DOLLY'S GRANDMA IN CHORUS WITH HER

So Is Dollie's Ma, Says Genella Kirk, Who Sues Them for $150.

Eureka!
Discovered!

Three generations in the same chorus, and on the stage you can't tell 'em apart, Grandma Van Kanzler, Mamma McCann and Daughter Dollie McCann were all troupers with the Alcazar Burlesque company at Miner's Eighth avenue up to this afternoon. Another chorus girl, Genella Kirk, of the same company, is suing the Van Kanzler-McCann clan for $150, and that is how the secret came out.

Of course it would be unfair to take the word of Genella Kirk as to the age of Chorus Girl Van Kanzler. Miss Kirk admits that she is dead sore on the agile and well-preserved grandmother. But you can figure it out.

Dolly McCann is eighteen. Dolly's mother is somewhere between thirty-five and forty.

How old is Dolly's mother's mother? Don't ask us.

Genella Real Indignant.

"If I'd tell you how old she was," said Genella Kirk at her apartment, No. 247 West Twenty-fifth street, this afternoon, "you'd throw a fit. Honest to heaven, if I haven't stood a lot from that bunch!

"In June, 1904, they were put off at Buffalo, and you could hear the jar clear across Lake Erie. They were certainly down and out. I took care of 'em. Why, Mrs. McCann has got $37 worth of gold in her teeth right now that I paid for, and if she don't cough up the coin pretty soon I'm going after the gold.

"Not only did I produce for Minnie McCann's gold teeth, but I paid a $30 mortgage on her piano. Then I paid the railroad fares for the whole family to New York and got the three of them jobs in burlesque at $19 a week each.

"Now, I want it distinctly understood that I don't care anything about the money. My art is more to me than anything else. I never said a word to them about the money and I stood a lot from all three, but finally they hit the limit. What do you think?

The Last Straw.

"Say, I get so mad when I recall that insult that I almost cry. I noticed a growing coldness on their part for some time. Whoever said that the best way to lose a friend is to lend her money had his cue all right. I didn't mind so much what Minnie McCann and her daughter said to me, but when the old lady called me 'mogdern' I drank the dregs of ingratitude. 'MOTHER!'"

Here Miss Kirk was quite overcome. It was some moments before she could proceed. Her emotion was in three colors and a tint.

"Well," she continued, "that was my finish. I waited till we got to New York, and then I retained my lawyer, Moses Strasman, of No. 853 Broadway, to sue them for that $150. You ought to hear the remarks they make to me on the stage, but if they're looking for a battle I'm not afraid of the whole bunch."

The suggestion of battle made by Miss Kirk was almost fulfilled when the troupers gathered for this afternoon's performance at Miner's. They do say that the four-cornered conversation—Miss Kirk holding down one corner with considerable success—was full of originality even for a burlesque show.

Grandmother Didn't Quit.

Suddenly Dolly McCann burst into tears. Her mother followed suit. Simultaneously they announced that it was a case of quitting the show if Genella Kirk was not given her notice.

Manager Charles A. Taylor tried all his diplomacy—and burlesque managers have a lot of it—to hold his company together, because the season is about to close and new girls are hard to get. Genella Kirk declared that she wouldn't quit and dared anybody to fire her. The upshot was that Mrs. McCann and her beautiful and lachrymose young daughter walked out of the theatre and left the show to its fate.

But what of grandma? Did she give up the ship? Never! When the curtain went up on the first part she was in her place as gay and blithe as the gayest, seeking, in common with her deadly enemy, Miss Kirk, to conceal from the audience the fact that the show was two girls shy.

WOMAN DID NOT LURE BOYS AWAY

Former Servant Accused by Father of Children Discharged by Court.

That Kenneth and Clarence Dodge, twelve and nine years old respectively, were not lured from their home, No. 250 West One Hundred and Fifty-fourth street, to Fishkill Landing by Elizabeth Nugent, formerly a servant in their family, was the opinion of Magistrate Mayo in the Harlem Court to-day when he discharged Miss Nugent.

The boys' father, Clarence C. Dodge, was in court to announce that the servant, after leaving his employ, had written letters to his wife, who is the boys' stepmother, Miss Nugent denied this, as she did the allegation that she kidnapped the children.

Kenneth and Clarence disappeared on Sunday and were found in Fishkill Landing yesterday. They said they had received a letter signed "Elizabeth" directing them to come to Fishkill Landing. They said they thought it was from Elizabeth Nugent, so they spent all their pocket money except five cents for carfare and went to the up-river town. They didn't find Elizabeth.

Miss Nugent's present employer, Mr. Dwight, of No. 690 West End avenue, was in court with his lawyer to defend her to-day. Hers was an absolute denial, and although she admitted having writen letters to Mrs. Dodge, she said they were in answer to letters from her former mistress. Lawyer Dillingham said he could prove that Mrs. Dodge had sent unpleasant letters to Miss Nugent, but Magistrate Mayo said they had nothing to do with the case.

OCEANIC OFF THE COAST.

The White Star line steamer Oceanic, from Liverpool and Queenstown for New York, was in communication by wireless telegraph with the Marconi station at Sable Island, N. S., when the vessel was 155 miles southeast of Sable Island, at 11.30 P. M. She will probably reach her pier in New York about 5 P. M. to-morrow.

