BIGGEST OF DIAMONDS IS FOUND

White Stone Weighing 3,032 Carats Got Near Pretoria.

WORTH $4,000,000.

Uncut It Is More than Twenty-four Times as Heavy as the Kohinoor.

DIAMETER THREE INCHES.

First News Through New York Stockholder in Mine Where Gem Was Found.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 27.—The largest diamond ever discovered has been found near Pretoria. The stone weighs 3,032 carats and is said to be a pure white diamond of good quality. It is locally valued at $3,500,000 to $4,000,000. The famous Kohinoor, which is valued at $600,000, weighs 123 carats, though it is said to have weighed 900 before it was cut. There is immense excitement here and at Pretoria as a result of the discovery.

A member of Stern Bros. & Co., diamond dealers in the Sheldon Building, said that the biggest stone hitherto reported was one weighing 900 carats taken from the De Beers Company's Kimberley diggings and retained by the company as an exhibit.

Some interesting figures on the value and weight of a stone of the size reported are given by an expert.

"Three thousand carats would be about 60 ounces, considerably more than three pounds, and hardly suitable for the shirt stud or scarf pin of the ordinary New Yorker," said he. "Diamond cutters estimate that 60 per cent. is lost in the cutting, and should a stone weighing 3,000 carats be found and put on the cutting table it would be nearer 1,800 carats when finished.

A Tiffany expert said that such a stone would be about three inches square.

The first news of the discovery of this tremendous diamond reached New York through The Evening World to-day by the courtesy of former Congressman Jefferson M. Levy. Mr. Levy showed an Evening World reporter a cablegram he had received from London announcing that a 3,000-carat diamond had been found in the Premier diamond field in the Transvaal.

Mr. Levy is the largest American stockholder in the Premier Company, which is controlled by London capital. The diamond fields in the possession of this company were not thought to be as valuable as those of the De Beers Corporation in the Kimberley district, but the unearthing of this enormous stone, the largest on record, places the Premier mines in the first rank.

The cablegram to Mr. Levy conveyed no intimation as to what disposition the company will make of the diamond. It is customary to hold stones of this character for exhibition purposes. Undoubtedly millions of persons would be interested in the sight of the biggest diamond in the world.

CATCH BANDIT WHO ROBS IN CITY HOMES

Police Having Failed, The World Offers Reward for His Arrest.

$1,000 TO CONVICT.

Publicity May Aid in Hunt for the Bandit Who Has Evaded the Police.

FAMILIES ARE TERRIFIED

They See the Danger of This Form of Robbery—Mr. Woerz Fears Vengeance.

Eighteen days have now passed since a young man wearing a mask entered the home of Ernest G. W. Woerz, the millionaire brewer, at No. 1 East Sixty-third street, and holding Mr. Woerz and the members of his family at bay with a pistol compelled the brewer to give him $100.

This robbery was one of the boldest that has occurred in this city in many years, and was carried out along the same lines as the robbery of Mr. E. L. Shipman and his daughter, Miss Eva Shipman, of No. 325 West Seventy-sixth street, on Dec. 24, and the attempted hold-up of Mr. Ebenezer Hurd in his home, at No. 19 West Eighty-sixth street, on Dec. 31.

With all the tremendous resources of the Police Department, its 385 detectives and 4,800 patrolmen in Manhattan alone, and the full description of the thief obtained from Mr. Woerz, the authorities have not been able to catch this bold thief. In fact, right under the noses of all of these uniformed and ununiformed men, to each one of whom Commissioner McAdoo had given direct orders to catch the thief, the same man was able on Friday last to go to the residence of Dr. Robert Bancker Talbot, at No. 37 West Sixty-eighth street, and hold up Dr. Talbot, his son, a young man who was visiting the son and a maid servant, and was able to escape in broad daylight, although the Talbot cook chased him for three blocks, all the time yelling with all the force of her lungs for the police.

Thieves No Longer Timid.

