MAYOR DEMANDS FIREPROOF CARS IN THE SUBWAY

Tells Rapid Transit Board Time for Academic Discussion Has Passed.

MUST DO SOMETHING.

Tells Commission's Counsel to Get Busy and Force Lessee to Act.

For the second time since the passage of the new law giving the Mayor appointing power over the Board of Estimate, he sat with the Board this afternoon, and emphasized his determination that something will have to be done. "The time for Academic discussions and parliamentary courtesies has passed, and the demands of this board will have to be enforced with something more convincing than requests and suggestions," he said when the matter of fire proof cars was under discussion.

Chief Engineer Rice submitted his report on the collision in the Subway last Friday, which resulted in the burning of a train of empty cars just south of One Hundred and Seventh street. He says the accident forcibly illustrates three points:

(1) No parts of cars used in subway service should be constructed of inflammable material.

(2) An adequate fire-line service should be installed throughout the whole subway so that water could be had at interior points.

(3) Means should be provided for quickly removing the smoke from the subway in such emergencies."

Chief Engineer Rice also presented his supplemental report on the East River Subway tunnel to Brooklyn.

He Shifts the Blame.

By references to letters and minutes he showed that he had kept the Commission informed of defects in the construction of the tunnel, and shifted the responsibility for the Mayor's ignorance of conditions to other shoulders than his own.

"It has been the purpose of the engineering department," said the report, "not to interfere in this work in any way that would place upon the city responsibility for the defects."

The inference drawn is that to meddle in the matter now may put the city to the expense of rebuilding at its own expense.

The Mayor considered this a direct slap at him for interfering, but passed that phase of the question without comment.

The Mayor accepted the gage of battle flung out by Engineer Rice's report.

"You stake your official head that the tunnel will be completed by Jan 1?" asked the Mayor.

"Yes," replied Rice.

"The tunnel will be completed by Jan. 1 then?" said the Mayor.

"I believe it will."

"Will it?"

"I think so. I am sure it can be completed."

He Wants the Facts.

"Please conjugate yourself in the future indicative for once, instead of the subjunctive, as you always do," said the Mayor. "Please tell this board when the tunnel will be finished."

"That depends on the contractor. He can finish it if he wants to?" said Mr. Rice ,emphatically.

"How about Engineer Jacobs's report?" asked the Mayor.

"I have built some tunnels—two for this city—and I know something about tunnels myself. I know what the contractor can do and what depends very much upon himself and this Board, and besides that you can be certain of nothing in tunnel building."

This ended the discussion, and no action was taken on the report.

For Fireproof Cars.

The Board then took up the matter of fireproof cars.

The Mayor wanted some definite action, and insisted upon it, but was cut off by Mr. Rives, counsel of the Board, who said that the Board could do nothing more than advise and urge the lessee to make the improvement, and if the company refuses to do so then a suit could be begun to revoke the franchise.

"Then do that," said the Mayor. "Don't discuss the question academically, but make demands and take steps to enforce them."

The Rapid Transit Board was beginning to wake up and take notice that in future Mayor McClellan intends to have something to say about its "activities."

The Mayor dominated the Board. Every time he asked a question somebody was touched in the raw, and there was a general feeling that the days of prefunctory dealing with questions of public interest are over.

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

WASHINGTON PARK, BROOKLYN, June 7.—The winning streak of Patsy Donovan's Brooklyn team was broken this afternoon by the St. Louis Cardinals, who defeated them by a score of 7 to 3. Scanlon's curves were pie for the visitors, who drove them to all parts of the field.

The Brooklyns gave Scanlon miserable support, making four errors behind him. Taylor, on the other hand, was well backed up by his clubmates, who made some great catches and stops of hard hit balls.

First Inning.

Bennett took three healthy swings at Scanlon's fast flings. Shannon raised a high foul, which Casey got near the stand by a great run. Smoot did the same and Casey got another brilliant putout. NO RUNS.

Casey sent a grounder to McBride, who fumbled, giving Jimmy his base. Batch drove a long fly to Shannon. Lumley lined to right for a base, advancing Casey at third. Jordan flied out to Hostetter, Casey scoring. Lumley reached second, McBride dropping Grady's throw. Maloney drew a pass. Bergen was thrown out at first by McBride. ONE RUN.

Second Inning.

Beckley pushed a fast bounder which Alperman and Jordan took care of. Arndt hit over Maloney's head in centre for three bases. Hostetter also tore off a threebagger, sending Arndt over the plate. Grady walked. McBride fanned the air. Taylor sent a fly to Maloney. ONE RUN.

