$900,000,000 CONGRESS ENDS SESSION TO-NIGHT

Roosevelt Busy at Capitol When Senate Delays Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Capitol was thronged to-day in anticipation of the closing of the first session of the Fifty-ninth Congress. The Senate and House were filled with members and visitors, and every corridor of the great building was a scene of scurry and bustle.

President Roosevelt went to the Capitol in the forenoon to sign the final bills and was busy every minute, either attending to executive business, holding conferences or receiving visitors.

In both branches of Congress the desire to adjourn and get away was evident in every move, business being dispatched with all possible speed. The closing hours were characteristic of the entire session, which was strenuous from start to finish.

There were tiresome waits, though, occasioned by the delay in agreeing to conference reports. These were enlivened by singing, in which the galleries took part, one of the popular refrains in the House being "Everybody Works but Cannon."

There was a damper, however, cast on all at 2 P. M., the hour that adjournment was expected, when the Senate took a recess until 5 o'clock.

Owing tod the time it will take to pass the appropriation bills for public buildings the adjurnment had to be postponed until this evening.

Much history was made during the months devoted to national legislation and a number of important bills passed.

The measure which caused the greatest debate was the Railroad Rate bill. Begun with the session, its consideration continued throughout. The pure food amendment and the meat inspection provisions are also important changes in the Federal attitude toward both the producer and consumer of the country. A uniform and more strict method of naturalizing aliens was decreed.

The immunity of witnesses from prosecution who give testimony before Government tribunals was made the subject of an enactment which clearly states when such immunity obtains and when otherwise.

A bill removing the Internal Revenue tax on denatured alcohol also was passed.

The type of the Panama Canal was fixed, thus settling a question which perplexed both the professional and lay mind. The President is to build a lock level canal and was given a total of $52,000,000 for the year for that purpose. It was required that material for the canal should be of American manufacture unless the President shall find the price excessive, in which case he is given authority to buy abroad.

The Consular Service was given a complete new legal status, which will permit of an entire reorganization.

When the appropriations for the session are totalled it will be found that their aggregate has reached nearly $900,000,000. This is a greater sum than has been made available since the war Congress of 1898.

Of this amount $25,000,000 will go into new public buildings in various sections of the country. The legislation on appropriation bills has the characteristic throughout of being restrictive upon the Government department heads in the matter of making their expenditures and in submitting their estimates to Congress.

It has been the desire of Congress to put an end, as far as possible, to deficiency appropriations.

The naval increase which has been going on annually, suffered somewhat of a set-back. "The largest battleship afloat" was authorized, but Congress required that before bids for its construction could be submitted the plans must be sent to Congress at its next session.

For State Militia.

The annual appropriation for the State militia, was doubled, and hereafter $2,000,000 will be spent from the Federal Treasury for the purpose of keeping the State military organizations in touch with the regular army.

Congress gave great care to the draft of a bill intended to preserve the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and the measure was passed.

The tariff to be collected by the Philippine Government on goods entering the island trade was revised.

A measure of importance to railroad and other employees engaged in hazardous employment, known as the Employers' Liability bill, became a law.

The Government will participate in the Jamestown Ter-Centennial Exposition, and $125,000 was authorized expended out of the Federal Treasury for that event.

Speedy appropriations for the San Francisco sufferers resulted from requests from the President. Two and a half million were donated directly and supplies from the stores of the Government nearly equalled that amount.

Private pension legislation for the benefit of the old soldier who is unable to receive a pension under the statute has kept up its usual heavy pace.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS BILL WITH ERROR.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—One of the peculiar features connected with the last day of Congress was the signing of the Sundry Civil bill. As it was passed it contained an item appropriating $3,000,000 for the condemnation of a site for a building for the Departments of State, Justice and Commerce and Labor in Washington. This item was dropped out in conference, however, after it had been transferred to the Omnibus Public Building bill, and later it was dropped out of that bill also.

The enrolment clerks failed to notice that the appropriation had been eliminated from the Sundry Civil bill and included it in the copy of the bill laid before the President for his signature. Just as the President had concluded signing his name Senator Scott discovered the error.

Senator Hale and Chairman Tawney, of the House Appropriations Committee, prepared a resolution repealing that feature of the bill making the $3,000,000 appropriation, and this was passed by both bodies.

DIPLOMATS SAIL AWAY.

Arthur M. Beaupre, American Minister to Argentine, and Frank H. Mason, American Consul-General at Paris, sailed to-day on the American line steamer St. Louis for Southampton.

