SPORTING NEWS AND COMMENT

EDITED BY ROBERT EDGREN.

R. Edgren's COLUMN

GOLDFIELD! The very name sounds like money.

And the stories that come over the wires! Money takes precedence even to the fighting. The purse is on exhibition—fifteen hundred twenty dollar gold pieces. Nelson offers to bet any amount of money existing even in the wildest imagination, providing he can get odds of 2 to 1. And Gans! Joseph himself, with his telegrams and defiances in the betting line, is enough to take one back to "The olden days—the golden days—the days of '49," as the song has it. Gans's talk fairly rings with the ring of gold. Gans wins $1,800 playing craps; Gans offers to bet his end of the purse, and give Nelson odds; Gans offers to bet $1,000 that he will whip Nelson within fifteen rounds, another $1,000 that he will knock the Dane out with his right hand; another $1,000 that he will land the first knockdown; another $1,000 that he will draw first blood; Gans wires all his Eastern friends to bet their bank rolls on him; Gans says he'll leave Goldfield either with more money than Nelson, or dead broke; Gans tells Corbett to "look out for the money in sight" and let him "in on half of it."

Both Gans and Nelson must have been hanging around the bank looking at that $30,000 in $20 gold pieces, stacked up on the counter like so many iron washers in a hardware store.

WE'RE getting so near the fight now that it's almost time to begin figuring on the dope. One correspondent wrote me yesterday, asking: "Who is going to win the big fight?" I wish I knew. I'd do as much betting as either Gans or Nelson.

If you feel like doping it out yourself, here are a few tips:

Gans is at weight. In the dry Nevada air he came down to 133 without weakening himself by sweating out too much, sweating violently, and cutting out liquids.

Gans in shape is as dangerous as a stick of black dynamite. He licked Walcott a couple of years ago when the Black Demon was at his best. Gans only received a draw decision, but the spectators to a man disagreed with the referee. Gans made Walcott look foolish, outboxed him, beat him all around the ring and knocked him through the ropes.

What could Nelson do against Walcott? I don't know, but I'd be willing to bet 3 to 1 on the "Giant Killer" without looking up any dope at all.

Gans knocked out Mike (Twin) Sullivan a short time ago in California. Don't hold Sullivan cheap. He is a mighty good welter-weight. Sullivan, the welter, would surely be too hard game for Nelson to tackle.

Against Gans's record, which includes wins over men who outclass the Dane, there is only Nelson to be considered, and so far seems to have escaped the dopesters. In his last twenty-three fights Gans has landed only ONE KNOCKOUT! Is Gans losing his old punch? Or has he been stalling? He did knock Sullivan out in good style, and seemed to have his old hitting power.

AS for Nelson, he is up against the most clever fighter he ever met and a puncher. Nelson whipped Britt, who is clever, but hasn't the old punch. He knocked out Young Corbett, who could hit, but never has any more notion of boxing than a washerwoman. He has whipped plenty of both kinds, but this is the first time he has been stacked up against anything like Gans. Nelson isn't clever. He is an iron man. He can take lots of punishment without showing it. He doesn't get hit as much as some people think, however, for he covers his vital points pretty well, and he has a way of holding his head that makes him hard to get at. He is at his best now and has never been affected by any of the punchings he has taken.

NELSON is gamer than Gans. He doesn't know how to quit. He isn't afraid of anything.