This Woerz robbery was typical of the condition that prevails in this city to-day. Thieves no longer keep in hiding by day. They throng Broadway hotels, where they are well known. They no longer bother with small robberies, flat robberies or sneak jobs, and take such chances as the Woerz-Talbot

$1,000 Reward!

Will be paid by THE WORLD for information that will lead to the detection, arrest and conviction of the robber who held up Ernest G. W. Woerz at the pistol point on Jan. 9 in his own home and whom the police have been unable to capture, despite the commission since of similar crimes by apparently the same individual. This latest development of the inefficient police conditions in New York has transferred peril from the streets into the very homes of the people. No fireside is safe if this new departure and precedent in crime goes unpunished. Failure to discover the criminal is to encourage and invite repetition of the offense.

If there was a detective bureau in Mulberry street worthy of the name the man would be behind the bars.

Perhaps Publicity can again do the work for Commissioner McAdoo.

FIREMEN HAVE HARD FIGHT AT WEST SIDE FIRE

Factory Buildings Are Destroyed and Several Horses Killed.

FOUR ALARMS RUNG

Several Workmen Marooned and Saved by Bravery of the Firemen.

TWO JUMP FOR LIFE.

New York Central Freight Cars in Danger as Well as Big Lumber Yards.

A fire which Chief Croker says would have become a conflagration had not the wind veered started at noon to-day in the big six-story building, at Nos. 652-656 West Thirtieth street, totally demolished this structure in thirty minutes, spread to the adjoining Stanley Soap Works and its stable across the street, burned six horses and for a time held the lives of five men in imminent peril.

Only the combined ingenuity of Fire Chief Croker and his aide, Chief Howe, and the apparatus summoned on four alarms, saved the great lumber yards of the Dunbar Lumber Company, extending northward along the water front, hundreds of freight cars of the New York Central Railroad and a score of buildings that a gale was showering blazing firebrands upon.

The building in which the blaze started is near the corner of Thirteenth avenue. The ground floor was occupied by a saloon kept by John Gallagher; the second and third floors by the James Wick Woodworking Company, and the top floor by Pillman and Beck. A few minutes before noon the workmen employed in the Wick plan went out to lunch. They left the lofts deserted, and it is believed that a glueheater exploded and started the blaze.

Had Good Start.

Several men employed on the top floors noticed columns of smoke pouring up the stairways and called out to a passing policeman. There was no escape for these men, both stairways and other exits being barred with smoke and flame.

Roundsman Kelleher happened along as the alarm was being turned in and hurried to the burning building. When he got there columns of flame were shooting out of the windows, and the marooned men on the upper floors were preparing to jump. The fire had also spread from the rear to the stables of the Stanley Soap Works, in which there were thirty horses.

Men Ready to Jump.

Kelleher yelled to the men on the roof to wait, pointing down the street to a hook and ladder truck flying over the snow, preceded by Chief Howe's wagon. He also jumped around to the stable and assisted several hostlers in cutting loose a number of horses. Then the flames drove him out. Meanwhile the truck had arrived and Chief Howe got up the extension ladders.

The chief was the first one to mount, climbing up to the fourth floor, where he picked an unconscious man from a window ledge and carried him down. Chief Devaney performed a similar service for another man when he got his ladder up. All but four of the five men were taken down without incident. When Fireman Fells got his man down almost to the second floor there was an explosion of flame beneath him that enveloped the ladder. He was compelled to drop his burden and leap himself, both men being badly cut and bruised by the fall.

Walls Fall.

In less than twenty minutes after the start of the fire two walls fell, letting down the floors of the building into the roaring furnace below. The flames leaped to the height of 100 feet, and were swept northward by the gale, firebrands dropping about in the freight yards of the New York Central and the great lumber yards of the Dunbar Company.

FOUR KILLED IN A FIGHT.

NOGALES, Ari., Jan. 27.—Four men were killed in a fight in a saloon here to-day. The dead are said to be all well-known Arizona men.