COMES BACK TO LIFE TO SPITE UNLOVING WIFE

Declared Officially Dead He Now Makes Oath Otherwise.

Frederick Boshardt made affidavit today before Coroner Acritelli that he was alive. Having been formally pronounced dead by Coroner Scholer two years ago, Boshardt had to make the affidavit to establish himself as a live one and also to keep the Prudential Life Insurance Company from paying to his wife $1,000 which she had tried to collect on the ground that he was defunct.

"Maybe I wouldn't have kicked about letting her have the money," said Boshardt, "but she showed what she thought of me by letting the corpse she swore was mine remain in Potter's Field, where it was buried. If she had planted the poor devil in a decent graveyard I might have allowed her to collect the money."

Boshardt married in 1893 and disappeared from No. 204 East Twenty-fifth street, where he was living with his wife, in April, 1904. On May 14, 1904, a body was picked up in the North River off Fifty-seventh street, kept in the Morgue the regulation time and buried in Potter's Field as unidentified. The clothes and a knife were preserved.

Mrs. Boshardt, in June, 1904, identified the clothes and the knife as having belonged to her husband. Coroner Scholer held an inquest and on an affidavit by Mrs. Boshardt that Boshardt was dead he was formally wiped off the map.

Then Mrs. Boshardt, who had moved to Springfield, Mass., demanded the $1,000 life insurance. The company refused to settle and she brought suit. The company hired detectives, who located Boshardt in Philadelphia, working as a furniture polisher for the Strawbridge & Clothier Company.

He refused to admit his identity until told that his wife had allowed his supposed body to rot in Potter's Field. This made him sore and he promised to return to New York and make an affidavit that he was alive. But he heard that his wife had located him and disappeared again. The detectives were unable to locate him until to-day, when he was found at No. 26 Third avenue.

"It is true," said Boshardt, "that when I left my wife I told her I would rather be dead than live with her, and it's no lie."

HOBLEY'S BRIDE DIED FEW HOURS AFTER MARRIAGE

Brooklyn Politician Wedded His Sweetheart on Her Deathbed.

Alfred T. Hobley, Republican leader of the Fourth Assembly District, Brooklyn, was married at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, it was announced today, and his wife died early that night. She was practically dying at the time the ceremony was performed.

The death-bed marriage was the culmination of a romance of love and politics that lasted for more than twelve years. In the romance love was mixed with politics. On Hobley's political success depended his happiness with the woman he had loved for years.

When Mr. Hobley ran for Sheriff last fall on the Republican county ticket it was with the definite understanding that if elected he would be married at once to Miss Clara Bill, who lived with her mother, Mrs. Acker, at No. 1185 Broadway. He told Miss Bill that he had put most of his money into the race and that if he failed of election he would be unable to assume the responsibilities of a married life.

Miss Bill took a deep interest in the election and was an ardent advocate of her fiance. She felt greater disappointment than any one else when Michael J. Flaherty gave Hobley a decisive defeat.

After his defeat Hobley and Miss Bill postponed the marriage indefinitely. This was not the first postponement on account of fortune's laggard way in bringing success to Mr. Hobley. They had been waiting for a dozen years for him to get in a position to marry.

About three weeks ago Miss Bill was attacked with quick consumption. Last Wednesday Mr. Hobley was summoned to her bedside and was told by the attending physicians that she had only a few hours to live. He decided at once to have a marriage ceremony performed before Miss Bill's death. He sent for a minister of the neighborhood and the minister hurried to the home of the dying woman while her mother and others supported her in bed. Hobley was almost overcome. He stayed by the side of his bride until death came, early in the evening.

The funeral services were held last night at the Broadway home. Several of Mr. Hobley's intimate friends were told of the marriage and invited to the funeral. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Williams, of Calvary Episcopal Church. The interment was at Flatbush Cemetery to-day.

CLAN-NA-GAEL TO HAVE A JULY 4 CARNIVAL.

Ridgewood Park will be the scene of the Fourth of July celebration of the Clan-na-Gael of Brooklyn. It will be a carnival of oratory and athletics, with music and dancing thrown in for good measure.

The celebration will be inaugurated by a parade of the Irish Volunteers of Manhattan and Brooklyn through the principal Brooklyn streets, under the command of Col. Charles Crowley. Deputy Comptroller John H. McCooey will preside at the exercises in the park, and the principal address will be delivered by James H. Sullivan, of New Haven, one of the most eloquent of the Irish orators of New England.

