TO STUDY PLANS TO MAKE STAGE LIFE PLEASANT

Author Hemstreet Is Going Abroad on Social Service Mission.

The American Institute of Social Service has commissioned Charles Hemstreet to visit France, England, Scotland, Italy and Spain to make a special study and prepare a report on popular dramatics. Mr. Hemstreet sailed on the Deutschland, of the Hamburg-American line, this morning, accompanied by Mrs. Hemstreet, who will assist him in the work.

It is hoped the great theatres of Europe and the provinces will afford ideas which, when practically adapted, will revolutionize the working life of actors. The completed plan contemplates for the use of actors travelling picture galleries for dressing-rooms, monthly exhibitions of historic costumes, rest rooms, dining-rooms and music-rooms. Also will be included the subject of sanitation, heating and advanced interior architecture—everything that will aid in bettering the physical life and widening the artistic surroundings of players. It is also proposed in the countries visited to learn the views of all the great sociologists along the line proposed.

Mr. Hemstreet is thought to be particularly fitted for the task he undertakes. His sociological work, "The Better New York," has been recognized by the St. Louis Exposition, where he was awarded a silver medal in the Social Economy Section, and at this year's International Exposition at Liege, where he was given a gold medal. He is also the author of "Nooks and Corners of Old New York," "Literary New York," "The Story of Manhattan" and kindred books.

On the present Commission, Mrs. Hemstreet will devote herself entirely to securing feminine views and suggestions on the subject in hand.

YOUNG WOMEN VICTIMS OF GAS

One, Ignorant of Its Use, Found Dead in Her Room, the Other Unconscious When Discovered by Her Employer.

Kate Bornester, nineteen years old, who came to this country several weeks ago from Poland, was accidentally killed by gas early to-day at the home of Mrs. Bessie Greenling, No. 112 East Eighty-third street.

The girl had been carefully instructed in the use of gas by Mrs. Greenling, but she didn't seem to quite understand it. She evidently turned the light out last night, and then, without knowing what she was doing, turned the gas on again, for the jet was open when she was found.

The girl was happy in her life in this country and had no reason to kill herself.

Mary Burke, twenty years old, a domestic employed at No. 352 West One Hundred and Seventeenth street, was found unconscious from illuminating gas early this morning in her room on the top floor there. Whether she had attempted suicide or the gas had been accidentally turned on could not be determined. The girl was too far gone to talk. She was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital in a serious condition.

The girl's employer smelled gas and traced it to her room. Patrolman Fendee, of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, was called in and burst open the door, to find the room full of gas and the girl unconscious in the bed.

The amount dwarfs all the other big financial transactions of the world, including war indemnities, the purchase price of the Philippines and the sum paid to Japan after the Chinese-Japanese war, into insignificance. The sum was transferred to Treasurer Treat by Treasurer Roberts.
