MRS. WATTS WANTS DIVORCE

Wife of the Millionaire Yachtsman Tells About Scenes on the American.

LEADER IN LARCHMONT.

Defendant's Yacht a Headquarters for Fashionable Sportsmen—The Separation Took Place Short Time Ago.

Archibald Watts, a millionaire, owner of yachts and well-known clubman, has been sued by his wife for absolute divorce and on statutory grounds.

Mrs. Watts asks for $250 a month alimony and $2,500 counsel fees for her attorneys, Howe & Hummel.

The suit will be heard Monday before Justice Truax in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Watts alleges that on one recent occasion sixteen quarts of champagne were drunk aboard Mr. Watts's yacht American, and that it has been made the scene of entertainments which terminated in carousals.

Until very recently Mrs. Watts lived with her husband on board his yacht, which is headquarters for the yachting colony at Larchmont.

The town home of Mr. and Mrs. Watt is at the old manor house in One Hundred and Forty-first street, between Lenox and Seventh avenues.

MORRIS EINSTEIN BURNED TO DEATH

In Bed When Fire Started in Mrs. Kack's Boarding-House—Origin of Blaze Is a Mystery.

Morris Einstein was burned to death to-day in a fire at No. 583 Third avenue, a boarding-house kept by Mrs. Annie Kack. Other tenants had narrow escapes in the blaze, which, though small, was stubborn and resulted in delay to the Third avenue surface road lasting almost an hour.

Einstein had boarded in the house of Mrs. Kack for about a year. He had a wife living somewhere in the city, but had not communicated with her for a long time. The concern by which he was employed gave its men a holiday from Thursday to Monday, and Einstein was in bed when the fire started.

The origin of the blaze is a mystery. It is supposed to have started on the second floor and it spread through the whole house like a spark in a train of powder. Some of the boarders were scorched in climbing down the rear fire-escapes. Persons in a restaurant on the ground floor were compelled to flee for their lives.

The body of Einstein was found on the third floor landing. He had left his room and was endeavoring to make his way to the roof when overcome by smoke.

NEW FACTS IN LATTIMER CASE.

Police Expect Developments from Search in Baltimore—Wounded Man Now Has Pneumonia.

New developments in the case of Albert C. Lattimer, the Brooklyn man who was shot down in his home Wednesday last by a masked burglar, are expected within twenty-four hours.

Police Captain Reynolds, who has sent Detective McClusky to Baltimore following a clue, expects him to send important information by to-morrow.

Dr. Robert J. Morrison, the family physician of the Lattimers, who visited the wounded man in St. Mary's Hospital to-day, said that the patient had developed pneumonia in the left lung—the one hit by the burglar's bullet—but that his chances for recovery were good.

"His mind is a blank as to the incidents of the shooting," said the physician, "and he can give the officers no material aid in running down this murderous assailant."

Capt. Reynolds visited the Lattimer house, No. 318 Hancock street, to-day and after a long talk with Mrs. Lattimer, took away with him, to keep as evidence, the night shirt worn by Mr. Lattimer when he was shot.

The five detectives at work on the case have not yet secured any tangible evidence.

DROWNED ON VACATION.

Two Young Men of Brooklyn Lose Lives by Capsizing of Canoe.

The body of John J. Hughes, jr., who was drowned on Wednesday at Hawkins, Sullivan County, was brought last night to the home of his parents at No. 291 Hewes street, Williamsburg. The elder Hughes, also named John, is a sash and blind manufacturer on Twenty-third street, Manhattan.

Hughes, who was an athlete and a member of the Congress Club, started on a vacation in May, accompanied by Arthur Evans, aged twenty, an artist, living in Eleventh street, Brooklyn. The two were boating in a canvas canoe and were running some rapids when the boat capsized and flung Hughes, Evans and a man they had with them into the water.

The man swam ashore. Hughes, who was an expert swimmer and only two years ago saved the lives of two persons at Manhattan Beach, tried to rescue his friend Evans. In the effort both were drowned. Evans's body has not been recovered.

BEAUTIFUL MRS. LYDIG DID NOT DARE FORTUNE.

Returns Home from European Honeymoon Trip and Denies Report that She Gambled at Monte Carlo—Husband Tells of London's Gloom.

Philip Lydig and his beautiful wife returned on the American liner Philadelphia to-day from their European honeymoon trip.

Mrs. Lydig, who was formerly Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes, looked remarkably attractive as she stepped from the gangplank, and she laughed a gratified laugh as an enthusiastic photographer "snapshotted" her.

"We've had a lovely time," she said, "and I am awfully sorry it is all over. We have been away just five months. We've taken in everything there was to see in Europe. The only thing that occurred to mar our trip was a report that I had gambled extravagantly in Monte Carlo. This was absolutely untrue. Neither myself nor my husband had anything to do with the gaming tables. We only looked on."

Mr. Lydig, who was formerly a captain in the army, described the scene in London when the King's illness was announced.