There will be a full programme of athletic events, in which some of the foremost athletes who took part in the Olympic games at Athens will be represented. A Gaelic football match will top off the athletic events.

PAINTER RAN TO STREET HIS TROUSERS ABLAZE.

While varnishing the wainscoting today on the third floor of the flat house, No. 18 East One Hundred and Seventeenth street, Louis Rosenberg, twenty-two years old, of No. 59 Forsyth street, stepped on a parlor match. The flying spark set fire to the pot of varnish.

Rosenberg tried to extinguish the blaze with his hands and feet and was badly burned. With his trousers ablaze he rushed to the street, roaring with pain. The sight almost threw the tenants into a panic. Passersby tore off his blazing garments and swathed him in oil. He was taken to the Harlem Hospital.

The fire in the flat was soon put out.

CAR KNOCKED BOY DOWN.

He Had Been with His Mother a Moment Before.

Sammy Niedelman, seven years old, of No. 320 East One Hundred and Twenty-first street, was crossing Third avenue at One Hundred and Twenty-first street to-day when a northbound Third avenue car struck him on the head, knocking him over and causing a severe lacerated scalp wound.

Just before the accident he was walking by his mother's side, she having a baby in her arms, when suddenly he left her and darted across the road.

The injunction, which was secured by the Manhattan Club, is temporary, and will be argued on Thursday at White Plains.

COST THREE DOLLARS TO COOL OFF A COP.

Were it not for the excessive heat Ralph Karner would not have been a prisoner in the Essex Market Court and Policeman Casey wouldn't have had to go to the Delancey street station to change his uniform.

Karner is a truckman of No. 126 Broome street. He was cooling his horses off with a stream from the nose, when the policeman happened along. The water struck him square in the face and before Karner had taken off the hose Casey looked as if he had just come out of the swim, clothes and all. He told Magistrate Breen it was against the law to use a hose in the streets, but even at that he wouldn't have arrested the man if it weren't for the uniform.

"I think it right to cool horses this sort of weather," said Magistrate Breen to the policeman. "But I'll fine Karner $3 for placing you in the wet."

FIVE INJURED AT LAUNCHING OF BATTLESHIP

Accident Mars Initial Dip of the New Hampshire at Camden.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 30.—Five workmen were injured at the launching of the battle-ship New Hampshire here today. With others they were clearing away props which held the big vessel. The timbers gave way without warning and the men were hurled some distance by being hit by the timbers.

James Campbell, of Gloucester, and Joseph Kappakinski were taken to a hospital severely bruised about the head and body. The condition of Campbell is said to be serious.

The other workmen were only slightly injured.

The men had been working on the shoreing of the vessel from midnight, and the accident occurred before the christening party had mounted the platform on the starboard side of the ship, so that few of them knew that any untoward incident had cast the slightest cloud over the sucessful launching of the big sister of the battle-ship Kansas.

The launching was at 7.48 A. M., at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company. This unusually early hour had to be selected because the tide was at its flood then. It was the earliest hour that a ship of war was ever launched.

Miss McLane was assisted in the work of christening the ship by Miss Margaret Sortwell, of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Margaret Thayer, of Concord, N. H., as maids of honor. Gov. McLane and Mrs. McLane arrived in Philadelphia last night, and this morning arrived here shortly after 7 o'clock, accompanied by Miss McLane. Besides the Governor and his wife the party included Clinton A. McLane, John H. McLane, of Concord, N. H., Secretary of State Edward N. Pearson, Concord; Mrs. Pearson, Edward G. Leach, Franklin, Mrs. Leach; Gen. William F. Thayer, Concord; Gen. Frank E. Kaley, Col. Clement J. Woodward, Col. John H. Bartlett, Mrs. Bartlett, Col. A. Melvin Jones, Col. Frederick J. Shepard, Col. Edward C. Bean, Mrs. Bean, Col Henry W. Exeter, Gen. James E. Tolles, Lieut. Charles W. Howard, Capt. J. B. Crowley, George H. Moses, Mrs. Moses, Calvin Page and Capt. Charles H. Manning, all of New Hampshire.

After the launching the party left here and went to Philadelphia, where they were the guests of the shipbuilding company at the Bellevue-Stratford.

The New Hampshire is of 18,000 tons, 456 feet long and 76 feet in width. She will have an estimated speed of 18 knots. Her main battery will consist of four 12-inch guns, eight 8-inch and twelve 7-inch guns, all breech loading. Her secondary battery is also large.