Alperman hit centre and stopped at first. Lewis sacrificed. Scanlon fanned out like an amateur. Casey raised a fly which McBride gathered in. NO RUNS.

Third Inning.

Bennett hit to right for a sack. Shannon swung at three of Scanlon's straight ones. Smoot banged a liner to right field fence for three bases, scoring Bennett. Beckley flied to Lumley, Smoot scoring. Arndt hit to left for two bases. Hostetter flied to Shannon. TWO RUNS.

Batch sent a fly into Shannon's hands. Lumley's hard fly was collared by Beckley. Jordan smashed to the fence in centre for a home run. Maloney raised a bunt fly in front of the plate and Grady grabbed it. ONE RUN.

Fourth Inning.

Casey made a great stop of Grady's hot grounder and threw Mike out. By a few inches Maloney was prevented from doing club swinging. Taylor drove a low fly to Lumley. NO RUNS.

Bergen singled to centre, Alperman sacrificed, Taylor throwing him out. Lewis's bounder was disposed of by Arndt and Beckley, Bergen landing on third. Scanlon sent a high one to Hostetter. NO RUNS.

Fifth Inning.

Bennett reached first on Casey's wide throw. Batch misjudged Shannon's drive, giving the hurter two bases and putting Bennett on third. Alperman fumbled Smoot's grounder, filling the bases. Beckley flied out to Maloney, Bennett scoring. Jordan's knock of Arndt's fly let Shannon score. After Shannon's error on Hostetter's bounder let Smoot tally. Arndt was caught stealing third, Bergen to Casey. Hostetter stole second. Grady flied to Maloney. THREE RUNS.

Casey line-flied to Smoot. Batch also lifted one which Smoot caught without any exertion. Lumley's high foul fly was collared by Arndt.

Sixth Inning.

McBride sent a skyscraper to Casey. Taylor flied out to Lumley. Bennett persisted on an infield raise which Lewis got. NO RUNS.

Jordan was easy, Taylor to Beckley. McBride made a neat running catch of Maloney's fly in short left. Bergen slammed to the centre for three bases. Alperman was retired by Bennett and Beckley. NO RUNS.

Seventh Inning.

Shannon singled over Lewis's head. Smoot bunted safely, Shannon going to second. Beckley sacrificed. Arndt flied to Batch, Shannon scoring. Hostetter popped to Lewis. ONE RUN.

Lewis flied to Smoot. Scanlon out, Bennett to Beckley. Casey swatted to centre for a base. Batch was thrown out at first by Grady. NO RUNS.

Eighth Inning.

Grady out, Alperman to Jordan. McBride walked. Taylor flied to Lumley. Bennet flied to Jordan. NO RUNS.

Lumley singled. Jordan drove a grounder to Beckley, who forced Lumley at second. McBride returned the ball to Beckley in time to double up Jordan. Maloney fouled out to Arndt. NO RUNS.

Ninth Inning.

Shannon bunted to Alperman and was caught at first. Smoot fouled to Jordan. Beckley flied to Maloney. NO RUNS.

Bergen bunted out, Taylor to Beckley. Lewis singled, Hummel batted for Scanlon. Taylor made a balk, aiding Lewis to second. Hummell walked. Casey hit to right for two bases, scoring Lewis. Batch out, McBride to Jordan. ONE RUN.

DRIVERS AT EMPIRE TRACK.

An agreement will probably be signed to-day by which the summer meeting of the Road Drivers' Association will be held at Empire track, Yonkers, instead of at White Plains, where the half mile track was selected earlier in the season, when James Butler had declined to renew a previous agreement, thinking that he would secure dates from the State Racing Commission for a thoroughbred meeting.

The announcement of the renewal of the agreement with President Butler idicates that there will be no race meeting for the harg tails during the racing at Saratoga, as has been recently intimated.

SING YE HOY! JACKIE HIT THE BOOKIES HARD

Mullins, of the Colorado, Picked Lady Amelia and Court Dress.

BY T. O. PIPER.

GRAVESEND TRACK, June 7.—Ye hoi! to Bluejacket Mullins, of the United States fighting craft Colorado.

"Without turning a hair," in the vernacular of Bookmaker "Humming Bird" Tyler, Mullins counted out $1,000 in greasy greenbacks and, shoving the mass into Tyler's hands, said: "There ye be, shipmate; stow that in yer cashhold on Lady Amelia. She's as trim a craft as ever gallivanted an', being slipper built, kin towrope them canalboats in this cruise, I reckon."

