One of the Common Follies.

One of the common follies is to believe that what is called "the latest" is the best.—Albany Journal.

THEIR GUESSES ALL WRONG

Students of Physiognomy Received Something of a Shock When They Learned the Truth.

They were enthusiasts in physiognomy and phrenology and were traveling by train. On the opposite seat was a man of commanding figure, massive brow and serious expression.

"What a fine expression, Arthur! I wish I knew his occupation."

"Possibly he may be a great lawyer, Edith."

"No; he's not a lawyer. There's too much benevolence in that face for a lawyer. He may be a banker."

"I am sure he is not. A man with such a heavenly expression couldn't content himself with money-getting. His aim in life is higher."

"Well, do you think he can be an editor?"

"An editor, with such a face! An editor, saying hard things about everybody, ridiculing women's dresses and abusing mothers-in-law! An editor, cutting and slashing his enemies, flaying public men indiscriminately and mercilessly slaughtering his best friends for the sake of a paragraph! No, Edith, he's a philanthropist. His face plainly indicates that he is all that is good, noble, pure and true."

At the next station an inquisitive old fellow took a seat beside the man with the noble brow and asked him about his vocation. The couple opposite held their breath. The reply was this:

"I've a saloon and a butcher shop. My wife looks after the bar and I do my own killin'."

LOST TIME IN QUAKER CITY

Calculations of Man From National Capital Caused Shock to Native Philadelphian.

After stewing for 15 minutes in a telephone booth the man from Washington emerged. He is a member of congress.

"There is service for you!" he faltered weakly. "I came to Philadelphia on business and I wanted to get a bit of information from your automobile club about roads and to find out from the Reading if a certain train stops at West Conshohocken. Those two calls—neither line was reported busy—just ate up 15 minutes of my all too short life, reduced my weight at least a pound through perspiration and set back my temper a mile."

Then this mathematical man from the national capital assailed the slowness of our telephone service.

"Those two calls were worth just five minutes. At home they would have taken no longer. So I was robbed of ten minutes.

"I figure out that if only one-half the people in Philadelphia call on the phone but once every month your population wastes in a year 225 years of time."

The conclusion was so appalling that I now hesitate to pick up a telephone.—Girard, in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Bedroom Library.

Every one has favorites—favorite colors, favorite songs, favorite places, favorite books, although, unfortunately, advantage is not given to all to indulge in them. But books all can enjoy, and even the modern business man and woman, whose excuse for reading so little is that they have no time, can secure for themselves at least 30 minutes of quiet, beneficial reading by establishing a "bedroom library." Bring the few favorite books that one fancies to the bedroom and there enthrone them in a place of prominence and honor. As a man—or woman—is known by the company he keeps, according to the old proverb, so is he known by the books he reads, and the better the books the more conspicuous a position should they enjoy. But lest this plan should make the room disorderly or untidy, a hanging bookcase has been devised which forms a safe shelter for one's printed companions and an ornament to the wall. Let it be made of wood similar to the bedroom set and suspended from an ordinary support or a picture molding if the room is fortunate enough to possess one. Two shelves would be easily sufficient for ordinary use, and it will be found that this method is both convenient and ornamental.

Man's Chemical Elements.

A German investigator has recently calculated that 100 dozen eggs would hold all the chemical elements which would go to make up a man weighing 150 pounds. This does not mean that if you made an enormous omelet of these 1,200 eggs a man would be produced. It does mean that the elements in the eggs would be equal to the elements in this man.

If a person were to eat nothing except eggs he would get just the chemicals needed for supporting life, but the human system would not digest an exclusive diet like this and the person trying to live on eggs alone would soon sicken, and if the diet were not changed, would die.

Bandits Banished From Sardinia.

A glimpse of a group of Sardinian shepherds, clad in their shaggy sheepskin mantles, which are supposed to ward off fevers, is enough to send a shudder down the spine of a stranger who has feasted upon the out-of-date tales of bandit-ridden Sardinia, but the natives are harmless, and in spite of their bitter fight against heavy taxes and the relatively high cost of living, they never annoy the tourists by begging, as do so many of the people of southern Italy.

Concerning the Venus of Milo.

It is said that the base of the Venus of Milo, with the name of the sculptor upon it, was destroyed for the purpose of deceiving a king of France into the belief that it was more ancient than it really is.

Frenzied Finance.

Two American citizens of African descent were discussing the other day the state of their finances. One of them proudly proclaimed himself to be the possessor of nearly $40 in hard cash. "Dat ain't nothin' at all, nigger," retorted the other. "Reckon I had nigh on to fo' hundred dollars in the bank one time, but the doggoned interest done eat it all up."—The Lamb.

Billions in Checks.

The great bulk of all payments in this country involve a debit on the books of a bank. Mostly they are made by means of a check, which is charged to the drawer's account. Recorded clearings of bank checks last year amounted to a hundred and eighty-odd billion dollars. But, as we mentioned a little while ago, clearings involve only those checks that are deposited in some bank other than the one upon which they are drawn, and in cities large enough to maintain clearing house associations.

An investigation by Bradstreet's in 17 cities indicates that total bank debits are two and a half times the amount of clearings. This would imply that payments made last year through banks in cities large enough to maintain clearing house associations were nearly $500,000,000,000, the Saturday Evening Post observes. Add to that payments in lesser cities and towns, and you will have an approximately correct notion of the amount of money which passes from one hand to another in the course of a year—the amount that in one way or another we pay ourselves for all exchange of goods, services and so on. It makes a prodigious pile.
