Farm Notes.

Issued by the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

BEWARE OF HOG CHOLERA CURES

Despite the fact that "hog powders" are being advertised in the state which are claimed to cure hog cholera, there is no such cure known.

WAYS OF SAVING THE CORN CROP

No one knows whether the greater part of the corn crop will mature or not, but it is probably safe to say that a considerable percentage will be damaged to a greater or less degree even if frosts do not come until very late.

SAVED 438 HOGS

During the month of August, the county agricultural agent of Madison county vaccinated 504 hogs for cholera, and 87 per cent of the number.

MAY ENTER SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE AT 15

The University School of Agriculture at the University Farm announces that beginning with this fall term the minimum age limit for entrance will be reduced from 16 to 15 years.

BREEDING AN EARLY WHEAT

A new bearded wheat different from any other kind known to exist and possibly one that may be of great economic importance to Nebraska has been bred at the Agricultural Experiment Station of Nebraska.

FARM RECEIPTS MAY APPEAR SMALL AND YET BE LARGE

The total receipts for 1914 on farms typical of a large part of eastern Nebraska averaged $2,989 per farm. Of this total, $874 came from the natural yearly increase in live stock, feed, and crops held for sale at the close of the year.

Looking Backward.

Sioux City Journal, Sept. 2, 1895: Covington was wide open yesterday, and for the first Sunday since the opening of the pontoon bridge the crowd from Sioux City was very large.

Peter Rohlfeld, of Nacora, was in Emerson Monday morning and stated that quite a frost was visible that morning in his neighborhood and at the Bert Barnes place ice was frozen. Mr. Rohlfeld will start the erection of a large barn at his place next week. The main part of the building will be 36x38 with 18-foot posts and have two 16-foot sheds attached. Mr. Rohlfeld is one of the progressive farmers of northeast Nebraska.

Sioux City Journal, 6: M. Hartnett, of Jackson, Neb., yesterday was in Sioux City. William Gibson, of Homer, Neb., drove his automobile into an electrolier at Fourth and Nebraska streets yesterday afternoon to avoid running into a man who stepped directly in front of the motor, to dodge another automobile which was headed toward him. The car was badly damaged. The electrolier was broken. Carl Fleck was high gun at the $100 commercial shoot held yesterday at Crystal Lake, Neb., with a score of 193. McKenize made the best total actual breakage, shattering 192 "birds." Ad Olson was second with 189. The next three men in the score were W. G. Hogan, Herman Wester and A. W. Bragstad. In the shoot off by the five high men the prize, a hunting vest, was taken by Olson. Hogan was given the booby award, a box of louse killer.

Sioux City Journal, 8th: Joseph Pollard, of South Sioux City, was taken to St. Vincent's hospital yesterday in the Westcott's ambulance. He is suffering from a fractured hip. Mayor C. J. Kloster and the "insurgent" members of the South Sioux City council had another tilt at the meeting last night. It concerned the police and street departments, which are combined. The battle began after a bill for $175 had been presented by four men who had been employed by Elmer Moffitt, police chief and street commissioner, to do extra work. By motion the bill was laid on the table. Thereupon Commissioner Moffitt remarked that in the future the councilmen could crawl out of all the mudholes in town for all he cared. When appointed to his present position Moffitt was instructed to employ additional men if it became necessary. J. J. Eimers, insurgent leader, told the mayor that he had not instructed the new commissioner properly. "I hired him to do the work," was the mayor's retort. "While you fellows simply talk about it. 'Yes,' chimed in Moffitt, 'you can't expect me to do anything more unless you put it in writing, pass it as a resolution and enter it on the minutes.' Since the last regular meeting Mayor Kloster has called two special meetings. P. W. Martin, clerk of the council, sent out the calls and was present at the town hall on both occasions, but not enough councilmen appeared for a quorum. Last night, however, Martin presented his bill for $10, half of it based on a regular meeting and the other half on the two special meetings that had been called. The council refused to allow the $5 for the two special meetings. The Johnson Electric Co. of Omaha, was awarded $315 for stringing about 2,000 feet of wiring from the Half-way place to Dakota City.

AUTO POLO TO FURNISH THRILL FOR THOUSANDS

British and American Teams to Clash at Interstate Live Stock Fair for the Championship of World.

By a contract just made with Ralph A. Hankinson the annual series of auto polo contests to determine the world championship will be held on the Interstate Live Stock Fair grounds, the series of six contests being staged September 20 to 25, inclusive, on the fair grounds and during the course of the fair.

These contests will serve as free attractions for the fair grandstands and are expected to offer a series of real thrills for the fair guests. Auto polo is played under the same rules that govern pony polo, but the mounts are racing automobiles, bearing cages to protect the drivers in the numerous instances in which the cars turn turtle during each contest. The two teams will carry six substitutes for each player and six cars for each team, because of the damage to the mounts caused by the grilling contests.