And Bluejacket Mullins, giving an athwart hitch to his trousers, sailed away contentedly chewing a cud.

Mullins joined several other of Colorado's crew on the "Poop deck," as he termed the grand stand. He had bet his $1,000 at 7 to 10, meaning that if Lady Amelia won he would receive back $1,700.

"That she bears, coming due east with all sails set and a ploughing along as if she is wearing twin screws," yelled Mullins as the Lady forged to the front easily. "Keep her head on!" yelled Mullins, evidently intending his command to reach the ears of Jockey Miller, who was riding the mare.

"There be a good pilot as ever shipped," shouted Mullins as Miller let out a kink and the mare increased her lead. "Here she comes, a bone in her teeth and, be gee! we win!" fairly yelled Mullins as he clapped his hands on the shoulders of a delighted shipmate as Lady Amelia breezed in the easiest of winners.

There was grog to throw away for the middies after that. Mullins got aboard in the third race, too, with a $200 bet on Court Dress. It was a great day for the Navy.

NURSE DIES MARTYR TO HER PROFESSION.

Miss Edith Kilmer Poisoned While Aaiding Patient in Cancer Sanitarium.

The funeral of Miss Edith M. Kilmer, head nurse of the Kilmer Cancer Sanitarium at Jamaica, L. I., was held today. Those who knew the young woman declared that she was a martyr to the cause of medicine. Death was due to poisoning received while treating a cancer patient.

Her cousin, Prof. C. J. Kilmer, head of the sanitarium, explained that she had slightly scratched one of her hands while assisting in a treatment. The deadly virus, quite as active as snake poison, had taken quick effect. She received the infection on Saturday and died Tuesday night.

POLICEMAN INDICTED FOR TAKING A BRIBE.

Policeman William H. Sheehan, of the East One Hundred and Fourth street station, who was arrested Saturday charged with demanding and accepting a bribe, was to-day indicted by the Grand Jury on a charge of compounding a felony.

The complaint against Sheehan grew out of the attempt of Florence Staufer to shoot Howard Post, both colored, on March 23 on Sixth avenue. Sheehan made the arrest in that case and Detectives Reardon and O'Neil, of the District-Attorney's office, swore that they saw Sheehan accept $50 in marked bills from Mrs. Mary Pairon, aunt of Florence Staufer, to "square the case."

Mrs. Parron informed the District-Attorney that Sheehan had made a demand for money from her by telling her that he could "fix it" so that there would be no complaint. Reardon and O'Neil were hidden in the room when Sheehan called and they swore they saw the policeman take the money.

CLERK OUT OF WORK ENDS LIFE BY GAS.

Clemens Hemprecht was found dead to-day in his furnished room on the third floor of No. 30 Ashland place, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Lizzie Daly smelled gas and traced it to Hemprecht's room. Being unable to force the door, she called a policeman who broke in. The cap had been removed from the jet, and all the crevices of the room filled with white lead to prevent the gas from escaping.

Hemprecht was a clerk who has been out of work three weeks and despondent. He had no friends. The landlady will take charge of the body.

LINCOLN HOSPITAL NURSES GRADUATED.

At the Lincoln Hospital, the Bronx, this afternoon, the graduation exercises of the Lincoln Hospital and Home and Training School for Nurses were held. There were twelve graduates, all colored girls from Southern States.

The Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin opened the exercises with prayer, and he was followed by an address by the Rev. H. S. Frissell, who spoke to the graduating class. He stated that they had a great field before them among their people, and urged them to do everything in their power for the betterment of their people.

Following Supt. Lake, of the hospital, made an address and presented the diplomas.

pose. Moran singled and walked to first. Pfeister singled and Moran deliberately walked around the bases, allowing Devlin to put him out. ONE RUN.

The game was beginning to be turned into a joke, and many persons were leaving the grounds. Heavy clouds were coming up and Chicago was evidently trying to hurry through five innings.

Tinker threw out Mertes. Dahlen walked. Devlin then stole second. Gilbert was hit and walked. Bowerman went out, Steinfeld to Chance. NO RUNS.

Fifth Inning.

Slagle out, Gilbert to McGann. Dahlen threw out Sheckard at first. Schulte drove ine into the right field bleachers for a home run. Chance dropped one over second for a base and was caught stealing second. ONE RUN.

Chance got Ferguson's grounder and tossed to Pfeister. Sheehan struck out. Browne went out on a foul to Moran. NO RUNS.

Sixth Inning.