NEW HOLD-UP LIKE BREWER WOERZ CASE

Two men, one of whom is said to resemble the young thief who held up Brewer Woerz, attempted a similar robbery this afternoon at the residence of Herman Freed, No. 10 West One Hundred and Fourteenth street. They entered the house by means of skeleton keys and were going up the first flight of stairs when they met Mrs. Freed coming down. They demanded money and she screamed loudly. When a colored housemaid ran upstairs the man became frightened and ran out of the house and toward Lenox avenue.

The colored maid told Patrolman Gleason, of the East One Hundred and Fourth street station. Gleason got the two boys to watch for a possible return of the two men. He hid in a drug store. After a time, not only he but a third man returned and Gleason was signalled. The third man stayed on the sidewalk, while the other two went up the steps of the Freed house again. Gleason came out and the man on the outlook gave a signal to the other two men. They ran in different directions, but Gleason caught one of the three. The prisoner gave his name as Morris Greenwald, twenty years old, of No. 52 East One Hundred and Twentieth street.

He had a loaded 38-calibre revolver, a short billy and a bunch of skeleton keys. In a pocket was found an aluminum shield marked "Amalgamated Crooks' Association No. 2."

The police say that the prisoner bears a resemblance to the man who held up Brewer Woerz.

ABE HUMMEL IS INDICTED WITH JUDGE FURSMAN

Five indictments were returned to-day by the Grand Jury in the Dodge-Morse divorce scandal. The accused are:

EX-JUSTICE EDGAR L. FURSMAN, former counsel for Mrs. Charles W. Morse, one indictment, alleging conspiracy.

LAWYER ABRAHAM H. HUMMEL, former counsel for Charles F. Dodge, three indictments, one alleging conspiracy and two alleging subornation of perjury.

BENJAMIN STEINHARDT, law partner of Mr. Hummel.

EUGENE BRACKEN, alleged representative of the Howe & Hummel firm in transactions with Charles F. Dodge.

CHARLES F. DODGE, first husband of Mrs. Clemence Morse, wife of the "Ice King," Charles W. Morse.

It was made clear by the District-Attorney that Charles W. Morse, who is now on his way across the Atlantic, was not among the accused. In fact, it was largely upon letters given by Mr. Morse's counsel, Samuel Untermyer, to the District-Attorney that the indictments were found.

Foreman Arthur Sullivan handed up a voluminous document to Judge McMahon, in General Sessions, and ex-Justice Edgar L. Fursman, who was counsel for Mrs. Charles W. Morse, was the first of the accused men summoned to the bar, followed immediately by Attorney Abraham H. Hummel.

Clerk Cowing announced: "Edgar L. Fursman to the bar."

Ex-Judge Fursman, accompanied by his counsel, ex-Judge D. Cady Herrick, of Albany, appeared simultaneously with the Grand Jury. Mr. Cowing continued:

Indicted for Conspiracy.

"You have been indicted for conspiracy. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

Ex-Justice Herrick replied: "The defendant enters a plea of not guilty, with leave to withdraw and interpose a demurrer."

"How much time do you wish?" asked the Court.

"Ten days," was Mr. Herrick's reply.

"Very well," said Judge McMahon.

When the question of bail was raised Assistant District-Attorney Rand said: "I will state that we do not require any bail from this gentleman. His word is sufficient for us."

Ex-Justice Fursman and his counsel then left the court.

Three indictments were next handed down against Lawyer Abraham Hummel, of Howe & Hummel. Two indictments are for subordination of perjury, the other for conspiracy. Mr. Hummel evidently knew of the indictments, for within a few minutes after they were handed down he appeared in court to plead. He was accompanied by his counsel, De Lancey Nicoll and John D. Lindsay.

Mr. Hummel walked to the bar and stood smiling up at Judge McMahon. When he was asked to plead Mr. Nicoll held up his hand for him to keep silent and addressing the court said:

"Your honor, before pleading, we demand to see a copy of these indictments."

Judge McMahon said he would take the matter under advisement and while he was thinking it over Mr. Hummel stood at the bar and chatted with his lawyers.

