DOCTOR AND GIRL BEATEN BY THUGS

Frederick King and Miss Florence Benable Attacked in a Brooklyn Cafe.

PHYSICIAN LOCKED UP.

He Declares He Was Arrested Because He Insisted on Prosecuting Assailants.

Because Dr. Frederick King, a reputable physician of No. 332 Monroe street, Williamsburg, insisted on pushing a complaint against the men who had brutally assaulted him and a young woman companion, he says the police of the Clymer street station locked him up "to cool off." But he was still warm when he appeared in the Lee Avenue Police Court to-day, and so was Miss Florence Benable, nineteen years old, of No. 209 Division avenue, whose beauty is marred for life as a result of a blow which she got in the melee.

After hearing their stories and satisfying himself of their respectability, Magistrate Higginbotham held Adolph Waeldin, twenty-four years old, of No. 132 Division street, whom both of them accused of being the ringleader among their assailants, for further examination on December 21.

Dr. King and Miss Benable last night visited friends in Manhattan. Returning home by way of the Williamsburg bridge they passed the Gallavan House at Driggs avenue and Broadway. Knowing nothing of the place and judging it solely by its staid appearance, they decided to go into the grill-room for a lunch.

Some Things They Didn't Know.

They were ignorant of the fact that a young woman had been found dead in the Gallavan about a year ago, and that some time before that Lester Fitzgerald killed a girl and shot himself there. Nor did they know that members of what is known as the "Tin Horn Gang," an offshoot of the old "Blake Gang," hang around the corner. So they went in.

Before their orders arrived three men entered the grill-room. One was young Waeldin, whose father is a saloon-keeper and an alleged professional bondsman. The second man was called "Burkhardt" and the third is said to have been a Republican district leader.

Struck by Miss Benable's prettiness, the trio took seats at the next table and began, it is alleged, to make insulting remarks to her. Dr. King, who is big and active, started to resent the insults with his fists, but the girl begged him to avoid trouble, and the couple, leaving their food untasted, started to leave the cafe.

Their tormentors barred the way. Waeldin, according to their story, suddenly dealt the physician a stinging blow in the face. As if by a signal the other two closed in on King. That was too much for Miss Benable. Seeing Dr. King's danger, she ran at Waeldin, trying to scratch his face, while King turned to meet the attacks of Burkhardt and the district leader.

It only lasted a minute. King struck from behind on the head with some missile, went down senseless. Some one—Waeldin, she thinks—hit Miss Benable a terrific blow over the right eye, splitting the scalp for several inches. She fell, too, blinded with blood and pain.

Just then Detective Gillen ran in. He had heard the girl's screams and the crash of overturned tables and splintering glassware. Stopping only long enough to call up the Clymer street station, he had come at a gallop. He says he found three men amusing themselves with trying to kick in King's ribs as he lay prostrate and helpless. Miss Benable was on the floor.

Stopped by Pistol Shots.

At sight of him the trio ran for the door. Two of them got away, but Waeldin, heading for the bridge, was seen by Detective Finley, who was coming on a run from the station at the head of the reserves. Finley pursued Waeldin, who legged it at top speed until the detective began shooting at him. As the bullets began to whistle by he put on brakes and surrendered.

Dr. King and Miss Benable identified him as the leader of their assailants. King and Waeldin were both locked up. King said to-day that he felt sure he had been put in a cell because he persisted in making a complaint against all three men and demanding their arrest. The police let Miss Benable go home where a surgeon dressed her wound.

It was established in court to-day that she is of unimpeachable character. She will carry a deep scar through life as a memento of last night's experience. King declares that he will push the prosecution of the three men. He cannot understand why the two still at liberty have not been apprehended.

LEVI P. MORTON SUED BY E. C. M. RAND

Long-Time Employee of Russell Sage Makes a Demand for $5,000.

Ezekiel C. M. Rand, for many years employed in the office of Russell Sage, claims that Levi P. Morton is his debtor in $5,000 in a law suit on trial to-day before Justice Greenbaum and a jury in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Rand was with Mr. Sage in 1899 when the reorganization of the insolvent Shore Line Railroad, of Canada, was undertaken by Mr. Morton and Mr. Sage, who held respectively 213 and 212 of the 800 bonds of the company. Mr. Morton, at Mr. Sage's office, broached the subject, wishing he could get out his $213,000, he having taken over the Morton, Bliss and Co. interest.

"I explained that much money must be spent to rehabilitate the property, then insolvent," said Mr. Rand, as his own first witness.

"The Shore Line Railroad runs from a point opposite St. John's, New Brunswick, to St. Stephen's on the St. Croix River—83 miles. It was originally the 'Grand Southern.' There was a foreclosure sale in 1888, and the road was reorganized as the Shore Line by a committee composed of Russell Sage, R. J. Cross, of Morton, Bliss & Co., and Giles E. Taintor. An assessment of 15 per cent. was made, and bonds being issued to those who paid. In this way Morton, Bliss & Co., and Mr. Sage received 213 and 212 respectively.

"I spread out my pains of reorganization, and the Governor employed me to administer the money and see that it was expended judiciously.

Just at this moment "the Governor" entered the court-room leaning lightly on his valet's arm, and took a seat, smiling right and left. His defense is that Rand's services were all performed as an employee of Russell Sage.

BISHOP'S CROSS FOUND.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Bishop Colton notified the police to-day that the gold cross set with rubies, reported to have been stolen, had been found in the folds of his robe.

A Well-Nourished Baby

Is One Whose Food Agrees All the Time.

Time has proved to thousands of mothers and thousands of physicians that Lactated Food agrees with more babies than any other food. Lactated Food is fully one-fourth milk sugar. It also contains wheat, for muscle and tissue, lime phosphate for fine bones and teeth, barley malt to assist digestion, and the milk mixed with it makes fat and warmth.

In fact, Lactated Food fully satisfies the famous Liebig's ideal of an easily digested food containing the substances needed to form and nourish the body.

Celebrated physicians and hospitals recommend it as the safest, surest food.

The DOLCEOLA Mandolin Music Played by Piano Keys

Here is a Christmas gift that will delight and educate the musical boy or girl, man or woman. It is not a toy. It is a mature and artistic instrument, built on the same principle as, and with a similar scale to, the grand piano. It has a keyboard, which in the treble is the same as a piano; but has the bass—which is always the puzzle to the beginner on a piano—so simplified that it can be mastered in very short order.

The Dolceola has the effect of two mandolins and two guitars—the most beautiful trills are easily produced. Used as an accompaniment for the instruments, or the human voice, its effects are most artistic and delightful.

We invite you to come and hear the demonstrator play the Dolceola, at least

Price, $25. May be bought on the club plan—$5 cash, and $5 a month.

Demonstration, Basement.
