SIGMUND HERTZ BROUGHT BACK.

Bookkeeper Charged with Embezzling Is Here.

Sigmund Hertz, the embezzler, returned to New York to-day on the Oceanic in charge of Central Office Detectives Ellis C. Frazee and Robert McNaught.

He was charged with having embezzled between $50,000 and $100,000, and he had been able to do this because his reputation given his employers had been of the best.

Now it is known, however, that Hertz began a criminal career at an early hour. He once served a term in the Elmira Reformatory for forgery and was liberated on parole.

Sigmund Hertz was the confidential clerk of Stiefel, Sachs & Co., No. 18 Walker street. His salary was small and he lived modestly in a Harlem flat with his young and pretty wife. Friends who met him in the Tenderloin, however, wondered where he got the money which he spent like water. An unusually handsome woman, not his wife, was frequently seen with him. It was through her that his downfall was encompassed.

An explanation of his displays of wealth came Jan. 2, when it was discovered that he had fled with his wife. The West One Hundred and Eleventh street flat was locked up. At the same time it came out that he was an embezzler in the sum of $40,000. He had charge of the firm's check book and when he needed money he simply filled out a check and cashed it at the Chemical Bank. When the voucher came back he destroyed it and doctored the books to suit.

Two days before New Year's Hertz began to suspect that his forgeries had been discovered. Pretending to be sick he went home, confessed to his wife, who forgave him, and then visited his mistress, upon whom he had showered diamonds, horses and traps and costly raiment. The two quarrelled, and subsequently the woman gave the firm and detectives a clue which led to Hertz's arrest in Queenstown, on his arrival there. Detective Frazee followed Hertz to Boston and Portland and learned he had sailed for England on the Corinthian.

Mrs. Hertz, who was with him, came back to this country shortly after the arrest, but Hertz could not be brought over without extradition, which occupied nearly two months.

Hertz and his wife sailed under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Emden. This was the name under which the man had passed at the Elmira Reformatory. His parole papers were found in his trunk, and a photograph of Emden was forwarded to Detective Frazee from Elmira. Denying at first, Hertz finally admitted his identity.

Hertz was arraigned before Judge Newburger and committed to the Tombs until Friday when he will be brought up to plead. No bail was asked for or fixed.

CARS IN A CRASH.

Head-On Collision at Crossing in Paterson, N. J.

Two electric cars crashed together head-on to-day in Broadway, Paterson, N. J. Both cars were crowded with mill hands. Slippery rails caused the collision.

Motorman Biller was in charge of the Broadway car. He was under full headway and did not see a Riverside car until too late. Biller was thrown violently against the vestibule door and had to be removed to the City Hospital.

FANATICS KILLED AND BURNED HER LOVE IN THE STREETS OF FEZ.

Mrs. Ezagui Will Soon Receive Her Indemnity, but the Cruiser New York Is on the Way to Morocco to Induce the Sultan to Pay Still Another.

A handsome New York woman, whose husband was brutally beaten to death and then burned in the streets of Fez, Morocco, is the central figure in an warlike move that the United States is now making toward the Government of the Sultan.

The cruiser New York, flagship of Rear Admiral Frederick Rodgers, is now on her way to Mazagan to back up the demands of Consul-General Gummere for an apology and the payment of claims aggregating $60,000.

These claims are made by the agent of American manufacturing companies whose goods were taken from them in Morocco. In order to evade the United States' demands the Sultan has threatened to remove his capital from Morocco City to some point in the interior. This threat is a direct insult against this Government, and nothing but an apology will answer the United States.

The Romance of It.

Interwoven with this international controversy is the romantic love story of this pretty American girl, whose husband, half Spaniard, half Oriental, met his tragic fate in the semi-barbaric Moorish town.

The indemnity of $100 for his death pushed to a successful completion by Angelus M. Sartorelli, a New York attorney, who visited Morocco at his own expense, has just been paid by the Sultan, and the money will be forwarded from Washington to the widow in a few days.

It is the first of these indemnity claims that has been paid to a citizen of the United States, but the quick enforcement of the demand has served as an incentive for the collection of other damages from the Morocco Government.

Mary Fahrenback, of New York, was wooed in 1891 by a handsome young traveler named Marcus Ezagui. His father was a Spaniard and his mother a Hebrew. His birthplace was Morocco. He had journeyed far in the East. He spoke seven languages. He had the finish of a Frenchman and the easy grace and suavity of the Oriental.

Ezagui was only twenty-one. Mary Fahrenbach was one year his junior. They were married Nov. 25, 1891.

The Widow's Story.

To a reporter for The Evening World Mrs. Ezagui told the circumstances of her marriage and the story of the murder of her husband to-day. She lives with her two pretty children at No. 62 West Thirty-third street. Since she returned to this country she has supported and educated them. She said she expected to receive the indemnity money in a day or two.

"It is a sad story," said Mrs. Ezagui. "I do not like to talk about it. I did not like it in Morocco, so I came back to New York. Then I waited oh, these long years for my husband. And it was hard to struggle for the little ones. But I had strength and I thought he—their father—would come.

"For a moment the woman paused. Then she added slowly: 'But he did not come. They murdered him in Morocco.'

The Other Wife.

Soon after the birth of her son, whom they named Reginald, they went to Fez and lived there some time. It was in Morocco that their daughter Evelyn was born. Then it was Mrs. Ezagui returned to America. Her husband, who had become an American citizen, decided to remain in Morocco, where he was the agent for a French importing company.

