TOO HAPPY, HE VANISHED, JUST TO FIND MISERY

With Henry Went Bankroll on Search for Some Un-Joyousness.

GOT BACK SATISFIED.

Meanwhile Mrs. Korte Had Got Worried and Needlessly Alarmed the Police.

"I am too happy—much too happy. I cannot stand it any longer. I must have a change."

Henry Korte meant just what he said. He has been in the midst of one joyous dream ten years long. He ached to descend to earth and get a taste of the common life of everyday mortals. So he planned a trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Korte live at No. 81 West One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, and when the desire came upon him for a frolic in the misery of the world he told his wife:

"Our happiness is more than I can bear. Give me some money, Della, and let me go out and cease to revel in this intolerable bliss for a few days."

Wouldn't Shake Off Joy.

The Kortes are childless, and have accumulated money in every pocket. But the wife argued with her lord. "Shake off your good humor at home and seek misery falling down the back stairs, or set up the stoves for the winter and carry the coal in from the street."

"No," returned Henry, "it cannot be that way. I want to come out of these silken clouds and wade through the dust and smoke and turmoil of life all by my lonesome. Trot out the pocketbook, love."

Noting the alarming look of joy on her husband's beaming face, and fearing that he might not be able to stand the strain of such unalloyed ecstasy, she came forth with a roll about the size of a pencil and gave it to him. She refrained from handing him the larger accumulations, for she figured he would remain away in proportion to the thickness of the wad of cash he carried. He placed the money in his pocket, took a last, quick glance about the place of his delightful life and went forth into the cold, dismal city alone.

Shook Off His Ecstasy.

For two days he shook with vicious shakes to get loose from the happiness that was making him miserable, and as he is a business man of sound ability, being employed in an important position with a milk distributing company, he succeeded in finding solace in large hunks. For two days he went about, leaving a little joy here, a little pleasure there, and at last, on taking an inventory, discovered to his satisfaction that he had lost the happiness which had held him in its deadly grasp so long.

Meanwhile his good wife had waited at the window two days. When her patience was gone, she went to the police at Alexander avenue station and told them to find her un-of-her-happy man. They sent out a double-action alarm and policemen everywhere were straining their eyes for a sight of Henry. They wanted to see him as a curiosity, and of course they wanted to help his wife get him back—but he was nowhere to be found.

When the darkness of night was settling down on the Korte home last evening and the wife, in tears, was bewailing her sad fate, Henry came. He said he had found just what he was looking for.

"You can get what you want in old New York," he murmured, as he sank wearily on the bed and fell asleep.

Stealing silently out, the wife notified the police that her dear one was at home, happy in the unhappiness he had gained.

"I needed the relaxation," Henry confided later, "but I'm glad to be back."

WOMAN OBJECT OF DUEL IS SET FREE

Court Releases Mrs. Smith, Over Whom Jahn Shot Partridge.

Mrs. Jennie Smith, the little widow in whose apartments at No. 184 Bradhurst avenue, Charles Jahn, one of her admirers, shot and seriously wounded another admirer, Herbert Partridge, was a physical wreck when arraigned to-day in the Harlem Police Court.

With little ceremony she was discharged. She had been a prisoner since the night of the tragedy. On the way to the court to-day she collapsed and had to be carried before the Magistrate. "I want my children," she moaned continually.

Charles Smith, father of her dead husband, and his daughter, who lives in New Bedford, Mass., were in court, and said they would take care of Mrs. Smith and her children. It was arranged that Mr. Smith is to get the two little daughters of Mrs. Smith and take them to his home in New Bedford, where Mrs. Smith will join them as soon as she has recovered from the shock of the tragedy which she and her little children witnessed.

In the mean time she is to be cared for by another Mrs. Smith, who lives on the ground floor of the Bradhurst Avenue apartment building.

Partridge is still alive in the Washington Heights Hospital, but the doctors do not expect him to survive. Jahn, who is the son of a wealthy New Rochelle family, is still at large.

