Everett and Harry O'Connor made an auto spin to Sioux City Saturday, and Mr. Everett, while passing over this historic ground was reminded of the time, more than forty years ago when he was arrested for horse stealing. A team of horses had been stolen near West Point and on this occasion Mr. Everett, then a lad of fourteen, was leading a team behind the wagon, that matched the stolen team in color, so when he reached Dakota City he saw the people straining their necks and looking out of doors and windows, but little dreamed he was being suspected as a horse thief. When he got three miles north of Dakota City he was overtaken by the sheriff of Dakota county and posse of men who shoved some big navy revolvers up to his face. He told his story, but they were about to take him to jail when it was discovered that Mr. Everett had a mare and a gelding, while it was two mares that were stolen, so they turned him loose.

A SUGGESTION

If you live in or near a large city, stand for a few minutes in front of one of the great railway stations between seven and nine o'clock in the morning, or between five and seven o'clock at night, and watch the crowd pouring in or out. Go to the heart of the shipping section in the middle of the day and observe the tide of people that flows and eddies about the great department stores and sometimes fills the streets from curb to curb.

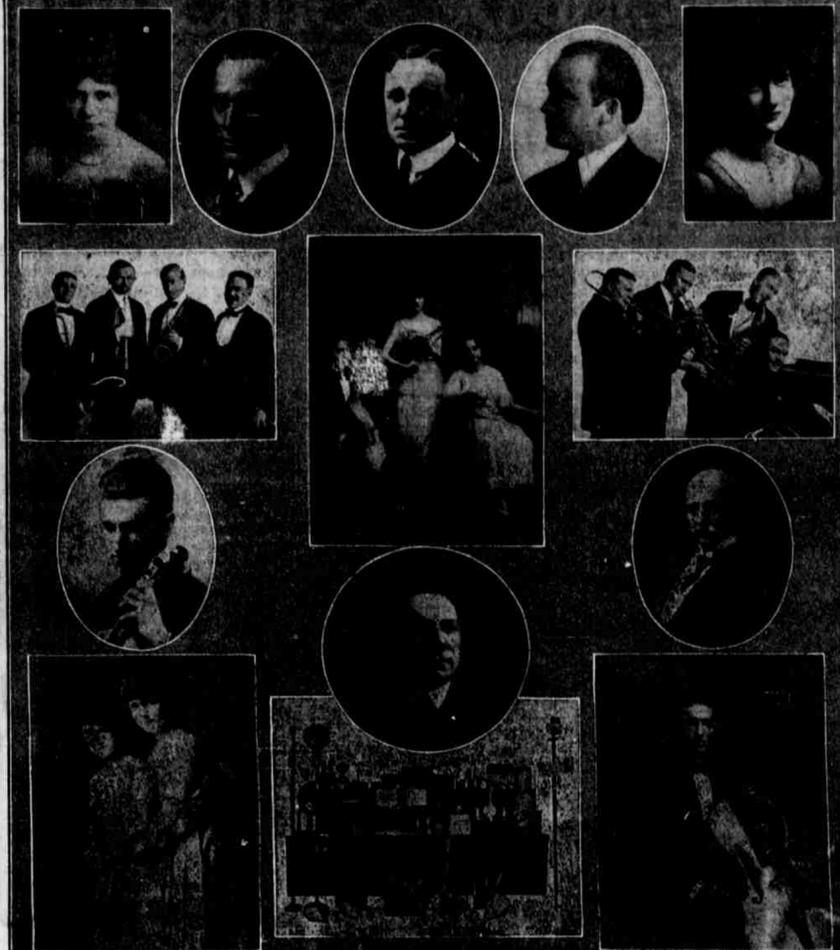

When you have fixed the picture so firmly in your mind that even with your eyes closed you can see your fellow creatures as bees in a swarm, pushing, crawling, ceaselessly moving over and upon and against one another, ask yourself how many of them all actually produce one tenth or one one-hundredth of the food that they eat.

Everything that goeth in at the mouth of a man must come, directly or indirectly, from the soil, and by the work of human hands. When you have made your mental picture of the people in the city who expect to be fed, and another mental picture of the number of farmers who are expected to feed them, you will know one reason why food is scarce and high, and you will also have had a hint of what you can do to improve conditions.—Youth's Companion.

Rape in Corn Makes Good Feed

Many farmers who plan to hog down their corn or pasture it with sheep, seed rape in the vacant places, or between the rows at the time of the last cultivating, according to the Nebraska College of Agriculture. If there is sufficient moisture rape seeded in this manner will produce a large amount of feed. Rape seeded this way will not grow much until the fall rains come, or along in September, after the corn is mature. It will then produce green feed that will go well with the dry corn for either hogs or sheep, making an ideal combination. Rape can also be seeded in the stubble after wheat or oats have been harvested. Dwarf Essex is considered a good variety, seeded at the rate of about four pounds to the acre.

Farm Bureau Field Notes C. R. Young, County Agent

The Burlington train Monday evening brought with it seven fine pure-bred Hampshire pigs for as many boys and girls who are members of the pig club in the neighborhood of Dakota City and Jackson. Those getting the pigs were George Berger, Clarence Leonard, Beatrice Boyle, Walter and Horace Graham, and Ora and Ley Beermann. Other members of the club are Anna Daley and George Baugous. These young people organized for the club year and made Orville Legg leader. Mr. Legg will direct their activities during the summer and fall months.

The pure-bred heifer clubs met last Saturday at the Frank Larson farm near Coburn. Fifteen members and Mr. C. C. Beermann, leader for the Shorthorn members, and Mr. John Stading, leader for the Holstein members, were present. Each of the clubs held a short business session, after which they devoted the remainder of the afternoon to studying beef types and stock judging. All were nappily surprised by refreshments served by Mrs. Larson.

The two tractor meetings held by the Farm Bureau on Thursday and Friday nights at Goodwin and Elk Valley church, were well attended. The people in Pigeon Creek precinct voted to have the next meeting in the form of an entertainment. We will endeavor to have Mr. Newton W. Gaines present for the occasion. Mr. Gaines is a man of wide experience as an entertainer on the lecture and chautauqua platform.

Those who feel that their hogs need some form of conditioner can do nothing better than to use the formula recommended by the Missouri experiment station. It is as good as the best you can buy and at a greatly reduced cost, and is better than most of the stuff on the market. The formula is as follows:
Copperas, three parts.
Common salt, three parts.
Charcoal, four parts.
Sal Soda, three parts.
Glauber salts, three parts.
Sulphur, one part.
Mix thoroughly and feed in self-feeder.

The Farm Bureau has on hand for those needing them, a supply of worm capsules for hogs, also the instruments for giving them.