Steinfeldt struck out. Dahlen threw out Tinker at first. Hoffman batted for Evers, the little second baseman having been slightly spiked by Devlin. The new man shot a single into left. Dahlen got Moran at first. NO RUNS.

Hoffman began playing second for Chicago. Moran filed to Sheckard. Mertes went out on a grounder to Mertes. Dahlen got a freeticket over the "big four." Devlin dropped one over second, advancing Dahlen. Gilbert drove a long foul to Sheckard. NO RUNS.

Seventh Inning.

Pfeister strolled to first on a pass. Slagle forced Pfeister at second. Slagle was caught napping off first and run down between the bases, Sheckard walked. Sheckard was purposely caught napping off first and run down. NO RUNS.

Tinker got Bowerman's grounder and threw him out at first. Ferguson fouled to Moran. Bresnahan walked and was caught stealing second. NO RUNS.

Eighth Inning.

Schulte flied to Mertes. Chance beat a bunt to Devlin. Steinfeldt singled, sending Chance to third. Tinker flied to Mertes and Chance scored. Hoffman lined a long one to Bresnahan. ONE RUN.

Reulbach began pitching for Chicago. Browne tried to bunt, but Chance got him. Moran fouled to Steinfeldt. Mertes was thrown out by Tinker. NO RUNS.

SLAYER'S VICTIM DIED WITH SECRET

A charge of assault against Leonardo Brancado, a prisoner in the Tombs, was changed to one of homicide to-day, when Francesco Lapeigia died in Gouverneur Hospital. Brancado shot Lapeigia in Chrystie street, near Stanton street, on the night of June 1.

Both men were born in Palermo and came here, together with their wives. Brancado lived at No. 363 Chrystie street; Lapeigia at No. 26 Prince street. They were close friends and associates.

A brief quarrel on the street led to the shooting. Brancado tried to escape, but was captured by Policeman Neitner hiding in a restaurant at No. 131 Bowery. At the hospital Lapeigia identified him.

Lapeigia refused to disclose the cause of the shooting before he died, even when implored to do so by his wife and mother. Brancado has been equally reticent.

supposed protection of a delusive subterfuge.

Farcical Evasion.

"The farcical legerdemain in the pretended initiation of a multitude of so-called members was a crude attempt to make the law a mockery.

"The section in question, while it condemns brutal prize fights, permits, under certain conditions, sparring exhibitions for legitimate social amusement and proper physical culture, but in this case the provisions of that section have been used as a cloak to make merchandise of their violation.

"Prize-fighting, or anything akin to it, such as this encounter seems to have been, is hostile to our modern civilization. But whether such exhibitions are liked or disliked by few or many, matters not; the law is against them, and the law, above all things, must be upheld. The section of the Penal Code invoked in this case can have no meaning at all if it is not to prevent the doing of the very things of which these defendants are apparently guilty.

Orders Warrants Issued.

"I therefore direct that formal complaints be made against these defendants, that warrants be issued, and the defendants be held to answer."

Frank S. Hurst, one of the club, Hurst acted as referee; four of the defendants were arrested for selling admission tickets on the street near the Garden, and Britt and McGovern, with eight others, participated in the evening's entertainment as "writers."

Joseph Brown and Frank Fassett, employed as waiters by the Garden caterer, were arrested for violating the excise laws. The charge was afterward changed to "aiding and abetting."

COPS SPOILED HIS WINNING STREAK

Wilson, Accused of Robbing Employers, Was Doing Well at Track.

Frederick P. Wilson, for whom the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, of Los Angeles, Cal., has been looking since last December, was arraigned in the Centre Street Police Court to-day charged with the theft of $2,100 from the company.

An hour before he was arraigned he confessed, so it was reported in court, to having taken at least $5,000 and that he was unable to tell what the total shortage would be.

Wilson has been in New York most of the time since leaving California. He has had a good time at the race tracks and said to-day that he had struck a winning streak in betting just when the sleuths nabbed him.

A circular bearing Wilson's likeness had been given to all detectives in the city and late last night Detectives Sergeants Kerr and Chandler recognized him coming out of the subway station at Lenox avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.

For several months he had been living at the Mount Morris Hotel, No. 121 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, under the name of C. R. Parks. He was plentifully supplied with cash, had many suits of clothes and took his arrest without excitement.

Wilson was a clerk for the Los Angeles company until he suddenly disappeared in December. For several months previous to that time the company had missed large amounts of money and when their loss was traced to Wilson he skipped out.

