FURTHER BREAK IN WALL STREET

Great Confusion of Opinions as to Cause of the Present Demoralization.

SUSTAINING INFLUENCES HAVE BEEN WITHDRAWN.

New York, Sept. 22.—The disorder of the transactions at the stock exchange today during the demoralized break in prices was not greater than the excessive confusion and contradiction of the opinions held as to the causes of the collapse. That it was proof amounting to a demonstration of the fictitious and excessive nature of the previous advance was agreed to without dispute.

There has been general admission of this fact, however, for weeks past, and also general agreement as to the responsibility of groups of powerful capitalists for the advance. The sensational collapse which prices have undergone has not altered the conviction as to the source of the operations which advanced prices previously, but the motives which prompt the abandonment of the previous position offer a subject for the most divergent opinions. Nothing indicates urgent necessity for liquidation, with surplus reserves of the banks still above $60,000,000 in spite of inroads made upon them, and with call loans easily procurable at 1 per cent or slightly above. This strengthens a conviction that the leaders of the recent speculation must have been interchanged with supplies of credits which would have protected them from pressure of the lenders which would precipitate any such urgent selling on the market as is now seen.

When it is considered that the purpose attributed to the movement to advance prices was to help restore confidence, with a view to stimulating business revival, and for the purpose of intended flotation of new capital issues, the question arises whether that purpose has been abandoned or regarded as futile. From the standpoint of the stock market campaign, considered wholly as such, its success in attracting any general public demand for securities and a distribution of stocks at the prices is doubted by all close observers of the market.

On the contrary, the rise in prices had the growing effect of bringing to market holders of investment stocks, both from home and from the foreign sources. The necessity of accepting these offerings in order to maintain prices proved a growing burden to the efforts of the supporters of the market. It is not believed, however, that it had become impracticable with the resources credited to those supporters.

That the bitterness of the revived agitation against corporations and the public resentment against the supposition of corporation influence in politics has proved a shock to a feeling of security which had grown up among groups of very wealthy capitalists is an interpretation of the present market decline much heard. The prolonged rise in prices was accompanied almost continually by public expressions on the part of prominent financiers that public sentiment toward corporations was changing and that the hostility had spent its force. The recent tone of the political campaign and the sensation created by the Archbold-Foraker correspondence has shaken the confidence among capitalists.

In connection with this element of the situation there was the openly expressed suspicion on the stock exchange floor that the disorder in the market was a deliberate purpose of forces which had fostered the previous advance, with the object of pointing a warning of the dangers to be apprehended from revival of political activity against corporations. Sales of more than a hundred thousand shares in today's market were ascribed to brokers who have had the largest share in executing the orders which carried forward the long advance in prices. Blocks of stocks were hurled upon the market today from such sources time after time when prices showed any disposition to rally. With the market seemingly lacking all support, the bears operated very recklessly, and their buying to cover shorts toward the end of the day was on an enormous scale. The violent recovery thus caused left gains for the day in not a few instances and materially altered the whole appearance of earlier losses. The closing tone was feverish and excited, with the shorts still covering heavily.

Bonds were weak. Total sales, par value, $4,142,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Metal Markets.

New York, Sept. 22.—The London tin market was higher today, with spot quoted at £130 15s, and futures at £132 2s 6d. The local market was quiet, but a little higher in sympathy, at $28.40@28.75.

Copper was lower at £59 2s 6d for spot and £59 17s 6d for futures in the London market. The local market was weak and rather unsettled, with lake quoted at $13.25 @13.50; electrolytic at $13.00@13.25; casting at $12.75@13.00.

Lead declined to £13 1s 3d in London. The local market was dull and unchanged at $4.47½@4.50.

Spelter was higher at £20 in the London market. The local market was dull at $4.72½@4.77½.

Iron was unchanged at 50s 3d for standard foundry in the London market, but Cleveland warrants were lower at 51s 6d. No change was reported in the local iron market.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Bradstreet's statement of the world's visible supply of wheat showing an increase for the week of 8,224,000 bushels was mainly instrumental in lowering wheat prices ⅝@¾c today. Corn held its own on a bullish report by the Illinois Grain Dealers' association, and oats were steady sympathetically. Provisions eased off 7½@10c.

Wheat at the opening and in the absence of marked pressure succeeded in advancing December to $1.01⅛ on the fact that Liverpool did not follow the decline on this side yesterday and the dry weather in the winter wheat country. Then came Bradstreet's report of a tremendous increase in the world's visible supply, which included an increase at Minneapolis of 975,000 bushels in the last three days, and news of rain in southern and central Illinois. On top of the heavy northwest receipts these items brought out a lot of wheat, and December declined steadily to 99½@99⅝c, and closed only ⅛c over that mark and ⅝c under yesterday. Primary receipts today were 2,408,000 bushels, compared with 1,173,000 bushels the corresponding day last year. Seaboard clearances in wheat and flour were equal to 550,000 bushels. Local receipts were 120 cars, 19 of contract grade. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 1,380 cars, against 1,955 last week and 995 a year ago.

The market for corn started easier, but a good demand developed and selling pressure fell off. The Illinois Grain Dealers' association made public a report claiming that this year's crop in Illinois would be only 221,500 bushels, as against 345,550 a year ago. This factor sent prices up, December reaching 65½c, or ⅝c over yesterday's closing. The wheat weakness, however, was not ignored, and the close was at last night's level. Local receipts were 400 cars, 137 of contract grade.

Trade in oats was limited and the tone comparatively steady. December ranged within ⅜c all day and closed only a shade down. Local receipts were 368 cars.

The provisions market received some support from packers, but the wheat weakness coupled with commission house liquidation was against price and closing figures were 7½@10c to 15@17½c lower.
