CALAMITY HOWLERS HAVE NO KICK TO MAKE ON FOOTBALL

New Rules Committee a Wise Set of Men After All—Kaufmann's Tales About Berger Arouse Suspicion.

THE list of football accidents has taken a sudden slump since the new rules went into effect; which suggests that the calamity-howlers were in wrong. Fast open play is less dangerous than mass play. The Rules Committee showed almost human intelligence, after all.

AL KAUFMANN is telling stories about Berger. Al wants to show that he and his ex-partner really have an old grudge to settle. This makes me a little suspicious. When Al was last in New York I asked him about the possibility of a fight with Berger. "Well," he said, "I suppose we'll have to fight some time, but I'd rather fight the other fellows first. Sam and I were brought up together in the Olympic Club, and we're good friends."

To quote Jim Corbett: "It is always a rule for two fighters to shake hands before a scrap. The only time to leave out the friendly introduction is in case of a fake. Then roast and refuse to shake. That gives an impression that there's bad blood, and it's easier to get away with it." This was the case when Corbett met McCoy in Madison Square Garden.

But Jim hasn't always lived up to his own theories. The Corbett-Fitzsimmons battle was certainly on the level. Yet before that fight Corbett once spit in Fitzsimmons's eye, and a week before it met Fitz on the road and refused to shake the hand Fitz offered. In the ring Fitz refused to take Corbett's hand, saying: "I'll shake hands after I've licked you."

Moral: Sometimes you can't always tell.

OUT West they still fall for wrestling. Owing to the number of crooked bouts pulled off here the game is dead as a dodo in New York.

Fred Beell, in Chicago, has just shown his class again by taking two straight falls from Dan McLeod. Beell is a little fellow, but a wonder. New Yorkers still remember his desperate match with Tom Jenkins in which the unknown came within an ace of taking Tom's title. If Beell weighed 200 pounds instead of 150 he'd do for Hackenschmidt.

Speaking of wrestling, have you noticed how titles shift around? The prize ring adage that "they never come back" doesn't work in the mat game. They always come back. Note the trail of the American heavyweight championship for three years back. Champs: Jenkins—Gotch—Jenkins—Gotch—Jenkins—Hackenschmidt (retired to England)—Gotch. Gotch and Jenkins take turns at "coming back."

TO-DAY marks the beginning of second-class racing. The big bugs are through, and the little bugs have a chance at Jamaica, Aqueduct and Bennings. But it really doesn't cut any ice. You can pick losers just as easily among the $50 plugs as among the $50,000 stars.

IN England Jack Palmer and Gunner Moir are to fight for the heavyweight championship. The purse is good and the side bet £1,000, which goes to show how old-fashioned these English pugs are. In America the cautious fighter never bets more than he can deduct from the loser's end of the purse while leaving a comfortable margin.

A pug will bet $5,000 when the purse is split $20,000 each way. That is, he actually fights for 75-25. Or he will "lay off" $5,000 secretly through commissioners, betting against himself. If there are no odds he then stands to get just the amount he would get fighting without any side bet at all.

A favorite will sometimes insist upon a side bet at even money, and then secretly bet against himself. This is a sure thing game. Suppose he forces the other fellow to back himself with a $1,000 side bet, when he is a 2-1 favorite; then he quietly bets $500 to $1,000 against himself.

If he wins the fight he wins the $1,500 side bet and loses his $500 bet. He is $500 to the good.

If he loses the fight he loses his $1,000 side bet and wins $1,000 on the quiet—still $500 to the good.

Perhaps they are next to a few of these tricks in England, which explains the big side bet and the little purse.

LOCAL BOWLERS SURPRISED BY TRENTON TEAM

Jerseyites Win Individual and Two-Men Team Championship.

Trenton bowlers in the Eastern League opened their metropolitan season at the Universal allays, Brooklyn, this afternoon and gave the local cracks a surprise by an unexpectedly strong showing. A crowd of fully 500 spectators filled the lines along the tournament allays, and enthusiasts shouted themselves hoarse in the phenomenal shooting at difficult spares.

Johnny Voorhels, Brooklyn's favorite bowling star, appeared at the alleys with a hard rubber ball, and to the surprise of friends, who have noted his continued use of the lignum vitae sphere for years, used it in his games. Voorhees is about the last of the star bowlers in the greater city to use the new ball.

Special interest was directed toward the rolling of Curtis, put forward by Manager Hetzel, of Trenton, to represent that team in the individual competitions. Curtis is of boyish appearance, but his nerve and skill stood the test well against Johnny Nelson, the Brooklyn star, who has rolled on these alleys for years. Curtis has a regular employment aside from bowling, and can give only his spare time to the game, while Nelson is the alley manager at the Universal.

The individual, two and three men tournament games were rolled this afternoon, in trio combinations being still at war. Kat 4 o'clock, as the games were late in starting. In the three-men teams Trenton relied upon Dumont, Blackford and Curtis, while Manager Ehler put Burnett, Nelson and Voorhels on the foul line. In the five-men games to-night Trenton will have Hertzel and Biddell, in addition to the three-men combination, while Brooklyn will add Robinson and Dinsmore o its afternoon three-men team.

Scores in the individual and two-men teams follow:

	1	2	3	4	5
Curtis	212	196	188	227	226
Nelson	206	188	212	214	186

Averages—Curtis, 209 1-5; Nelson, 201.

