Lutheran Church Notes
Dakota City-Salem
Hot? There were hotter places than the church last Sunday. It was not uncomfortable in the church as you might think.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bartels and two little girls and their daughter, Mrs.
Tom Renz, and baby, were guests at the Henry Ostmeier home Sunday.

Our postoffice issued 191 money orders in June for a total of $783.52, and paid 13 money orders, for a total of $76.10. Some business that for a little town.

There is still need of Sunday school teachers at Salem. You can serve God and the church very acceptably by volunteering such a service.

Our boys and girls are mostly anxious to continue our chorous work into the summer. They are still doing good work and do it willingly.

Here is a thing you will be interested in. Get the date, Wednesday, July 12. Get the date. Immanuel's Ladies Aid will meet at the parsonage and will bring their lunch baskets full of eats and we will have a picnic on the parsonage lawn.

John Heffernan, of Chicago, is spending a few weeks' vacation with the home folks.

M. A. Quinn, who attended Renwick seminary at St. Louis the past year, arrived home last week for the summer vacation.

Sarah McDonald arrived here from South Dakota Monday evening to look after her property here. Miss McDonald lived here until a few years ago.

Another Taxpayer
Wants to Know
Jackson, Neb., July 4, 1916, Friend John:-

I noticed an article in your paper referring to the fact that Postmaster Schmid has sent out letters to his friends at different points in the county asking that they circulate a petition with a view of getting the Oil Inspectors' job extended for a period of six years.

I will say right here that I have seen two of these petitions together with a letter from Mr. Schmid accompanying each petition saying that it would be a personal favor to him (Mr. Mell A. Schmid) if they would get those petitions signed up and returned to him.

Doesn't this seem considerably inconsistent in view of the fact that Mr. Mell A. Schmid has been yelling his head off about officials holding jobs for more than two terms, and now he is trying to pull off a stunt whereby his term of office will be extended for six years at a clip; besides hiding behind the civil service law it is more than probable he also expects to hold down the Post-mastership for a more indefinite period, while everyone who is at all conversant with the civil service rules must know that it is a direct violation of these rules to take active part in politics, and yet we see these same rules held up in contempt at every issue of the North Nebraska Eagle, of which Postmaster Schmid is the editor.

Very truly yours,
Billy Fairplay.

HOW IT HITS COLORADO

Denver Officials Tell the Truth About Improved Moral and Financial Conditions Under Prohibition

The liquor interests are making a special attack on Colorado, and their hired writers are working night and day fabricating figures and fake interviews to prove that Denver is drinking more than ever.

These stories have led the Colorado officials to send out statements as to the actual conditions.
Some of these statements are condensed as follows:

"Accepting the claim of the liquor men of booze shipped into the state, there is still a saving of over eighteen million dollars a year to the people.

"Colorado has a law which compels railroads and express companies to file monthly reports of shipments into the state. For March, there were 5,186 packages of liquor shipped into Denver. This would have made one sale in three days for each of the 485 saloons—a tremendous volume of business, indeed!

"These officials statements show that the people of Denver are saving $450,000 per month because of the prohibitory law.

"The Denver Gas & Electric Company estimated that the closing of the saloons would reduce their sales of current and gas $15,000 per month, but instead they had an increase of $10,000 per month.

"During the first dry month in Denver, the five savings banks increased $875,000 in deposits, with 2,050 new savings depositors.

"Before the city went dry, 5,000 women and girls per day went into the wine rooms and liquor-selling cafes. Those places are closed now.

"Since the saloons have been banished the passenger business on the 'owl cars' has fallen off 40 per cent.

"Under the saloon system, for the last few years Denver had been in the dumps, with business bad and thousands of houses vacant. Now business is brisk, building has been resumed, and tourist business is greatly on the increase. Prohibition is a great financial investment for Denver and Colorado."

BEER AND ITS EFFECTS

The brewery interests are trying to break into Colorado. They are putting up to the voters an initiated measure declaring that beer is a non-intoxicant, and is therefore not included in the prohibitory law.

The scientists of Germany do not make any such claim for the virtues of beer, now, and they have found that it is even worse than intoxicating. Their discovery comes from an investigation of conditions in Bavaria,—the place where men and women drink more beer than the equal number of people anywhere else in the world.

They find that in Bavaria out of each 1,000 births 300 children are born dead. These facts should be included in the "non-intoxicant" measure in Colorado.

In a recent investigation of 320 inmates of the Nebraska penitentiary, 285 admitted that they were drinkers before being sent up.

On the evening of June 4th, the police at Beatrice arrested a drunk in a room over an implement establishment. Complaint had been made of this man being intoxicated in his room and it has been charged that two young women had been seen there also.

On Friday night, June 2nd, five men were arrested at Stuart charged with bootlegging. When it was known that this round-up had been made, several other wet citizens of Stuart took their departure to places unknown. Two men and a lady detective seemed to have been helpful in showing these gentlemen the error of their ways.

Besley's Waukegan brewery has announced that it is going out of business as a result of the county in which it is located becoming largely dry territory. It is peculiar how a prohibition law, that the wets say cannot be enforced and especially since they claim it increases the sale of liquor, has put this brewery out of business.

A whisky advertisement in the New York Globe said "total abstinence is a form of fear—and fear is the cause of failure." We presume, therefore, those who are afraid of whisky, morphine, cocaine and "beer in light bottles" are doomed to failure. We commend the writers of liquor advertising to the fool killer, when he shall come this way again with his club.

Helen Lindley charges that her husband, Arthur Lindley, has been guilty of cruelty, drunkenness, non-support and abandonment. She says he became intoxicated frequently and when drunk calls her vile names, strikes her and otherwise abuses her. She has one child. She asks the district court of Lancaster county for a divorce from her over-indulging spouse.

Lewis Jones, of Platte county, was arrested nearly a year ago, charged with selling liquor without a license.
He has been fined $100 and costs.

Why anybody should be bootlegging in Platte county, where there are so many saloons is a mystery. They should know that bootleggers are the result of prohibition, according to the Prosperity League, and that they should not bootleg in Platte county.
