GRAIN GROWERS OBTAIN 12½ CENTS MORE FOR WHEAT.

(From Farm Bureau News)

Burt Kurtz, a farmer living near Fairmont, N. D., is one of the most enthusiastic members of the U. S. Grain Growers, Inc. in his state. He has just received returns from a car of wheat shipped on September 3, for which he obtained 12½ cents more than he was offered by local buyers. The sale was made through the co-operative company's zone sales office at St. Paul.

"My car contained 1,352 bushels," Mr. Kurtz explains. "I wired the sales agency to sell it for $1.25 or pool it. They wired me an offer of $1.22 and I instructed them to sell. Two days later I received notice that it had been sold for $1.30. That was a gain of 10¢. The wheat netted me $1.17½ a bushel and I was offered only $1.05 by buyers at Fairmont. On a local basis, I made $168.87 by shipping through the U. S. Grain Growers."

In commenting on the price received, Mr. Kurtz made it plain that the higher figure could not be attributed to an advance in the market, for from September 3, the day the grain was shipped until September 7, the day on which he received confirmation of the sale, the market went up only 4 3-8 cents. On September 3, the December option at Chicago was $1.28½ and on September 7, the quotation was $1.32 5-8. It is true that the trend of the market for cash grain was up, but no such advance as Mr. Kurtz obtained for his car was recorded.

A local pooling association has been formed at Fairmont by the sixty members of the U. S. Grain Growers, Inc. Lacking money to handle a pool, the co-operators leased an elevator and have taken in about 25,000 bushels of grain despite a short crop. After they started handling grain, the local elevators raised their price 10 cents a bushel. However, U. S. Grain Grower members stuck, even in the face of a false report that the national sales company was without funds to finance the grain shipments.

AN INEXCUSABLE LEAK.

(From Farm Bureau News)

Farmers of Dakota County, like those of other sections, are surely overlooking one big leak when they allow machinery to stand out of doors, exposed to the elements, which so rapidly bring rust and decay. Very serviceable sheds may be cheaply constructed that will serve to protect several hundred dollars worth of implements for a long time. Why not take care of this important piece of business before winter sets in?

Commenting on this subject the Iowa Farm Bureau Messenger has the following to say:

"That idea of setting aside a week for repairing farm machinery was a good one. It ought not to have been necessary, because neglect of farm implements constitutes an economic leak that adds tremendously to the overhead expense of farming. One of the hardest things in the world for an efficient business man to understand is the careless custom of shortening the life and usefulness of farm machinery by neglect, as practiced by so very many farmers.

"It is inexcusable as well as deplorable. There isn't a farmer in Iowa who wouldn't raise merry hell with his wife if she were to leave a $30 sewing machine out in the rain. And there are thousands of these same men who will pay many times the price of a sewing machine for a binder, tractor or what not, and leave it exposed to the mercy of the elements the year round.

"One day in midwinter of 1920 ye editor shared a seat on a Northwestern train with a representative of a big harvester company. In an open field beside the right of way a new binder stood right where the horses had been unhitched from it in July. It was half buried in the drifted snow. The harvester company representative pointed to it with a rating cynical smile and remarked: 'That is one of the principal reasons our business has grown so big.' Enough said."
