It Wasn't Us!

A Kentucky newspaper threatened to publish the name of the young man who was seen with his sweetheart's head on his shoulder if he didn't come across with a dollar on subscription. Twenty-seven young men slipped in and subscribed for the paper, and letters were received from two or three others saying they would subscribe as soon as they got the dollar.—Exchange.

More Buyers Asked to Quit.

Morganfield, Ky., Oct. 27.—Members of the American Society of Equity called on J. Whittle Clark, an independent buyer of tobacco here, and told him they wanted him to quit buying at once. Mr. Clark bought tobacco property here and has enlarged the warehouses and put in extensive improvements at a large expense since he has been here. There were about a dozen men, sober, quiet and substantial farmers, in the crowd. Earlier in the day they called on Henry Rudy, buyer for the Imperial Tobacco Company in Uniontown.

Head Blown Off.

Harlan, Ky., Oct. 28.—Marion Ledford, a farmer of Cawood, blew his brains out with an old squirrel rifle and died instantly.

Young Mr. Ledford decided to take a rabbit hunt and went to the rack and took the old rifle down and walked out of the house on to the porch. He must have thought the gun was not loaded for he set the breach upon the floor and putting the muzzle to his mouth began to blow when the gun exploded, the whole charge entering his mouth, passing up and out at the top of his head.

Woman.

BY COLONEL KENTUCKY.

During the closing exercises of the "Pennyrile" Seminary, the Professor announced that the Junior Class of the next session would embrace seventeen lovely young ladies. "Be sure to put me down as a member of the Junior Class," exclaimed the nine young men. Wherefore, the old Colonel is inclined to remark: "A silver trumpet is none too good to herald the delicious bootle of my toot." Commend me to the chivalrous youth, kneeling at the shrine of Beauty. More to be desired than the grandest aureole of fame is the light of a fortunate woman's love. The brave man never comes into the presence of a pretty girl, without realizing that he has caught a glimpse of Heaven. She can say more with a single tear than man can express in a whole book. Her eyes are brighter than the stars, her lips are like the luscious cherry, her smile is glory hallelujah, and her kiss, oh Lordy!

"To kiss her under the mistletoe
Is pleasant, I suppose.
But I prefer informally
To kiss her under the—nose."

Woman rules the world: the cradle she rocks, and she darns our socks. Our victuals she cooks, and she pulls off our boots when we get fatigued. Bless the dear creatures: they will love us, even when we are gone, that is, if we are not too far gone. They tell us that woman is denied the privilege of joining a benevolent society because she cannot keep a secret; because she would jump upon a chair and scream for dear life when a little celluloid mouse is turned loose in her midst; because she don't know how to ride the Billy Goat like a man. Oh, I deny the allegation, and defy the alligators. Woman is man's superior in every thing noble and good. Grief to the marriage vow, more patient under affliction and braver in the hour of adversity. Withered be the arm raised to strike her, and blasted be the tongue that would dare utter an unkind word against her good name. I know not what other men may think, but as for me, give me woman, or give me death. She is the only thing on earth that can compare with the Star Spangled Banner. A pretty girl can do a man crazy for twenty-four solid hours, and then in a second and a half and she is the gate of Paradise by simply tickling him under the chin. One touch of her little hand is enough to make the most incorrigible old bachelor jump heels over head into a barrel of fresh New Orleans molasses. The poetry of her motion, as she trips the light fantastic, makes the fossil fascinating fellow feel fresh as a mountain stream, sparkling as champagne and inspiring as an intellectual cocktail. Oh, waltz me again! The sacred Scriptures tell us woman was created from the rib of the first man, considering the raw material, that is the finest job that has ever been accomplished.

"Oh, she is the star, that shines with brightest ray
Wherever our footsteps roam
The only sovereign we obey
The angel of our home."

Pays $162 for Quarter.

By paying the highest price ever given for quarter dollars of the year 1806 James H. Manning, a banker in Albany, obtained two of these coins at the auction sale held at No. 14 East Twenty-third Street.

For a quarter dollar which the date "1806" was stamped over the date of the preceding year Mr. Manning paid the record price of $162. For a coin of the same year, but bearing a perfect date, he paid $27. The highest price paid for a perfect date of 1806 previous was $23 which was paid at the Ferguson sale. Until that sale $17 had been the top price.

Barnett's Corn.

