SPORTING NEWS AND COMMENT

ROBERT EDGREN, Editor.

SPORTING EDITOR'S COLUMN. OR NEWS COMMENT.

IT isn't generally known, even at this late date, that Joe Walcott might have met and defeated Jim Jeffries during the Horton law days around here but for jealousy of Tom Sharkey. Walcott was to have taken Sharkey's place in that memorable Coney Island battle.

The story told by Tom O'Rourke, who was Sharkey's manager at that time, sounds something like this:

O'Rourke had matched the sailor against Jeffries on a winner-take-all basis, at Sharkey's written request, and on a visit to the latter's training quarters some time afterward reminded Sharkey of the fact. It's easy to imagine that Sharkey let out a howl at this.

"I won't fight like that. Jeffries is too big and strong for me to take a chance with. The money ought to be split," he said.

O'Rourke reminded him of his written request, but Sharkey still said "Nix. I didn't mean that," he replied. "I was only fooling any way."

This necessitated a hurried conference with Billy Brady, then Jeffries's manager, and 75 per cent. to the winner and 25 to the loser was agreed to.

Sharkey, however, couldn't see even this arrangement and held out for a split purse. O'Rourke became disgusted at this and told Sharkey that, as far as he was concerned, the match was off.

"I'll slip in Walcott, 'the Giant Killer,' on Jeffries. He'll take him on at any terms," said O'Rourke.

"What! put on that nigger in my place?" roared Sharkey. "Say, Tom, fix up the articles any old way. I wouldn't be disgraced by having anybody like Walcott fight for me."

SPEAKING of the decision in the Jeffries-Sharkey fight, O'Rourke believes that Sharkey should have received it. He at least shouldn't have received worse than a draw, he says. Many experts agree with O'Rourke on the latter.

"I believe to this day," says O'Rourke, "that Siler put his hand on Jeffries by mistake in indicating the winner. I think he meant to give the decision to Sharkey and in the excitement at the end touched the wrong man."

IT will be remembered that Jeffries punished Sharkey frightfully and early in the fight broke the sailor's ribs. Sharkey, however, continued gamely and aggressively, and was in fair condition at the end. In the dressing-room afterward O'Rourke found Sharkey crying like a baby. He thought he was hurt and asked him if he was in pain.

"No," replied Sharkey. "I was just thinking of all the money Jeffries will get."

MAKE BILLIARDS SPORTSMANLY FAIR.

To Sporting Editor of The Evening World:

THE following letter, which needs no explanation, is good and timely:

Billiards is by common consent called "the gentleman's game." May I ask your influence toward making it a little more gentlemanly and much more sportsmanly fair? And this by allowing the usual loser the same number of innings that the winner has. For it not unfrequently happens that the loser really has the best average. My suggestion is that if the "winner" is the one who opened the games he should play out his last inning, making all he can, his opponent being allowed the final inning and a chance to win the game by making the largest average. You would not like to see a ball team have nine innings at the bat and its trailing opponent have only eight, nor a bowler run out ten frames and his smaller-scored opponent have but nine, would you? And why should not billiards come under the same rule?

BASEBALL SEASON BEGAN TO-DAY IN FOUR CITIES.

The National League baseball season opened to-day in four cities, started off with Cincinnati in Porktown. Big crowds turned out in each Brooklyn, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Cincinnati. The Bostons assisted of the cities, and altogether the opening day was the most successful in the Brooklyns in the opening ceremonies at Washington Park; the Giants' years. The American League season will not open until Saturday, when began against Philadelphia; the Pittsburgs played at St. Louis, and Chicago the Highlanders open at home with the Bostons.

TRAINING HORSES FOR SEASON'S START.

Local Tracks the Scene of Early Morning Gallops, Where Horses Are Exercised Over the Flat and Jumps and Schooled for the Barrier.

The crisp, gray dawn came up at Sheepshead to-day and stirred the stables to be up and doing. An old man emerged from his bed of hay to breakfast on his little clay pipe.

"Track soggy," said he, "and big Sysonsby just itching for a lot out. Too bad, too bad."

The stable boys tumbled out sleepy-eyed. Mud or sunshine, there was work before them. They were big and little and black and white, merry and sad.

Down at the grandstand, in the shadow of the judges' stand, a row of railbirds and clockers sat patiently. There were old men and young, stalwarts and cripples, but all eager and gay, intently watching with watch in hand for the first horse out for exercise or sprint.

The track, sticky and uninviting, circled like a soiled tan ribbon inside the huge inclosure.

A fat man on a fat pony trotted out and got stuck in the mud. Two Irishmen came out to dig a fence ditch. The railbird humorist set to work.

"See that harp with the pick?" he began.

"Yes, I see him, Mr. Bones, what about him?" said the railbird goat.

"Well, I was standing by him yesterday when a friend came along and says to him, 'I say, Mike, see the two chairs under on the street. Take your pick for two bits.' What?" cried the Irishman and he went for him.

Silence.

"Well, Mr. Bones," said the goat, "did he take his pick?"

"No, he didn't. He didn't have a pick in his hand. He gave him the shovel."

"They're off!" a dozen voices cried and Mr. Bones's obsequies were postponed.

The Early Morning Work.

A little bay filly pranced onto the track as sassy as a child in a new frock. She was flannelled head and foot. The pickaninny in her saddle crouched like a monkey on a stick, swung her head to the wire and was off in a shower of mud from the animal's hoofs.

The real goers. Finally the sunshine brought a few bile mudders out, but the royalty of the turf frisked and pawed under cover.

Educating the Youngsters.

A string of two-year-olds walked back of the grandstand and over to the end of the track.

"There goes the school," cried a railbird, and the gallery followed.

They were the kindergarten folk of the racing stables out to get familiar with the barrier and starters.