Mr. Rand, replying to Mr. Nicoll's application, said:

"So far as the conspiracy indictment is concerned there are five or six persons accused. It would not be right for me to make the document public until the others have been arrested. I suggest that the pleading be adjourned for a week, and I will then give Mr. Nicoll a copy of both indictments."

Hummel Freed Without Bail.

Mr. Nicoll said that that was satisfactory to him and entered a plea of not guilty, with leave to withdraw it and make whatever motions might be necessary. Mr. Rand asked that on the subornation of perjury charge bail be fixed and on the conspiracy charge $1,000. Mr. Nicoll made no reply, and Judge McMahon said, with emphasis:

"I shall discharge Mr. Hummel in the custody of his counsel."

Mr. Hummel and his attorneys then left court.

The accused men were accompanied to court by friends who announced themselves ready to go on their bonds for any amount. With ex-Justice Fursman was George H. Stone, the millionaire lumber merchant. Mr. Hummel had provided himself with Leo Schlesinger as a possible bondsman.

Others Out of Town.

"The blanket indictment covering the Dodge-Morse case was returned without any suggestion of the District-Attorney or his representatives," explained Mr. Rand to the newspaper men.

"Why were two arrests only made?" was questioned of him.

"Because the other three persons indicted are not in town," was the reply. "Just as soon as they are known to be in the city they will be brought into court and arraigned."

Mr. Rand, commenting upon the indictments found against Lawyer Hummel, said:

"Separate indictments alleging subornation of perjury were based upon statements made respectively Oct. 19, 1903, and Nov. 16, 1903. The third indictment against Mr. Hummel alleges perjury."

LIGHTER LOST WITH 7 MEN

General Manager Hornbeck, of the New Jersey and New York Steamboat Company, said this afternoon after a conversation with Capt. Kohler, of the lighter Westfall, who sighted a wreck off Robbin's Reef, that he believed the lighter Clarence was sunk off Robbin's Reef in the storm Wednesday.

The crew supposed to be lost are as follows: William Hulbers, Captain, of this city; N. Smith, engineer, of Port Huron, N. J.; F. Kilcomins, fireman, Morgansville, N. J.; William Lewis, colored cook, Keyport, N. J.; J. Sullivan, deckhand, address unknown; Martin Nolan, deckhand, address unknown; John Kean, deckhand, address unknown.

The Clarence was built in 1869, rebuilt in 1892, had a wooden hull, 117 gross tons, one cylinder non-condensing engine; inspected and licensed July 30, 1904; licensed to carry crew of seven.

Details about the missing lighter will be found on page 14 of this issue.

CHRISTIE WINS 50-MILE RACE

Defeats Barney Oldfield and A. C. Webb in Big Automobile Event for American Cars at Ormonde Beach To-Day.

(Special to The Evening World.)

HOTEL ORMONDE, ORMONDE, Fla., Jan. 27.—Walter Christie won the fifty-mile race for American cars this morning on the Ormonde Beach, defeating Barney Oldfield in the Peerless Green Dragon, Oldfield losing a tire and the use of one of his four cylinders, and also A. C. Webb, in the Pope Toledo. Webb broke his commutator. The race was 12 1-2 miles down the beach and back, repeated, and Oldfield went only to the ten-mile point on the first leg. He came back and was started over again.

Mr. Christie broke a wire to his batteries, and while fixing it was caught in the fast rising surf. He lost twenty minutes and completed the first twenty-five miles in 50.84, going away like the wind. The second twenty-five went away under his wheels in 26.48 2-5, the car being half the time in the surf. This was remarkable time. The total time was 1.11.22 2-5.

Webb withdrew after breaking his commutator wire, and while leading the field the accident happened. The high tide prevented the running of the ten-mile special races for Flatt cars for the Hollander and Tangeman trophy and C. H. Mercedes car for the Allen Halle trophy. The 100-mile race for the Vanderbilt trophy will be run this afternoon.