EASTERN LEAGUERS IN SESSION TO-DAY

The Board of Directors of the Eastern League of Professional Baseball Clubs is in executive session in the Hotel Victoria to-day. The meeting was called in order to fill the requirement of the constitution of the league, which specifies that, in addition to other times, the directors shall meet the day previous to the annual session of the league.

Harry L. Taylor, of Rochester, President of the league, said that the board meeting would be of very little importance and would be private. The annual session will be held at noon to-morrow at the Victoria.

CHESS CONTEST ASSURED.

Brooklyn Chess Club players have accepted the challenge of the London Club to play a match game for the Newnes trophy, and in a communication Secretary Johnston has invited the English players to name the date and conditions for the match. Special attention has also been directed to the matter of arranging cable service.

MAKE ATHLETES OF 97,000 SCHOOLBOYS

Under the System of the Public School Athletic League Puny Youngsters Will Be a Thing of the Past.

SILVER BUTTON FOR CHINNING THE BAR.

Every lad who can chin himself three times on a horizontal bar gets a silver button. Several thousands have already been won.

Accurate Records Kept of Every Boy's Performance and the Youngsters Strive Hard to Be at the Top.

THE Public School Athletic League is building the next generation of New Yorkers on a firm foundation. The puny youth in the public schools is now conspicuous by his absence. Broad-chested youngsters with strong wind and hard limbs are forging to the front. And the work is just starting. The league is only three years old.

The tremendous influence of the league on the pupils of the schools in Greater New York is almost inconceivable. Think of it! There are 97,000 youngsters on the league rolls. And all of them are in active athletic training striving for the honors the league holds out to them.

The league has just inaugurated a new system to enliven the interest in the work. They have called in eminent athletes to tutor the boys in the athletic games.

Learn to Hurl Discus.

The other day Martin Sheridan, who carried off the honors at Athens, and who holds the discus throwing record, gathered a hundred youngsters about him at McComb's Dam Park, and showed the young idea how to hurl the discus.

The league supplied a two-pound discus for the occasion. Sheridan hurled it out of sight, but the youngsters made him marvel by their prowess.

On Saturday Billy Frank, the crack runner of the Irish Athletic Club, was scheduled to lead the youngsters of the high school brigade in a cross-country run. But the storm upset the programme.

Dr. Gulick, secretary of the league, proposes to further stimulate the interest all along the line. Several famous athletes have volunteered their services. The boys will be taught to jump, run and hurdle by the fleetest men in New York.

Billy Frank Interested.

Billy Frank sat on the veranda of Huber's Casino Saturday morning alone. It was raining pitchforks. A lone youth came along with his running togs under his arm.

"Are you Mr. Frank?" he said.

"Yes, I'm Mr. Frank," said the runner. "But I guess we won't have a run to-day."

"That's too bad," said the youth. "All the boys wanted to go out to-day. If it was good weather we'd have several hundred here. But I'm going to have a run anyway."

"These boys are interested all right," said Frank. "If we get them started they will develop in great shape. I was only going to take about two miles. That would be enough to show them how to run. Then they could get out two or three times a week themselves. Running will do them a lot of good."

Perfect System.

The Public School Athletic League is working under a perfect system. To begin with only the boys who have reached a certain rating in their studies are eligible to participate in the athletic trials.

The work has been taken up in every school in Greater New York. And despite the fact that it is not compulsory 97,000 youngsters are members of the league, in every school certain teachers take charge of the boys. The work is done in the school yard.

The youngsters earn a silver button to show those who can chin themselves three times on the bar, jump a certain distance and run sixty yards in a certain time. All the youths strive hard for the buttons.

All Records Kept.

The record of all the boys is kept. Everything they do in an athletic way is recorded at League Headquarters. At the last set of games, although it rained all afternoon, nearly two thousand boys participated.

"The work of the league has been remarkable," said a man who keeps track of these things. "Some day the Board of Education will cut out some of the studies and give the youngsters more time to look after the physical side."

"Under the present system thousands of youngsters who are weak physically develop into strong young men. The transformation in a few months time is something wonderful."

Gen. Wingate is the President of the Public School Athletic League. The League is supported by subscriptions.

HORGAN HASN'T TIME TO DEFEND WORLD'S TROPHY

The retirement of John Horgan and his surrender of the world's championship pool emblem by forfeiture to Jerome Keogh, of Buffalo, forms a unique feature of pool-playing.

In his statement Horgan says: "In my retirement it is not that I fear results of competition with any possible challenger for the trophy, but simply because its retention necessitates almost constant practice on the part of the holder. This is too much to ask of a player.

"For instance, if I played Keogh and won I would then have to play De Oro, and after the Cuban would come Clearwater, Sherman and probably others, so that my entire time for the billiard year would be occupied, it being necessary to answer every challenge within ten days and to play within forty from its date.

"At present I have a good academy position here (St. Louis) and an excellent opportunity to enter and win the three-cushion tournament at the St. Louis Grand in November. To play Keogh would cause me to give up my position and chance in the other tournament. I have therefore decided to forfeit the emblem, but may challenge for it later."

For the three-cushion tournament it is expected that Sosiefer, Sutton, Hoppe and other leading billiardists will enter. There are a diamond trophy represent the world's championship, a big purse and a share of the gate receipts for the winner.
