Society Events

(All notices intended for this column must be vouched for by the name and address of a member of the family sending such communication.)

MOST of the fair sex are out of town, save an occasional one who pops back to the city for the merest errand that must be done. At least she says she had an appointment of great importance, when in reality she is bored to death in the country and has to come back for a sight of home, after which she returns, happy again, and enters into more gaieties with renewed zeal. Meanwhile things are very quiet in town without these fair members of the social swim.