"That's James R. Keene's string," volunteered one of the wise ones. "And that's Trainer Jimmie Rowe on the fat pony."

Rowe was in fine spirits. He rode to the school barrier and sat astride while the boys lined up the youngsters.

"Now, then, you boys," he cried. "Keep those horses in line. Walk 'em up now."

"What's your hurry there, Murphy? Don't take up so much room."

"Keep that horse straightened out, Casey. Come on now."

Lively at the Barrier.

There were eleven in the string. Some were as tame as lambs and some as frisky as unbroken mustangs. One by one they walked up and sniffed at the barrier—that is, some of them did. Others had to be dragged to it and the netting poked into their eyes. They balked and danced and whirled while the boys atop of them bobbed up and down and Rowe's assistants yelled and scolded like a lot of bad Indians.

Finally—just for an instant—they were straightened out.

Bang!

With the clang of the bell the barrier rose and they were off in a heap. Then they came back in a string to do it all over again, and to greet the fine sarcasm and sharp commands of the trainer and his assistants.

"Well, well, Shorty, you certainly did sit on that horse like Mr. Teddie Sloan," cried out an assistant.

"I don't think," added Mr. Rowe.

Shorty was silent and sick, and looked as comfortable as any one could sitting astride a sleeping volcano.

"And you, Mr. Jones," cried the assistant, "I am going to get you a nice new hobby-horse."

"With a tack in the saddle," added Mr. Rowe.

"Now, then, you boys walk 'em up slow," cried the starter.

"Keep inside there! Where are you going with that bay? To Coney?

"Say, you, Johnson. East up on that horse. Stop it! Stop it! What's the matter with you? Whoa! Whoa-a-a! Easy now, easy."

Bang!

They came back and did it all over again.

That is how Sheepshead makes up for the racing season.

PUGS TO DRAW DOWN $45,000

In Purses at Boxing Carnival in Los Angeles Next Month.

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

The boxing carnival which Matchmaker Tom McCarey, of the Pacific A. C., of Los Angeles, Cal., has arranged to be held at his club beginning on May 8 and ending on May 12, will surely mean a bunch of money for the six fighters who are to engage in the three battles, for it is expected that over 100,000 persons will visit the city during the week the fights are to be fought, being Fiesta Week in Los Angeles. The money weight the six pugilists should split up out of their battles right to match close to $45,000. Nelson and Herrera alone are battling for a guaranteed purse of $20,000.

Gardner to Have Two Matches On.

Jodie Gardner, the ex-lightweight champion, who fights Mike Schreck, the champion heavyweight, for ten rounds before the Wabash A. C., of Terre Haute, Ind., on Friday night, has accepted terms from Willie Pierce, matchmaker of the Lincoln A. C., Chicago, Mass., to fight Jack Johnson, the colored heavy-weight champion, for fifteen rounds at that club on the night of April 19.

Waiting for McIlody's Forfeit.

The Jack Daugherty-Hopper McIlody match, which the Badger Club, of Milwaukee, is trying to close for the next show on April 20, is still hanging fire. The fighters have agreed upon their weights, and Manager Meaney has been asked to wire his forfeit of $500 at once. Frank Mulkern, Daugherty's manager, insists that the forfeit be sent on immediately in order that the match may be closed.

Neary and Briggs Good as Matched.

Charley Neary, the Milwaukee lightweight, and Jimmy Briggs, of Boston, will clash in the ring of the Lynn A. C., of Chelsea, Mass., in a ten-round bout on April 20. Briggs is going to meet the big lightweight at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock. Manager Sullivan signed articles with Matchmaker Pierce, of the Eastern club, for the window on April 28, and if the proposed match with Briggs falls through some other fast Easterner will be secured.

Billy Maynard to Fight Again.

Billy Maynard, who was a great little fighter a few years ago, was matched last night to meet Clarence Forbes in the star bout of three rounds at the next stag of the Morrisania A. C., which takes place Tuesday night. Maynard was quite anxious to scrape for the bout, as he still thinks he can trim all of the feather-weight boxing at the stags in this city.

McGarry to Fight Seiger.

Jimmy McGarry, who stopped Adam Ryan last night, will be a busy boxer for the next few months. He signed last night he was immediately signed up by the matchmaker of the Metropolitan A. They both like to sing and every minute they are in the ring there is something doing. Seiger will make his debut here in the semi-windup with Tommy McCormick, who stopped Tommy Moran recently. Six-round bouts are called.

COLUMBIA KILLS OFF ITS SPORTS

Reforms in Columbia athletics, decided upon by the faculty committee recently appointed by President Butler, of the university, and announced yesterday, virtually give a death blow to intercollegiate athletics in the Morningside university. The reforms have been embodied in a general recommendation to the University Council, and this body will adopt them at its next meeting.

The baseball and basket-ball teams are the hardest hit. Both play a number of out-of town games. Teams hereafter will be limited to three out of town and three at home games in each season. Besides this no athletic contests are to be held after commencement day with the exception of the regatta at Poughkeepsie. To fit the new requirements the schedule of the baseball team will be cut almost in half, while the basket-ball team will be compelled to withdraw from the Intercollegiate League.

FIGHTS TO-NIGHT.

Jack Goodman and Bert Keyes will meet in the wind-up of an all-star card at the Long Acre Athletic Club, West Twenty-ninth street, to-night. Goodman recently gave Harry Harris the toughest fight of his career. For the semi-wind-up Joe Youngs will take on Tom Connolly. This will also be a lively go. Among the others who will appear are Howard Smith and George Hoey, Charlie Goldman and "Young Frenchy," Billy Reilly and Willie Mangold, Jimmy Murtha and Joe O'Hare and two other bouts.