When taken before Inspector McLaughlin, at Detective Headquarters, to-day, Wilson admitted, so it is said, that he took the $2,100 draft and had it cashed, and that besides that he could remember about $5,000 he had obtained in a similar manner.

EARTHQUAKE AT MANILA; FEARS FOR SAMAR.

NAGGED BY BOYS IN SCHOOL LAD SHOT HIMSELF

Tried to Scare His Tormentors but Couldn't Manage Old Revolver.

Because he prefers study to play and is trying to please his fond father by graduating from public school this June, Charles Reinmuller, fourteen years old, of No. 519 West Forty-seventh street, has earned the dislike of his schoolmates. They have been teasing and pestering him for a long time, urging him to stop being a "grind" and to prove that he is of the right sort by neglecting his studies.

At first he didn't mind, but later the continual nagging began to tell. He couldn't reach school in the morning without being told that he was a "book-worm." The little chap never complained at home about his troubles, nor did he breathe a word about it to any one. He decided to act.

Nagged Him as Usual.

Yesterday afternoon, when school let out, he started for home. A crowd of about thirty boys from his own school, No. 48, collected behind him and began their customary nagging. He paid no attention for a while, but when he reached Ninth avenue he suddenly turned on the crowd.

"You kids get out of here and leave me alone," he exclaimed. "I'm not worrying you, and you've got to quit nagging me. If you don't, I'll make you."

Several of the boys drew their penknives and threatened him. One, much bigger than Reinmuller, according to a lad in the crowd, stepped forward and deliberately threw his bundle of books into the boy's face.

Fired and Shot Himself.

Without saying a word Reinmuller quietly pulled a small revolver from his pocket and pointing it upward fired. Then he cried out in pain. He had somehow shot himself through his left hand. His tormentors meanwhile were scattering when they heard another shot. In trying to put the revolver back into his pocket he had discharged it again, the bullet entering his right calf and coming out at the ankle. He was sent in an ambulance to Roosevelt Hospital, under arrest for carrying a concealed weapon.

When seen to-day School Principal Cavanagh could offer no explanation of the lad's behavior.

A Good Boy, Principal Says.

"Charlie Reinmuller was a good boy, who gave us very little trouble," said he. "He was not an unusually bright scholar, but was a hard worker. He was determined and persevering, but not an unruly or a bad boy. Still, a lad only fourteen years old, with a loaded revolver on him, is a dangerous person to have around a school with several thousand pupils. I have never heard of his being generally disliked by the other boys and can't explain his conduct."

One of his schoolmates said that Charlie was a monitor yesterday. Among his duties was that of writing up on the blackboard the names of disorderly boys. One misbehaved and Reinmuller wrote up his name. That was what had caused the trouble, the boy said. He wouldn't tell the name, because, as he expressed it, "de gang might git after me."

Not a Dime-Novel Reader.

Reinmuller's father, a big blacksmith, was much broken up by the accident.

"He's my only boy," he explained, with tears in his eyes, "and I wouldn't have had this happen for anything in the world. He's a good boy and he's been studying hard to graduate this June and then enter High School. Besides his school studies, I took a music lesson every day. One thing is certain, his carrying a gun was not caused by his reading dime novels, or any such trash. I wouldn't let him read it. Indeed for years I've taken five Sunday papers in the house so as to keep him from reading bad stuff. I suppose he was just foolish and thought he'd take the law in his own hands. But I feel this whole thing very keenly."

Charlie was accompanied by his mother to the Children's Court to-day. The gun was a four-barrelled arrangement of the old "pepper-box" make. Judge Olmsted berated the boy severely on the danger of carrying weapons and discharged him on the ground that he had already been sufficiently punished.

THE YALE CREWS AT GALES FERRY

Final Preparations Begun Over Course for Annual Struggle with Harvard.

NEW HAVEN, June 7.—At Gales Ferry the Yale crews were out to-day for trial spins over the course where the annual races with Harvard are to take place June 23. While the coaches admit that from all reports received from Boston the Harvard crews are strong, they are confident that the supporters of the Blue will give a good account of themselves. They are not entirely satisfied with the work of some of the men, and several changes are likely.

The technic of the eight seems good, but the shell is poorly balanced. The freshman squad is pretty well settled and no change is expected there. Those taken to Gales Ferry included the varsity eight, varsity four, freshman eight and eight substitutes—four varsity and four freshmen.

The make-up follows:

Varsity Eight—Stroke, Boulton; No. 7, Ide; No. 6, Noyes; No. 5, Chase; No. 4, Bigelow; No. 3, Capt. Morse; No. 2, Graham; bow, Weeks; coxswain, Barkalow.

