

Man Who Set It Off Was Fined by Magistrate.

John Conte was fined $25 in the Morrisania Court to-day for reckless blasting. Conte set off a blast in Jackson avenue. The explosion hurled a large boulder across the street, striking the cottage at 752. The windows were broken, the door battered in and the house badly damaged.

LEADERS GO BACK ON DOONER

Petition to Make Him Commissioner "Only a Matter of Form."

The candidacy of John A. Dooner for Commissioner of Buildings, which carries with it the Presidency of the department, is making trouble in Tammany.

President Brady has decided to resign before Jan. 1 on condition that Dooner, who is at present Superintendent of Buildings, be appointed to succeed him.

Dooner has secured the indorsement of a majority of the Tammany Hall district leaders. Some of the leaders who have signed his petition, however, have said they did so as a matter of form.

Among those who are bitterly opposed to the proposition to put Dooner at the head of the Building Department are ex-Sheriff Thomas J. Dunn, and Lawrence Delmour, who stands next to Croker in the Wigwam. Dunn and Delmour have been interested in building recently and were brought into official contact with Dooner.

Brady has been ready to quit the Building Department for some time. His salary is $7,000 a year and he wields great power, but he is prepared to go into partnership with his brother-in-law, who has $4,000,000 building contracts on hand.

RITTMAN THE NEW AUDITOR.

Senator Hanna's Friend to Get the Place Held by Murdered Man.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The President has tendered to Fred Rittman, of Cleveland, the position of Chief Auditor of the Treasury, made vacant by the tragic death of Auditor Morris.

Mr. Rittman has for twenty years been engaged in the banking business in Cleveland and previously was an auditor of railroad accounts. He is about fifty years of age and stands high in business and social circles.

He is a lifelong friend of Senator Hanna, through whose influence he has secured his appointment, and is also known by President McKinley. There is thought to be no doubt that he will accept, and it is expected he will assume his duties early in January.