COPY OF SHAKESPEARE BRINGS $10,000.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A copy of the third edition of Shakespeare's "Passionate Pilgrim," of which the only other copy extant is in the Bodleian Library, has just been sold at private sale to an American buyer at $10,000.

FAMOUS CHURCH TO BE REOPENED

St. Francis of Assisi, Remodeled and Decorated, Will Resume Services Sunday.

Services to be held in the Church of St. Francis of Assisi, in West Thirty-first street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, next Sunday, will serve the double purpose of celebrating the reopening of the building for worship and observing the seven hundredth anniversary of the canonization of its patron saint.

Archbishop Diomede Falconio, Apostolic Delegate, will be present and will celebrate a night workers' mass at half-past two o'clock in the morning. A special musical programme has been arranged under the direction of Professor P. J. Quigley. Mgr. Falconio has been intensely interested in the night workers' mass and will give his blessing to those who attend it.

Remodelling of the church has resulted in one of the most satisfactory sacred interiors in the city. Excellent mural paintings have been used, with lightly gilded stucco to produce a design of great richness and beauty. With attention to detail, however, the decorators have avoided overelaboration and have retained a chaste and simple general effect. The new altar piece represents St. Francis of Assisi receiving the indulgence of Portiuncula. Six circular panels in the ceiling hold pictures from the life of Christ, one of them being a reproduction of Hoffman's famous work, "Christ in the Temple." Rearrangement of the electric lights has added materially to the appearance of the interior.

Solemn high mass, celebrated by the Dominican fathers of St. Vincent Ferrer's Church, in the presence of the Apostolic Delegate, is set for 10.30 o'clock Sunday morning. The sermon will be delivered by Mgr. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The musical programme will be:

Processional—"Lece Sacerdos"	Peizer
Introit	Gregorian
Kyrie	Zangel
Gloria	Peizer
Gradual	Gregorian
Credo	Gregorian
Offertory—"Ave Maria"	Greit
Elevation	Peizer
Benedictus	Gounod
Agnus Dei	Zangel
Communion	Gregorian
Recessional (selected)	Wagner

Solemn pontifical vespers will be held at 5 o'clock in the evening, followed by the Papal blessing by the Apostolic Delegate. At the close a Te Deum will be sung.

FIRE ON TRANSPORT PUT OUT.

MANILA, Oct. 5.—The fire on the transport Thomas has been extinguished. The damage caused by the fire is small and the transport will sail for San Francisco nearly on schedule time with the Sixth Infantry.

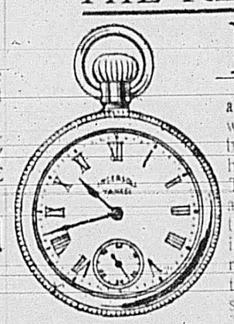
1,000 INGERSOLL WATCHES TO BE GIVEN WITH PURCHASES

Every Purchaser of a Man's $11.50 Suit or Overcoat will be given an Ingersoll $1.00 YANKEE WATCH SATURDAY

THE REASON WHY:



EARLY in July we obtained a large quantity of the widely known INGERSOLL YANKEE DOLLAR WATCHES and advertised them as a special attraction at 69c. Soon after the watches were put on sale we were notified by attorneys for the Watch Trust that we had transgressed a legal condition in CUTTING THE PRICE OF THE WATCHES, a New England Court having decided that the manufacturers were justified in restricting all sellers of Ingersoll Watches to the regular price, $1.00. We at once stopped the sale, thereby disappointing many persons.

But now to dispose quickly of all the Ingersoll Watches on hand we have decided to give them away with purchases of Men's Suits or Overcoats.

Therefore, to each purchaser Saturday of a MAN'S SUIT OR OVERCOAT AT $11.50 WE WILL GIVE WITHOUT CHARGE ONE OF THESE FULLY GUARANTEED INGERSOLL YANKEE DOLLAR WATCHES.

These Watches will be distributed only under the conditions named, and for the purpose stated, and for no other reason.