Varsity Four—Stroke, Schumann; No. 3, Rogers; No. 2, Bouscaren; Bow, Rockwell.

Freshman Eight—Stroke, Mayer; No. 7, Dunkle; No. 6, Howe; No. 5, Peyton; No. 4, Brooks; No. 3, Rice; No. 2, Robbins; Bow, Dominick.

Freshman Four—Stroke, Livingston; No. 3, Pomeroy; No. 2, Glenny; Bow, Bateson.

ROOSEVELT HIT HARD ON SCORE OF EXTRAVAGANCE

Takes Almost $300,000 to Maintain, White House Congress Is Told.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The House to-day listened to a bitter arraignment of the President at the hands of Congressman Brundige, of Arkansas, a member of the Appropriations Committee.

Taking the items for the re-furnishing of the White House, the care of the grounds, and the travelling expenses of the President as his text, Mr. Brundige contrasted the expenses of the last Cleveland administration, the McKinley administration and the administration of Theodore Roosevelt.

Under the Cleveland administration there was expended for the executive department, including the salary of the President, $331,260. Under the McKinley administration there was expended $444,500, while the bill under consideration carries for the executive department, including the care of White House, greenhouses, &c., $536,340. In addition to this, Mr. Brundige said that there were forty policemen detailed to the care of the White House and grounds, and this was an additional $200 added, bringing the total to nearly $300,000, which he denominated as extravagance run mad.

He criticised the item appropriating $25,000 for the travelling expenses of the President and incident thereto said it was probably made for the purpose of providing for a repetition of the "muck rake" speech.

"As for myself," he said, "and I believe for a large proportion of the people of this government, we have heard enough of this muck rake nonsense and insolence, and we are disgusted with it.

"No wonder in view of present appropriations and present expenditures—no wonder the President should hold up to public ridicule magazines and newspapers of this country and public men and private citizens who dare to criticise. No wonder the President should hold up to public ridicule magazines and newspapers of this country and public men and private citizens who dare to criticise.

"I entertain the hope and belief that the time will never come in the history of politics of this government when any man occupying a position of public trust and public office will rise so high and become so great that the humblest citizen and the humblest newspaper in the largest may not lawfully properly criticise his official conduct and actions."

MANY INJURED WHEN TORNADO HIT TOWN.

HILLSBORO, Kan., June 7.—A tornado struck Cossel, a German Mennonite settlement, fifteen miles southwest of here to-day, destroying the largest store in the town and several residences.

Many persons were badly injured, but no fatalities are reported. Wires are down.

SUSPECT HELD AS FUGITIVE WHO KILLED HIS NIECE

Jersey Police Say Prisoner Admits He Is Wanted for Murder.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 7.—The police say they have Fred Lang, a fugitive since April 29, charged with shooting and killing Miss Kate Gordon, his niece, at Bonhamtown.

Lang, who lived at South Bethlehem, Pa., was in love with the girl. She refused to wed him because of their relationship. He was on a visit to the Gordon's in April and failing to win the girl's consent to wed him, he followed her from home on the date mentioned and shot her as she was boarding a trolley car.

Miss Gordon died almost instantly, and Lang fled to the woods, where a posse was unable to find him.

Joseph Lengel, a special officer, who has been working on the case for Sheriff Church, heard that Lang had returned to this city and was frequenting the saloon of Joseph Juhas. Lengel went to the place and got into conversation with the man indicated.

The detective spent some time with the suspect, and as they were about to part Lengel said in a casual way:

"Where did you come from, Fred?"

"From New York and Coney Island," the man replied.

"Don't you know they are looking for you?" he was asked.

"I guess they are," said the suspect as he shrugged his shoulders.

He was drinking a glass of beer at the time, and when finished Lengel slipped handcuffs upon him and hustled him off to jail. When shown his picture the police say the prisoner admitted that he was the man wanted.

It is asserted that he also told Prosecutor Berdine that he was the fugitive they were after. A knife was found on the prisoner.

His case will be the first called by Justice Swayzee, who opens court here soon.

THOMAS WALSH HURT.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., June 7.—Freight Engineer Frank Cunningham was killed and Fireman T. J. Callahan was fatally injured in a head-on collision between a special and a freight train on the Colorado Midland Railroad at Boyer, seventy miles west of this city, yesterday. Thomas F. Walsh, the millionaire mining man, was on the special train and suffered severe cuts and bruises. He arrived here last night.
