When Robert A. Hansen, clerk at the S. A. Stinson store, opened the place for business Tuesday morning he soon discovered that burglars had been at work during the night. The lock on the west entrance had been removed by boring a string of holes around it, thus gaining entrance to the building. Goods to the amount of several hundred dollars were carted off by the thieves in an automobile, the tracks of which could be plainly seen in the soft mud. A hasty inventory was made and it was found that all the sheep lined coats, leather vests and unionalls had been taken. A wool sweater belonging to Mrs. G. M. Best, bookkeeper in the store, was also taken. No man can vouch for his own continued good health so long as a single case of illness exists in the community or so long as he mingles with others in a business or social way. His best friend may bring disease into his home or his office. If he wishes to conserve his own health he must aid in conserving the health of the community. Tuberculosis is the greatest cause of deaths on record, and is preventable. Tuberculosis Christmas Seals help provide the funds for the fight against tuberculosis.

Butchering time is here. Meat is a valuable but highly perishable article, and the successful handling of it necessitates close attention to many details. The College of Agriculture at Lincoln has set forth a general outline or guide for slaughtering, cutting, curing and keeping of pork and beef on the farm. Every part of the work from the time the animal is led out until the meat is stored away is discussed, with nearly fifty illustrations of the various operations. Ask the College to send Extension bulletin 52, "Pork and Beef."

It is possible to arrange for a supply of ice on practically every farm. A dam constructed across a small ravine will hold enough water to provide several tons of good ice in the course of the average winter. A good many farms have natural ice sources, such as ponds or creeks. Where you have access to the lake or river so much the easier to get your ice supply. Because a supply of ice is available or can be made available at little expense, every farmer should plan to store ice. Write the College of Agriculture at Lincoln for literature on harvesting and storing ice and plans for building an ice house.

WHO GOT THE $2.90?

Fred S. Martin, of South Sioux City, asks the above pertinent question in a letter to the Sioux City Journal of Saturday:

South Sioux City, Neb., Nov. 25, 1920.—To the Editor: In your issue of Tuesday evening I note the statement given your reporter by the business agent of the Coal Dealers' union, or perhaps more commonly known as a member of the Coal Dealers' association. The cost of Illinois coal at mine is $5; freight, $4.98; tax, 15 cents; cost of delivery, $2.90; shrinkage, 50 cents; profit, $1. Now these figures look good, but are they true? To test the matter out on Wednesday I drove my own rig to a certain yard and shoveled on a ton of coal, expecting to save $2.90 on the purchase price. Did I do it? Well, I guess not. The dealer informed me that only $1 per ton is deducted where the purchaser hauls his own coal. I hope some member of the Coal Dealers' association will tell the readers of the Journal who got the $2.90 I paid for delivering my own coal.

Fred S. Martin.

Not Taking Any Chances, He Says

IOWAN DECLARES HE IS GOING TO SAFEGUARD THE FINE HEALTH TANLAC GAVE HIM.

"Tanlac has made me feel all of twenty years younger and almost a boy again," said S. A. Bivins, R.F.D. No. 4, Marion, Iowa.

"Tanlac did my brother-in-law so much good he advised me to take it for my stomach trouble, and right from the start it helped me and in a short time all my troubles had left me.

"For more than twenty years I had been ailing; had that mean, no-account feeling that keeps a man from enjoying life but not quite sick enough to go to bed. Bad spells got to coming oftener and staying longer. 'I'd get so dizzy at times that I'd turn blind. My nerves were on edge and my stomach never gave me any rest day or night. At last it came home to me that I was really a sick man, for my strength was fast leaving me.

"Then I began taking Tanlac and in no time I was feeling fine. I've taken six bottles and it has certainly built me right up and made me almost forget that I ever had stomach trouble.

"I'm not going to take any chances of getting back where I was before I began with Tanlac, so I mean to keep right on taking it to cinch the good it has already done me.

"In the neighborhood where I live everybody is now strong for Tanlac, and I'm glad to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Dakota City by Neiswanger Pharmacy, in South Sioux City by McBeath's Pharmacy, in Homer by Brassfield & Jensen, in Hubbard by Duggan & Heffernan.—Advertisement.

There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surface.