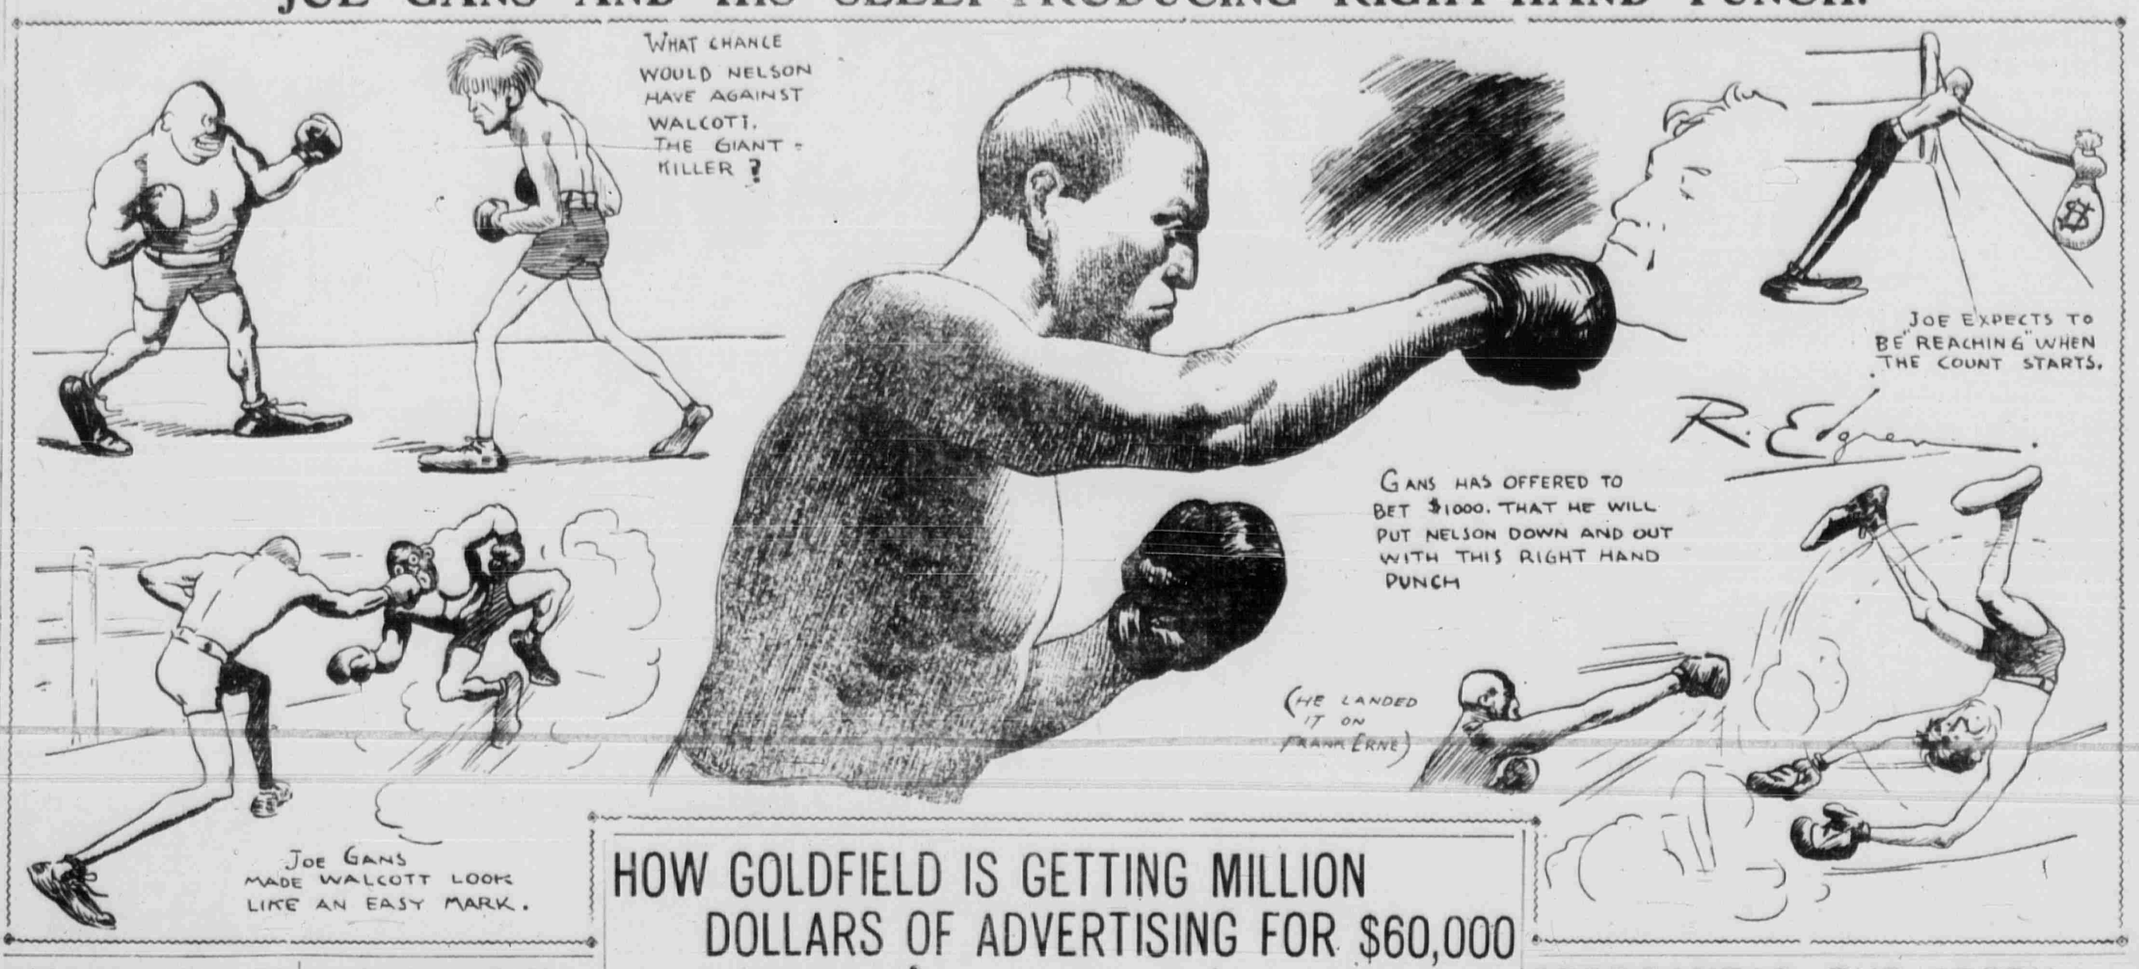
Gans is. Gans quit to Frank Erne. He has quit on other occasions. Some people think he quit to Terry McGovern in Chicago. The story is that Gans was to lie down after taking a great beating and fighting fast for several rounds, but Terry's attack made him weak at the knees and he dropped.

