M'ADOO CANDIDACY CONTINUES TO BOB UP

(By United Press.)

San Francisco, June 23 (Harold Jacobs).—The McAdoo candidacy, bearing marks of rough treatment and with the irrevocable brick still tied about its neck, was back from its premature watery grave today and meowing as loudly as ever about the democratic back door.

Every time its tormentors consign it to death, and this includes William G. McAdoo himself, the candidacy just naturally turns up again and its friends and protectors unpack the pullmotor, shoot a little oxygen into it, and it is as good as new.

PORCUPINE CAME HERE FOR ELECTION RETURNS

In the wee hours Tuesday morning when telephone lines were being kept busy in an attempt to secure the early returns from the primary election, a porcupine, evidently curious as to how the vote was going, came into the city and passed thru several of the main streets and along in front of the Pioneer office. It is not known from which direction it entered the city, but it was driven from the main streets into the alley between Beltrami avenue and Minnesota avenue connecting Fourth and Fifth streets. It did not appear to be frightened in the least by pedestrians or passing cars.

AFFILIATION OF CANADIANS AND YANKS PLANNED

"Canuck" Vets Would Checkmate Efforts of Person Trying to Stir Up Strife

Winnipeg, Canada.—To further promote a spirit of good feeling between Canada and the United States, the executive council of the Great War Veterans' association here has adopted a resolution recommending that negotiations be opened with the American Legion and the G. A. R. with the object of offering a close afficiation, if not physical union, of the American with the Canadian veterans' organization.

It is believed such an affiliation will do more to checkmate the Americans and British who are attempting to raise a barrier of hatred between the two nations than anything else.

The resolution adopted by the executive council here will be submitted to the national organization of the Great War Veterans' association and, according to local veterans' officials, its adoption by that body is a fore gone conclusion. The announced purpose of the movement is to keep alive and develop the friendship between the "doughboy" and "Canuck" that grew out of their association in the trenches.

No Hostility Between Vets.

"There are people and newspapers who are trying to foment strife between Britain and the United States," said Leo Ward, president of the veteran's council in urging the adoption o fthe resolution by that body. "But they are reckoning without the men of this country and the men of the United States who fought side by side against the common enemy overseas. There is no hostility between us, and it would be well that we let the world know there is none by joining together in one great Anglo Saxon War Veterans' association.

LURE THAT TEMPTED MANY

Adventurers as Well as Dreamers Sought Vainly for the Fabled Fountain of Youth.

In that far-off, never-to-be-discovered country in that region which has shifted and changed just as men's minds alter and expand, in that mystic Bimini was thought to be the spring which, if tasted by mortals, would assure them immortal youth. On that island bubbled a fountain whose waters healed all manner of sickness.

The lure of the Fountain of Youth seized upon not only the dreamer, but caught the fancy of the bold adventurer, Ponce de Leon, and the redoubtable De Soto sought to taste of its life-giving fluid, and it is perhaps the mystery and wonder, coupled with desire, that brought about the discovery, not of the fountain, but of that part of our country known as Florida.

It was on the 27th day of March, 1513, that Ponce de Leon sighted land which he thought was an island. On April 8, which was Easter Sunday, he took possession of the country in the name of the king of Spain and called it Pascua Florida in honor of the day. He explored the country and was obliged to battle with the Indians, and after many adventures, which included another voyage in 1521 to found a colony, this intrepid navigator succumbed to a wound inflicted by a savage, and died while his vessel was making for the island of Porto Rico.

OUR COUNTRY.

Our country, generous Fatherland,
Within whose far-extended boundaries
Our native gifts of talent, our hopes, our inspirations,
Have full play, to theee we owe a debt of gratitude
So great that we can ne'er repay.
For stately forests,
Fertile plains, rugged mountains, sky-blue lakes
And rushing streams; for priceless hours
Spent in thy great, friendly out of doors
Receiving with thy citizens of fur and wing thy
Bounteous gifts of nature and thy pure, free air;
For close communion at the dusk of day
With kindred spirits round the glowing coals
Of dying fires, with heaven's fathomless viol
Above us and the Great Truth of the ages
Stirring deep within out souls; for our rich
Heritage of inspiration from the lives of thy
Great sons who loved and served thee
With a passion pure, for Washington of noble
Character and dauntless soul, for Lincoln
Who, in his compassionate heart, bore all the
Anguish of thy people, scourged with civil war;
For the patient, brilliant intellects of Fulton,
Morse, McCormick, Edison and Field, who set
Themselves with singleness of purpose to achieve
Mastery of problems of great import and through
Such mastery to add new richness to the lives of
Men; for all the opportunities which thou so
Freely givest us to share the privilege of learning,
To train our minds to think and hands to do,
For this great fact, that he who fails has none
Beside himself to blame, for thy great state is
So arranged that high and low and rich and poor
Have equal opportunities to reach positions yielding
Power and strength of character and praise of men
For worthy deeds, developing their talents with no
Limit or restriction save only merit; for food,
And clothing, shelter, home and friends; for the invaluable
Boon of work, with that rich satisfaction
Which can only come from doing each his part
In all the varied tasks that each day brings;
All these and countless other blessings from thy
Boundless store, we humblly do acknowledge, thanking thee!
But let our thanks be more than empty words,
For blessings such as these deserve rich recompense.
Let us express our gratitude in worthy, useful lives,
Remembering that they who richest live most freely serve
Their fellow-men. And he who lives with service
To mankind his guiding star, should know that he
Is also serving thee, our Fatherland.

LEGAL RIGHT TO REMAIN IGNORANT

The legal right to remain ignorant is annually granted to thousands of children in states where child labor and education laws are backward. According to an account of the administration of the Federal Child Labor law, soon to be published by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, only 783 children out of 19,696 to whom certificates were issued or less than four per cent, had attended or completed the eighth grade, though completion of the eighth grade is generally regarded as necessary to secure even the rudiment's of an education.

Only one of these five states has a compulsory school law for children up to 16 years, even when unemployed, and thaat law permits many exemptions. Both parents and children, thru ignorance of the value of schooling, are apt to take advantage of the legal right to dodge an education.

In a recent study of school attendance in Cleveland it was found that 2,550 children were so irregular in their attendance at school as to interfere with their studies, and that the reasons for staying out of school were in many casts trivial. Among foreign groups, children were kept at home on bargain or market days to act as interpreters for their mothers.

In addition to lax school attendance laws, three of the five states permit children 16 years old and younger to go to work even if they can not read or write or have never been to school. Two require only that the child applying for work shall have gone to school for a brief period during the preceeding year. Among the other states in the United States 23 require the completion of a specified grade, and 12 more and the District of Columbia require the ability to read and write.