Wm. Barnett, of Tolu, is a kind hearted fellow and has friends by the score as a consequence, a few days ago he sent Tom Tandell "corn to fatten his hogs" by Jim Thomas, the Tolu mail carrier. As the banker had two fine porkers "put up" and was wondering where the feed had come from, since corn has soared so high, he was, of course, in the language of Teddy "delighted" when he saw the man who handles Uncle Sam's mail pouch every day on the Tolu route walk into the Marion bank with the sack of corn which grew on one of Billie Barnett's fine farms and they drew a good sum full. Every one who knows full how and heavy and generous a sample which any farmer might feel proud of.

C. P. Church.

I have been absent from my people a good deal this summer in meetings. I have been present (when intending to preach), but others were present to preach for me. I hope to be with you in the services next Sunday and hope that all the members of the church will be present. All others are cordially invited to attend.

JAMES F. PRICE.

For Sale or Rent.

My farm near Piney Creek church. One hundred and forty acres, about half cleared, plenty of stock water, good dwelling house, barn, orchard, cistern. All but about twenty acres in grass. Will sell cheap or rent the whole farm, or reserve all of the pasture land. Would not want to rent any more than tobacco land, but plenty of corn land to rent near by. For full terms, etc., write to Entertainment.

Mrs. Horace H. Sayre entertained a number of friends at Euchre last Thursday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Carrie Maxwell, of Ardmore, Indian Territory. Mrs. Alice Marshall won the first, Miss Martha Henry, the consolation, and Mrs. Maxwell was awarded the visitors prize. Delicious refreshments of sherbet with whipped cream and cake were served. The guests were: Mesdames Carrie Maxwell, R. F. Haynes, Tom Clifton, H. A. Cameron, A. H. Cardin, Alice Marshall, J. W. Wilson, G. P. Roberts, Emma Hayward, E. J. Hayward, Jas. Henry, O. M. James, Sam Gugenheim; Misses Della Barnes, Martha Henry, Kitty Gray, Ruby James, Blanche Haase, Leafia Wilborn and Mary Cameron.

Veterans Meeting.

The Norma Club which has been dubbed "Old Faithful," on account of its perseverance and attentions of the little amenities of life, entertainment at the residence of Mrs. J. W. Blue, in honor of Mrs. Caroline Maxwell, who was sojourning in our midst after an absence of two years in the Golden West. "There was a feast of reason and a flow of soul." Refreshments and contests were indulged in, but they are scarcely worth mentioning on such occasions. Altogether it was both a sweet and enjoyable afternoon—except alas! when "Auld Lang Syne and My Old Kentucky Home" were sung in concert which almost caused the meeting to dissolve in tears, as only a few of the stout hearted could sing more than one stanza.

Whiskey in His Grave.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28.—Phineas G. Wright had his grave reopened at Putnam to place a case of whiskey beside the coffin, which has been in the grave more than a year awaiting for Wright's occupancy. He is seventy-five years old. Several years ago Wright caused a granite block to be placed over the grave with his bust to be carved on it. The cut of the whiskers did not please him and he caused the sculptor to trim the stone enough to conform to his favorite adornment. The inscription below the name reads: "Going, but know not where."

NEW ORLEANS NEWS.

Lively Times in New Orleans—Exposition in New Orleans in 1915.

A larger number of visitors are expected here than usual.

The health of this city has been unusually good for the past season.

Dan Patch will pace against time today at the City Park Race Track.

The uniting of the Oceans will be celebrated by a World's Exposition in New Orleans in 1915.

Our move on ordinance compels visitors to see the sights by rubbernecking in street cars, or flying in automobiles.

The Louisiana cane crop is reported unusually large and grinding operation will be in full force by the first of next month.

The Crescent City assessment has increased $13,000,000 in the last year. This will add materially to appropriation of $8,000,000 for sewerage which is now well under way.

With anticipation we look forward each week with pleasure and interest the weekly receipt of the Crittenden RECORD PRESS as the perusal of same always leave a pleasant flavor in the South.

The City of New Orleans is at present in the throes of the greatest building boom in its history. Over a dozen skyscrapers, both completed and under course of construction, being erected representating an estimated valuation of nearly half a billion of dollars.

Nov. 1st, being in New Orleans "All Saints Day" the believers and patriots are now busying themselves preparing family tombs and decorating same with cut flowers im memory of their departed. This is a custom peculiar to the State of Louisiana only. The tombs being literally covered with floral tributes.

The "Aero Club" of the United States at one time thought seriously of having their next annual meet here, but after close investigation found that the heights of the buildings now in course of construction and to be erected would very seriously interfere with the course, consequently New Orleans will not have the pleasure of entertaining their airships next year.