I've known Gans to acknowledge that he will quit. Joe was asked how it was that he carried no scars from all his fighting.

"I never had to take much punishment," he replied. "Whenever the time comes that I find myself getting licked good I'm going to lie down. I've got sense. These fellows that stick when they can't win, and get all beaten up and fit for the bug-house, haven't got any sense."

SO Gans may look for a soft spot if Nelson wears him down and it begins to look like a hopeless battle from the darkey's standpoint. But before that time comes Nelson will go through the roughest milling he ever had in his life. There may be nothing in the fight to make Mr. Gans feel like taking a rest, and if the Goldfield betting odds are any indication the sports who are on the ground expect to see Joseph leaning over the ropes reaching for his end of the purse when the final count begins.

JOE GANS AND HIS SLEEP-PRODUCING RIGHT-HAND PUNCH.



HOW GOLDFIELD IS GETTING MILLION DOLLARS OF ADVERTISING FOR $60,000

Gans-Nelson Fight Just a New Dodge of Professional Boomers.

Maybe the Mining Promoters Don't Know How to "Promote" Things.

YOU didn't hear much of Goldfield, Nev., before this Joe Gans-Battling Nelson fight was cooked up, did you? Well, you'll hear a lot about Goldfield from this time on, for an enterprising band of promoters in that far-off mining camp have succeeded, at a minimum expenditure, in placing the name of Goldfield prominently before the English-speaking world.

