

HARDING—THE EDITOR

Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, is thoroughly familiar with the imposing stone and can "make-up" rapidly and skillfully. Here he is shown "making-up" forms in the composing room of his newspaper, the Marion (O.) Star.

A DAY WITH SENATOR HARDING

Calm, Steady, Determined, the American Who is Leading the Republican Party to Victory Goes About the Business of the Campaign in His Modest Office in Marion.

By WILLIAM HOSTER.
The American people will decide, of course. If they can visualize the vital principle which is at stake—the spirit which is at once the keynote and the mainspring of the campaign upon which the nation has entered, there can be no doubt of the result.

It isn't a thing that can be carried about the country, and exhibited from the rear end of a Pullman car. It is wholly apart from the red fire, blaring bands and stump oratory of old-fashioned campaigns. The issue, in short, goes deep down to that principle which has been the mainspring of the national life since the days of Lexington and Concord; and the patriotic citizen, Republican and Democrat alike, by taking counsel with himself, will find it imbedded in his own heart.

Here in Marion, O., you get a concrete exposition of that vital principle. It is good to come to Marion and get the true perspective. You are brought anew, here, to the realization that the country is in process of electing a chief executive to guide the destinies of 120,000,000 people for the four years ensuing from March 4 next; that the very serious business of bringing about what a European observer described as "a revolution by due process of law," is going forward with a proper regard for the dignity and importance of the task.

Scene Entirely Appropriate.
Your first impression is of the fitness of Marion as the scene for the enactment of such a chapter in American history. It is a quiet little country town, for all its boasted industrial activity; and when you approach the Harding residence, one among many in its simplicity and attractiveness, you feel it is quite in keeping with events that from this typical American home there should come a modest, dignified and capable, up-standing American upon whom the choice of his fellow citizens should fall to uphold the honor and traditions of the nation. This conviction grows when you meet the man. He is typical of the successful business man—of the hundreds of thousands of successful Americans who have accumulated a competence through the ordinary channels which are open to all hard working, straight-forward American boys.

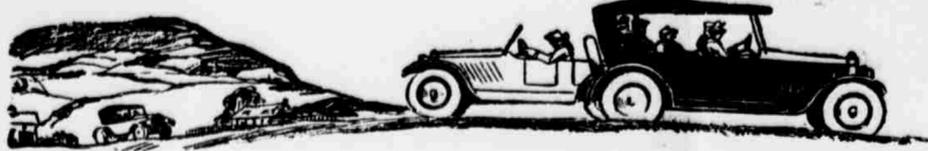

Particularly noticeable is his avoidance of personal controversy. Not once since his nomination has Harding referred in a public speech to his opponent. He adheres to the issues. Not once has he permitted himself to indulge in personal denunciation of his rival.

He is sane. He has fixed convictions as to the moderation and balance which should characterize candidates for the high office of the presidency; departure from which he believes, without doing any good to the candidate who offends, does serve to bring American institutions into contempt.

During the war there was a Harding-kind of man in service as bo'sun on an American merchantman. The time came when the ship was torpedoed; and the bo'sun was put in charge of the tiller on the whaleboat in which a goodly portion of the crew took refuge. A storm arose, and there was imminent danger that the boat would be swamped. In the stern sheets sat the bo'sun, rigid and erect, his hand locked to the tiller. He said little—"Steady!" now and then to the rowers; or "hold fast; take her head on!" as the boat rose on the crest of a giant wave, and then plunged straight down into the trough of the sea. But for twenty-three hours straight-away, he held fast to the tiller, and he didn't relinquish it until he had guided the boat hard and fast on a friendly beach. Then he got up and stretched and asked for a pipe of tobacco.

Calm, steady, determined and knowing his business, one conceives of the other Harding thus guiding the ship through any storm that arises, to a safe harbor.

Look at the roads for twenty miles around on a Sunday

THERE isn't any "country" any more. The automobile has brought the most remote settlement almost as close to the center of things as the next county was in the old days.

They make no distinction between the small car owner and the owner of the biggest car in the country.

It's all the same to them. So long as a man owns an automobile—large or small—he's entitled to the very best tire they can give him.

Quality has always been the outstanding feature of U. S. Tires. There's no limit on the U. S. guarantee. All U. S. Tires are guaranteed for the life of the tire.

We have given a lot of thought to this tire proposition. There is some advantage in being the representatives of the oldest and largest rubber concern in the world.

Drop in the next time you're down this way and let us tell you some interesting facts about tires.

To hear some tire dealers talk you might think that nobody knew anything about tires except the fellow from Broadway.

That's not the basis we go on.

We give every man credit for knowing what he is spending his money on, whether he drives up here in his small car from ten miles out in the country or is passing through from the capital in his limousine.

That's one thing we like about U. S. Tires.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:
In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.
For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.
For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.
For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cords.