About a year after Mrs. Ezagui came to America she learned, to her great astonishment, that, inasmuch as he had wed a Catholic, he was not legally married, and induced him, it is said, to marry a French woman named Biller. Her trip this time to Fez in New York had been bearing fruit from him at regular intervals.

In Morocco the social conditions are all based on religious orders. The prevailing worship is, of course, the belief of Islam. The devotees of other religious beliefs, while tolerated, are despised. It was this blind worship of Islam that led to the death of Ezagui, who was known to be of the Jewish faith.

Tragedy in the Street.

"One afternoon my husband was riding on horseback through a narrow street of Fez," said Mrs. Ezagui. "Coming in the other direction was a high priest who officiated as an upper sheriff, also on horseback. There was barely room between the buildings for the men to pass. As their horses edged up toward the walls on either side Ezagui's brushed against the knee of the priest.

"'Infidel dog!' cried the priest in anger.

"'Curses on you!' retorted Ezagui in Arabic. 'I am no more dog than thou.'

"The priest then shouted in a loud voice. Instantly the loiterers in the street gathered about the two men. Some of the Arabs and Moors laid hands on my husband, and, knowing his danger, he took his pistol from his belt and fired. The bullet struck the priest in the leg.

"With a cry for vengeance the mob pulled Marcus from his horse and beat him to death in the street, and then burned his body in a fire which they had started near by."

Asking Indemnity.

When the indemnity claim was presented to the Government of Morocco set up the plea that, according to their law, Ezagui was a citizen of their country, as he had been there for over five years—the time that it has necessary for him to live in the United States to become a citizen.

The United States Government was very prompt to enforce the claim. The warship Dixie was ordered from Naples to Tangier, Tangier and thence to Morocco City to see that the payment was made. The Sultan, however, quietly adjusted the matter by paying the amount asked.

He has still other claims to make good, and the cruiser New York may yet be used to accelerate his action in these instances also.

AFTER-EFFECTS OF LA GRIPPE.

Pe-ru-na a Specific Restorative That Has Stood the Test of Time.

HON. JAMES R. GUILL, OMAHA, NEB.

Hon. James R. Guill is one of the oldest and most esteemed men of Omaha, Neb., coming to that city in its early days when it little dreamed of being a metropolis. He has done much to make it what it is, serving on public boards a number of times.

A recent letter written by him to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., indorsing their remedy Peruna for catarrh, consequently carries with it considerable weight and importance. The following is his letter:

Omaha, Neb., January 25, 1900.

The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio:

"Gentlemen—I am 68 years old, am hale and hearty, and Peruna has helped me attain it. Two years ago I had la grippe—my life was despaired of. Peruna saved me."—J. R. Guill.

Congressman White, of North Carolina, says: "I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the grip. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it."—George H. White, Congressman from North Carolina.

Miss Frances M. Anderson, of Washington, D. C., daughter of Judge Anderson, of Virginia, says: "I was taken very ill with the grip. I took Peruna and was able to leave my bed in a week."

Mrs. Harriet A. S. Marsh, President of the Woman's Benevolent Association, of Chicago, writes: "I suffered with grip seven weeks. Nothing helped me. Tried Peruna and within three weeks I was fully restored. Shall never be without it again."

The following letter was received from Mrs. M. Wright, Secretary Good Templars' Lodge, No. 47, and Lady of the Maccabees:

2514 Fillmore Street, N. E., Minneapolis, Minn.

"I suffered this winter with an attack of the la grippe and having heard of Peruna in such cases I decided to try it. I am still using Peruna and find that it helps me greatly.

"I have influenced several friends afflicted with chronic catarrh to take Peruna and they all show wonderful improvement. I believe it to be the best medicine before the public."—Mrs. M. Wright.

MRS. M. WRIGHT.

Without raising the discussion as to whether la grippe is produced by a specific microbe or not, it will suffice this much is certain and admitted by all, that it will produce chronic catarrh if not promptly and properly cured. It leaves a person haggard, weak, sallow, frazzled-out, mucous membranes all congested, appetite changeable, digestion capricious, and just about emptiest life of all meaning or desirability.

There is no remedy in the world that meets the conditions produced by la grippe better than the remedy, Peruna. Peruna strengthens as it renovates, soothes while it stimulates, heals as it expurgates. Peruna is not a purgative, or cathartic, or sedative, or stimulant, nor a vegetable or mineral poison. It reaches the source of all diseases of the mucous membranes by its action on the vaso-motor system of nerves.

Every person who has had la grippe during the last year should take a course of Peruna. No one need expect perfect recovery unless they do so. The grip has produced catarrhal inflammation of the whole mucous membrane, and good health is impossible until these are restored to a normal condition. This Peruna will do. A great many remedies have been suggested for this condition from time to time, but Peruna appears to be the only remedy that has any substantial value in these cases. It has stood the test of forty years' experience and still occupies the unique position of being the leading (if not the only) specific remedy for the after-effects of la grippe.

Among the many prominent people who have been cured of the after-effects of grip are the following:

Congressman Howard, of Alabama, says: "I have taken Peruna for the grip and recommend it as an excellent remedy to all fellow sufferers."—M. W. Howard, Congressman from Alabama.

At the appearance of the first symptoms of grip people should stay indoors and take Peruna in small doses (teaspoonful every hour) until the symptoms disappear. This will prevent a long, disastrous sickness and perhaps fatal results.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Peruna is the acknowledged catarrh remedy of the age. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, has written a book on the phases of catarrh peculiar to women, entitled "Health and Beauty." It will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.
