SHOT AT HUSBAND, FREED BY COURT

Policeman Who Arrested Mrs. Feeney Had Lapse of Memory.

MAGISTRATE IS NETTLED

Street Shooting Case Dismissed Because of Lack of Evidence by Police, Who Saw Nothing.

Mrs. Ruth Feeney, a dainty woman of twenty-nine, so hysterical that she could not talk, was taken to the West One Hundredth street police station to-day after shooting at her husband, Thomas, a bartender, at One Hundred and Fourth street and Columbus avenue.

Arrested with this young woman was John H. Fisher, of No. 388 Manhattan avenue, who tried to prevent the firing, as a disinterested bystander, and who is said to have been unmercifully clubbed by the police.

Mrs. Feeney and her husband have been living at No. 72 West One Hundred and Second street.

Mrs. Feeney called on her husband early to-day, and there was a short conversation, when, it is alleged by the police, he slapped her in the face. She backed into the street and was almost off her feet when she drew a revolver and began shooting.

Peacemaker Arrested.

Just at this time Fisher, who was passing, ran in. He seized the revolver and undoubtedly saved the man from being shot.

He was still grappling with the woman when Policeman Coyle came up. Coyle grappled with the woman and disarmed her. Then he arrested her, and when other policemen came up they arrested Fisher.

Although numerous charges were made at the time of the arrest, Patrolman Coyle, later, in the West Side Court, could not make any affidavit. Magistrate Moss questioned him in vain in the effort to get the basis for a complaint.

The arrest of Fisher was not brought out until after the questioning, and when told of this arrest by one of the court clerks, Magistrate Moss said:

"I ought to have taken testimony in this case and sent it to Police Headquarters."

Patrolman Coyle arraigned Feeney and his wife. He put the revolver on the desk and then said to the Magistrate:

"I arrested this woman at One Hundred and Fourth street and Columbus avenue. I was at One Hundred and Sixth street when I heard a shot, and running down the street I found the woman lying in the street and the revolver at her side. There was a crowd around. I arrested her and some time afterward Feeney came to the stationhouse and was arrested."

Different Story to Tell.

Magistrate Moss then started to question the policeman. The latter could tell nothing more, saying he didn't know who fired the shot or who was fired at. At this point Magistrate Moss learned that Fisher was a prisoner in the case.

"Why didn't you tell me about this arrest?" he asked.

"I didn't know about it," replied Coyle.

Fisher was then taken before the Magistrate, but he gave no information.

"Why was this man arrested and how did he receive the black eye and cut face?"

Fisher said that Patrolman Eckoff had struck him without cause. The policeman said that Fisher resisted arrest.

"Why did you arrest him?" asked Magistrate Moss of Eckoff.

"I did so at Coyle's request."

Then the Magistrate turned to Coyle and asked him why he did not know about Fisher's arrest. Coyle mumbled something that could not be heard.

"There is something pecular about this affair," said Magistrate Moss. "This policeman apparently knows nothing. He don't want to tell everything. There is nothing to hold them on."

Magistrate Moss then discharged all three prisoners.

YOUNG GOULD WINS AT NETS ABROAD

His Opponent in Preliminary Round Is J. Crane Jr., of Boston.

LONDON, April 30.—The preliminary rounds in the amateur court tennis championship, of which H. H. Miles is the holder, commenced at the Queens Club here to-day. Jay Gould, of Lakewood, N. J., beat J. Crane, jr., of Boston, Mass., by 3 to 0.

NEW YORK GETS FIRST THUMB PRINT-PROOF.

A letter from Scotland Yard, London, to-day demonstrated the success of the first case in which the New York police employed the impression of a criminal's thumb as a means of identification.

When Henry Johnson was arrested three weeks ago for looting rooms of guests at the Waldorf-Astoria, his thumb-print was taken at Police Headquarters, photographed and copies were sent to all police departments employing that system of identification.

Inspector McNaughton, of Scotland Yard, in his letter to the New York detectives says that by the thumb print of Henry Johnson he is able to identify him as James Jones, a well-known English hotel thief, who has served several terms for robberies and who operated extensively in England and on the Continent. The London police enclosed a photograph of Jones, and the detectives at Headquarters identified it as that of the Henry Johnson they arrested.

Johnson was sent to Sing Sing last week to serve seven years.

BELMONT PAYS PART OF SUBWAY RENTAL

Sends Comptroller Checks for $346,774.27, but Not for 1 Per Cent. in Dispute.

Comptroller Metz to-day received from the Interborough Railway Company two checks, for $341,816.27 and $4,958, interest due on the bonds issued for those parts of the Subway now in operation.

In a statement of the cost, profits and operating expenses the company refers separately to the parts of the system operating under the two contract: No. 1, the McDonald contract, so-called, and the other, No. 2, the contract referring to the portion of the road below Fulton street.

Under No. 1 the company gives $37,131,773.27 as the total cost; receipts for first three months of 1906, $1,965,002.46; expenses, $745,663.78, showing profits $1,218,338.78. Under contract No. 2 the cost (capital invested), $2,629,619.24; receipts for first three months of 1906, $195,734.80; expenses, $33,098.28; showing profits $162,636.52.

The statements say that in the operating expense charges no account has been made for wear and tear. Under the contract the Interborough pays only on the bonds issued for the portions of the subway that are in operation. None of the money so far paid is on account of the 1 per cent. sinking fund, which Mr. Metz's department claims is now due to the city from the company.

LAWYER SENT TO PRISON.

Lawrence P. Mingey, forty years old, a lawyer, who was convicted of forgery in the second degree two weeks ago, was to-day sentenced to Sing Sing Prison for eighteen months by Judge Cowing in General Sessions.

Mingey was formerly a busy practitioner in the courts of this city. It was alleged that he had uttered a forged check for $225 drawn on the Hamilton Bank to the order of the Roe Lumber Company in December last, the check having been stolen.

District-Attorney Jerome urged Judge Cowing to give Mingey the maximum sentence for the crime, ten years, declaring that Mingey's general character as a lawyer was very bad.