"We were in London three days during the excitement. The scenes in the streets were awful. At Buckingham Palace the crowd went into a frenzy of excitement when a bulletin was posted. "The stands and decorations disappeared rapidly and the city was soon stripped of its splendor."

Ex-Inspector Byrnes was on the pier to meet his daughter, who returned from a few months' vacation abroad.

GIRL AERONAUT, IN MAD VENTURE TO WIN BET, FALLS 60 FEET FROM BALLOON.

The Wager Was Only for a Box of Candy, but Mabelle Ward Was Determined to Win It—May Now Lose Her Life.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 5.—Just because she wanted to show her pluck, pretty Mabelle Ward, of Milford, a girl of eighteen years, lies to-day on a bed of pain, with one leg amputated and with a broken jaw and several ugly flesh wounds. She boasted a week ago that she was not afraid to make a parachute descent from a balloon and then made the attempt on the wager of a box of candy.

Her performance was a part of the Fourth of July sports at Hoag Lake Park and thousands of holiday merrymakers saw the slight girl shoot downward apparently to her death. She would undoubtedly have been instantly killed had it not been for an electric light wire on which her chin caught, breaking her jaw, but also breaking the force of her fall.

The balloon she used was a new one. While ascending she sat on the parachute bar. When about 200 feet up she released the parachute and started earthward. The parachute dropped fully 200 feet before opening. Miss Ward by this time had slipped from the seat and was holding on by her hands to the wrist straps.

As the parachute filled with air it shook off the girl's hold from the wrist straps and she dropped sixty feet to the ground. When within twelve feet of the ground her chin struck the electric light wire, but she fell heavily with all her weight on her right foot, fracturing her thigh.

The spectators were horrified at the spectacle and a brother of Miss Ward, who himself last Sunday was carried aloft head downward on a guy rope, a sister and two friends who were with them, fainted at the sight.

Miss Ward was picked up and carried to a cottage near by, where she was attended by surgeons. Later at the hospital it was deemed necessary to amputate the leg above the knee. Miss Ward bore the operation remarkably well. The physicians say there may be a slight possibility of recovery.

The way in which the foolish wager originated was this:

Miss Ward witnessed a balloon ascension and a parachute descent a week ago, and, turning to her escort, said: "That's easy. I'd just as lief do it as not."

"You'd be afraid," said the youth.

"Indeed, I wouldn't," said the girl.

"Bet you a box of candy!"

"It's a bet," said the girl, and she at once began to take lessons from the professional aeronaut, who was scheduled to give an ascent at the Fourth of July sports.

Her family learned of the wager and tried to persuade her from it, but she replied:

"No. I'm a dead game sport and I'll not take a dare like that."

THIS ANNA HELD SLAPPED MAN'S FACE

She Is Not the Well-Known Actress, but Gave the Name of Held—Was Sent to Jail.

"Anna Held" was a prisoner in Yorkville Court to-day—not the real Anna Held but a comely young woman who said her name was Anna Held and that she lived at the Savoy Hotel. She is not French, like the real Anna, nor would the real Anna be guilty of such an act as that which put the bogus Anna in jail.

She slapped a man's face, and he was a perfect stranger, too. His name is Alfred Saarbach and he lives at No. 962 Lexington avenue.

Saarbach was on a Third avenue car last night, when the woman describing herself as Held got on and sat beside him. Saarbach is extremely modest, and blushed becomingly when the woman assured him that he was a sweet thing. Judge of his surprise when, after the flattering remark, Anna gave him a slap that sounded like the report of a firecracker.

The car was stopped and a policeman was summoned. Saarbach was on hand in court to-day to prosecute the young woman. She admitted that she slapped Saarbach, but said that she had been celebrating the Fourth of July with wine and didn't know what she was doing. Not having $5, which amount she was fined, she was sent to jail.

48,000 SPOOLS GONE.

Newark Clerk Will Be Asked to Explain Extensive Thefts.

(Special to The Evening World.)

NEWARK, N. J., July 5.—An examination of the books of Fischer & Schaefer show that the firm has been robbed of some thousands of dollars' worth of goods, spool cotton forming the greater part of the plunder.

Frank J. Riechert, of No. 224 Linden avenue, a clerk, who was arrested charged with stealing 1,000 spools of the thread, will be asked, the police say, to explain where 47,000 other spools went.

FORMER BLUECOAT AGAIN ACCUSED.

Assault Charge Now Against John R. Collins, Dismissed from Force on the Ground that He Drank to Excess.

Former Policeman John R. Collins, of Brooklyn, who was dismissed from the force last week on the ground that excessive use of alcoholic liquors had made him unfit for police duty, was arraigned in Adams Street Police Court to-day charged with attempted assault. He was held in $1,000 bail for further examination.

The chief witness against Collins was Police Surgeon Joseph F. O'Connell, of No. 159 Remsen street. Dr. O'Connell was called from his home on Thursday by Collins, who drew a revolver and threatened to kill him. The conduct of Collins was reported to the Adams street police station, to which he was formerly attached. He was sent for and ordered to give up his revolver. While he was in the station-house Dr. O'Connell entered and Collins attempted to assault him, whereupon he was placed under arrest.