The fight will cost probably $80,000, including the $30,000 purse. The loss of the promoters in money will fall away up in the thousands, but the future is what the Goldfield people are looking into.

Goldfield is a mining camp surrounded by claims. Every man in the town has from one to 1,000 claims for sale; some of them have real mines that are making money. Others have near-mines that may make money. Most of them have alleged mines that couldn't earn dividends with a miracle worker as a pioneer.

Mining promoters have been carrying half and full page advertisements in the financial sections of prominent Eastern newspapers and other publications ever since Goldfield became an established camp, but the advertisements brought meager results. Charles M. Schwab and a company of shrewd financiers went out to Nevada and grabbed up everything in sight that looked worth buying. In their wake came a horde of professional promoters, and these men, working with the leaders in the camp, who have made plenty of money, have fixed up the Gans-Nelson fight.

The negro pugilist, whose reputation kneels like Gowanus Canal at low tide, and the white pugilist, who had to dot some one to count the change of a ten-dollar bill for him a few years ago, will battle for an amount that represents three-fifths of the annual salary of the President of the United States. Neither will get $30,000, win or lose. United States Senators serve four years for that amount of money. A few hustling men in a mining camp with a population of about 7,000 are not putting up a purse like that for fun.

The spread that Goldfield has been getting in the newspapers for the past two weeks shows how they are making good. Every prominent newspaper in the country is sending special correspondents to Goldfield over arranging for special service. Arrangements have been made to sidetrack special trains numbering about four hundred sleeping cars on the dusty plain near Goldfield on the afternoon and, in the evening of September 3—next Monday—several million people will gather about bulletin boards and tickets assuring bets of the battle at Goldfield. The next morning 30,000,000 people in the United States will know the result of the battle at Goldfield. The name of Goldfield will be indissolubly associated with the fight.

Then will come the unloading of Goldfield mining stocks. You will be able to get enough to paper your house with for $100. They are betting it by the million dollars. The fight at the face value of from 50 cents to $1.25 a share. Will Goldfield get back what the Gans-Nelson fight is going to cost, after the free ads. given the camp advertising that couldn't be bought for millions at space rates?

Will it?

EVEN MONEY WAGERS NOW ON GANS-NELSON FIGHT

(Special to The Evening World.)

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Aug. 29.—The astute Billy Nolan is issuing a cycle of statements showing reasons why the betting odds should be two to one on Gans, but although Gans is a slight favorite, Billy does not look discouraged. One bet was recorded today of thirty-three hundred dollars at even money, and one or two Nelson enthusiasts have given odds in the backing of their favorite.

CLOTHIER WINNER IN TENNIS FINALS

Defeats Behr Three Sets to Nothing and Plays Champion Wright To-Morrow.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 28.—In an hour's play and on straight sets William J. Clothier, of Philadelphia, defeated Karl H. Behr, of New York, today in the finals of the All-Comers' tournament of the National Lawn Tennis Championship.

The series were: 6—2, 6—4, 6—2. Clothier will meet the present title holder, Beals C. Wright, of Boston, in the challenge round to-morrow.

The contest to-day was disappointing, except that it showed Clothier to be in fine shape, and so gave promise for some brilliant tennis to-morrow. Except a brief interval, Behr was much below the standard which he set in his match with Raymond D. Little, of New York, yesterday, and besides had not recovered from the fatigue of that long contest.

It is many years since the finals in the national tournament have been decided so speedily.

N. Y.'S OLD GUARD SHOOTERS SECOND

Massachusetts Veterans Win Team Match at Sea Girt Tournament.

STATE CAMP, SEA GIRT, N. J., Aug. 28.—The team representing the Old Guard of Massachusetts won the veteran organization team match shoot here to-day with a score of 260. The team of the Old Guard of New York was second with 228.