BELIEVES PRIESTS SEEK TO KILL HIM

Boy Suffering From Delusion Terrifies Firty Girls in a Factory.

Raving under the delusion that he was to be killed by priests and then hanged in a belfry as an angel, Adam Herder was to-day taken from the Althaus box factory at No. 637 East Seventeenth street, where he is employed, to the psychopathic ward in Bellevue. He terrified the fifty girls on the second floor and had to be held down when the ambulance arrived. He has been smoking from 50 to 100 cigarettes a day, and the surgeons think this excess has something to do with his dementia.

Herder had not been seen at the factory since last Saturday, when he drew his pay and left. This noon he burst into the room screaming at the top of his voice that he was being pursued and that they were going to kill him. The girls were thrown into a panic and were calmed only when the foreman, Shault, succeeded in quieting the man. An ambulance was hurriedly called, and Herder was removed, fighting, to the hospital.

His aunt, Mrs. John Werlein, with whom he has lived since a child, at No. 817 Forest avenue, the Bronx, says he escaped from her home late Sunday night by climbing out of a window and that since then he has been at large, armed with a large carving knife and fork. The only word from him was received to-day on a postal card. It read:

"Dear Aunt: I'm at the East Twenty-third street ferry. I'm to be shot to-day, but I'll try to get up to see you before they accomplish their purpose. My regards to your son Edward and to my brother Anthony. I will try to get up to see you before they shoot me. Yours, ADAM."

Notified the Police.

On receiving this Mrs. Werlein hurried down to the East Twenty-second street police station to ask them to watch for Adam. It was believed he was in that vicinity because the Church of the Immaculate Conception is there and because its pastor, Father Edwards, figures in Adam's delusions. For a week before climbing out of the window he had been telling his friends that Father Edwards was angry with him because he would not become a priest and that the pastor had said he was going to shoot him and hang his body to a rafter in the churc so that he would become an angel.

He also said that Father Murphy, of the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, in West One Hundred and Fifty-first street, had threatened to put a lot of quicksand on his doorstep, so that when Herder attempted to go in or out he would be swallowed up in the quicksand.

His Carving Set.

A number of relatives were at the house Sunday afternoon, and at the dinner table Adam seized the carving knife and fork and attacked his brother Anthony, but was pulled off before doing any harm. While sleeping with his brother Anthony last Wednesday night he attacked him, and might have choked him to death had not the other members of the family separated them. He accused his brother of having informed Father Edwards that he would not become a priest.

When the young man left the house Saturday night the carving set disappeared at the same time, and the family presumes he has it.

His aunt says that for several years he has been in the habit of smoking at least forty cigarettes a day, and that often, when he could get the money, he smoked as many as a hundred.

BOY SHOT THREE; MUST STAND TRIAL

Magistrate Insists Victims of Jealous Youth Appear to Prosecute.

Paul Veitz, the nineteen-year-old boy who, on Jan. 22, shot his sweetheart, Lilian Murphy, her mother and brother at their home, No. 667 Wales avenue, the Bronx, was to-day arraigned before Magistrate Morse in the Westchester Court. None of the complainants was present, and the Magistrate recommitted him again for a hearing Thursday next. Policeman Grady was instructed to produce one of the complainants in court on that date.

All three of the victims of the jealous youth's rage were taken to the hospital severely injured. The mother and son were discharged from the hospital several weeks ago, but the girl hovered between life and death up to a few days ago. She was shot in the breast and developed pneumonia. She is now in the country recuperating.

Veitz shot his sweetheart because she would not marry him. He was a bricklayer and had been boarding at the Murphy home for some months. At the supper table he displayed a revolver, but the girl thought he was joking. He shot her as she entered the parlor. Her brother and mother rushed in and were met by a hail of bullets. Veitz escaped and was caught after a chase and a fight.

ENGINEER FALLS DEAD AND TRAIN SPEEDS ON.

CARLISLE, Pa., May 15.—Oliver Morris, of Hagerstown, Md., a freight engineer on the Cumberland and Valley Railroad, was found dead in his cab near here to-day. The train was running at its usual rate of speed when Morris was found.

Apoplexy is thought to have caused death.

Free Deliveries--Facts that Affect You

THE BIG STORE has set the pace for all New York not only in the speed, but in the extent of its free delivery system. Ten years ago, when we began business, the free deliveries of the average Manhattan store were confined to a radius of fifteen miles, or thereabouts, in which territory lying north of the Harlem River or east of East New York was served in somewhat desultory and uncertain fashion.

We changed all that. Our regular wagon delivery by which purchases of any amount, large or small, will be delivered at your door, extends from Belmar, New Jersey, to Ossining, New York; the largest district covered by any store in America. The entire shore line of western Long Island and of Connecticut as far as Stamford is included.

Moreover, the service is thorough. Every foot of it is covered at least once a day and the more thickly settled portions twice to four times a day.

In addition to this free wagon delivery, any purchase of $5 or more will be delivered free by freight to any freight-receiving station in the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and to Washington, D. C. (This does not include cartage from freight station to your home.)