SCIENTIFIC FEEDING

And Exercise Solves the Problem.

Dr. H. L. Warner, in a recent issue of the New York World, says:

"Only a small percentage of the American people have perfect digestion and assimilation of food and the elimination of the waste matters of the body. In the matter of food and exercise, the whole problem of health is contained. By making these right, we can create perfect health.

"Digestive disturbances are due either to improper food or too much or too little proper food. With proper food taken in reasonable amounts, the imperfect actions of the various processes are corrected.

"This is not a fad, but a fact established by the researches of pathologists and bacteriologists. The action of foods on the digestive and assimilative organs is known exactly. The result to the blood and through it to the whole system is certain and definite."

The most highly nutritive food now manufactured is Grape-Nuts. It is made from certain parts of the grain and put through a mechanical process whereby the starches are changed to grape sugar and the phosphates of the cereals retained and thus supply the necessary nourishment and vitality to the body, brain and nerve centres.

In its predigested form, Grape-Nuts does not overtax the stomach, but renders sufficient assistance to the digestive organs to permit of the easy assimilation of other food.

Thoroughly cooked at the factory by food experts, brings Grape-Nuts from the grocer to you ready to serve with the addition of cream, and its crisp taste with the delicate sweet of the grape sugar, makes it pleasing to the palate of the most critical epicure.

These are scientific facts which can be proven by anyone, and a trial of ten days or two weeks will show what you can do on scientific feeding.

The recipe book in the package shows many delightful ways of serving the food.

REYNALS LAY CORNER-STONE AND GUESTS APPLAUD.

New Social Function, Attended by Fashionables, Marks Beginning of Rural Mansion.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 5.—Something new in the line of social functions was the corner-stone laying to-day of the big granite mansion of Eugene S. Reynal here. The affair was planned some time ago, and this forenoon a number of notables in the fashionable world gathered at the site of the structure. All were from near-by summer resorts, some coming in carryalls, some on horseback and others in automobiles.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Reynal were the centre of a group prominent in which were Mr. and Mrs. Thebaud, Mr. and Mrs. "Natty" Reynal, Louis Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Leith, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, jr., and Mrs. Trenor L. Park.

In circles about these were the other guests, while a squad of workmen stood in the background.

The stone, a fine piece of granite, had been placed in position before the arrival of the party, and all was ready for the ceremonies, there being no delay after all present had been greeted by the hosts.

While the guests applauded, Mr. and Mrs. Reynal stepped to the stone and Mrs. Reynal, with a silver trowel, scooped up some mortar and in quite a handy way placed it about the granite block. She then handed the trowel to her husband, who went through his share of the ceremony with the thoroughness of a stone mason.

In the cornerstone was placed a copper box containing trophies and memoranda and daily papers, while all the members of the Reynal family threw rare coins and trinkets into the box. The stone was then sealed and cemented in position, everybody watching operations intently. When the work was finished cheering and congratulations followed, and the party proceeded to the Reynal residence, where luncheon was served and a merry time spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Reynal were married at the country seat of Howard Willets. Mr. Reynal was ill with scarlet fever at the time and the ceremony was the culmination of a romantic courtship. Mrs. Reynal is the daughter of Gen. Louis Fitzgerald.

The mansion is being erected on property connected with the Rockey Dell Farm, the estate which was laid out by the late Mrs. Nachalle Reynal, who left $10,000,000, which was divided between Eugene, his brother Nathaniel Reynal, and his sister, Mrs. Paul Gibert Thebaud.

Nearby "Natty" Reynal intends to erect a $200,000 manor house, while to the east Mr. Thebaud is building a $300,000 mansion on property which he calls "Hillale." The country seats will also stand in a semi-circle and will be connected with macadamized highways and winding drives and paths.

Eugene Reynal has completed a large coach house and he will also erect an automobile house and a stable for his collection of polo ponies.

LARGER CARS ON BROADWAY LINE.

Twenty-eight-Footers Will on Monday Take the Place of Smaller Ones Now in Use.

President H. H. Vreeland, of the Metropolitan Traction Company, informed an Evening World reporter to-day that, commencing next week, twenty-eight-foot cars would be run on the Broadway line. Heretofore the company has run the old type twenty-two-footers.

Mr. Vreeland considers the twenty-eight-foot car to be the ideal length for urban service. He said that while the long-haul suburban service can best use longer cars, practical experience has taught him that the twenty-eight-foot car is the best for quick starts and many stops. The twenty-eight-foot cars have been run on the Fourth avenue line for several years and have given excellent satisfaction.

Mr. Vreeland refused to discuss the overcrowding of Broadway cars, but insinuated that to a certain extent the longer cars which are being put into service on Broadway will have the effect of lessening the "stand-up or walk" situation which confronts the patrons of the Broadway line during the rush hours.