The veterans' competition was open to teams of six from any veteran National Guard organization of any State. Each competitor fired ten shots at 200 yards. The prize was a trophy to be held by the organization winning it for one year. An organization winning the trophy three times, and necessarily in succession, will be entitled to hold and own the same. The match was won by the team representing the Old Guard of Massachusetts. The scores follow:

Capt. Bunton, 43; Capt. Stewart, 45; Capt. Wise, 47; Major Hamlin, 42; Capt. Garmon, 44, and Lieut. Tornorse, 43. Total, 260.

The second event of the day was the Hale match. It is a squadded competition, open to all comers, and 217 individuals competed. Each competitor fired ten shots at 800 yards. The first prize is a trophy, to be held for one year and to become the property of the competitor winning it three times, not necessarily in succession, a miniature of the cup and $10. There are three additional prizes of $10 each and three prizes of $5 each. The match was won last year by Capt. E. A. Wells, of New York City.

The third and final event of the day, the Leech cup match, in which there were also a large number of entries, began this afternoon. Each competitor was required to fire seven shots at 800 yards, seven shots at 900 yards and seven shots at 1,000 yards. The first prize is the Leech cup, to be held by the winner during the year and a gold badge. There were four other prizes.

Gov. Stokes of New Jersey has established his headquarters here.

Second Lieut. W. A. Biker, of the Fourth New Jersey Regiment, won the Hale Trophy with a score of 50 in the match of that name. The other prize winners were: Private F. W. Allen, Fourth Massachusetts, 49; Capt. J. L. Graham, United States Infantry, 48; Sergeant C. E. Groome, District of Columbia, 49; Corporal Eisenman, Ohio, 48; Capt. A. E. Wells, New York, 48; Private P. F. Dang, Minnesota, 48; Sergeant M. W. Parker, Massachusetts, 48; Capt. S. W. Wise, Massachusetts, 48; Sergeant Orr, Ohio, 48; Private Minivini, Fourth New Jersey, 48; Sergeant Scott, United States Marine Corps, 48.

HIGHLANDERS SIGN THIRD NEW PITCHER

Brockett, of the Buffalo Eastern League Team, the Latest.

Frank Farrell, owner of the Highlanders, will have a strong team next season if the new men now being signed to contracts make good.

Within the past few days three twirlers have been added to the pitching staff. Doyle, purchased from the Wheeling (W. Va.) club for $2,500, has already been tried and made good. Cy Berger, the right hander of the Lancaster club, of the Tri-State League, has had an trial in fast company, but the fact that nearly every club in the two big leagues wanted him speaks well of his ability.

To-day the third new pitcher was signed. He is Louis Brockett, of the Buffalo Eastern League team. He will not report until the Eastern League season is finished.

GEORGANTAS, THE GREEK ATHLETE, TO TOSS DISCUS

Will Make First Appearance in This Country at the Great Labor Day Games of the Irish-American Athletic Club.

Georgantas, the wonder athlete of Greece, who was so sensationally vanquished at the discus (free style) by Martin Sheridan at the Olympic games in Athens, will be one of the features at the great annual Labor Day games of the Irish-American Athletic Club next Monday in Celtic Park. Georgantas had to leave Greece because he failed to keep the championship for the discus at home. He is limbering up here in New York, and when he gets into good shape he will try it out with Sheridan with the hope that if he wins he can return in triumph to his classic native land. He will give an exhibition of Greek and free style discus manipulation at the games on Monday.

The Labor Day programme of the Irish-American Athletic Club bristles with a fine array of the standard events. The entries received already indicate that there will be a record-breaking total when the number is announced.

The special one-mile relay should bring out the best in the Catholic Athletic League, the Sunday Schools Athletic League, the Church Athletic League, the Inter-Settlement Athletic Association and the Y. M. C. A.

Another special event is the all around weight throwing handicap. This includes the hammer, discus, sixteen-pound shot and fifty-six-pound weight.

Most interest will centre in the mile handicap. Sheppard, in his magnificent race against Harvey Cohen at the Hibernian games, showed that he is weekly getting his fast indoor gait speed up for outdoor work, and as open as radius better than he ever did, there should be a hot contest when the two "take the pistol."
