"I'LL STAND BY HARRY TO DEATH!" PLEDGE OF THAW'S TITLED SISTER

"I Am Harry's Sister," Says Countess of Yarmouth on Her Arrival; "Our Family Is Not Divided Over His Defense."

YOUNG MAN'S TRIAL TO BE ONCE MORE DELAYED.

Unexpected Length of the Trial of the Magic Boots Case Will Cause a Postponement When He Is Taken to Court on Monday.

The Countess of Yarmouth, Harry Thaw's sister, reached New York to-day on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria in time to hear the news that the trial of her brother will be postponed. The case of Hilgert, the "Magic Boots" man, will require two or three days more of Justice Fitzgerald's time, running into the allotment for the Thaw case, which was to have begun Monday.

Through her brother, Edward Thaw, the Countess made a statement on board the ship, which was anchored down the bay for hours after clearing Quarantine because of the fog. The Countess denies that there is any division in the Thaw family over Harry's defense. She says she has come to New York to set at rest the reports of disagreements and to stand by her brother to death.

Eugene Bernard, juror No. 12 in the Hilgert case, received a message shortly after the opening of the proceedings to-day that one of his children was ill and in danger of death. Court was adjourned to allow him to go to the bedside of his little one. He returned in time for the afternoon session.

After a talk with Justice Fitzgerald this afternoon Assistant District-Attorney Garvan, who is to assist District-Attorney Jerome in the prosecution of Thaw, announced that the trial could not go on on Monday. He said that the trial of Hilgert could not be finished before Tuesday.

Mr. Garvan said that notwithstanding this condition Thaw will have to be brought into court on Monday, as his trial has been set for that day, and that then the case would be adjourned.

Although the District-Attorney has repeatedly announced that the presentation of the case of the prosecution will not occupy more than two or three days, it is believed by those conversant with the facts that the trial will take up a much time as was consumed by the Nan Patterson or any other of the recent famous homicide proceedings. In the first place, there will be great difficulty in getting a jury.

Dozens of the two hundred men drawn for the special Thaw panel have visited the office of the Commissioner of Jurors in an attempt to get excused. There has developed among them a surprising sentiment against capital punishment. An extra panel may be necessary.

Talk in the Tenderloin among people who have been subpoenaed by the District-Attorney, appears to show that instead of four or five witnesses, he will have a small army of them. If all who say they have been summoned to testify for the prosecution are telling the truth, the District-Attorney will take up a week or more in taking their evidence.

That Mr. Jerome is after the chorus girl friends of Mrs. Thaw was indicated when he summoned May McKenzie yesterday. Undoubtedly many of the witnesses for the prosecution have been summoned as a precautionary measure, in order that the District-Attorney may be prepared to meet any defense counsel for Thaw may put up. If Thaw goes to trial on a straight insanity defense, there will be no necessity for calling many of the witnesses for the prosecution.

Thaw expected a visit from his sister, the Countess, early to-day, and was deeply disappointed when his wife called on him at the usual hour and reported that the landing of passengers from the steamer had been delayed by fog. The Countess did not land until late this afternoon.

The Countess of Yarmouth is accompanied by the Duke of Newcastle and his niece, Adeline Lister-Kaye, and Mr. and Mrs. Hawfa Williams.

The Countess has become decidedly melancholy since the trouble which Harry Thaw has brought upon himself. She was his favorite sister and always seemed to have more influence over him than others of the family. She has not attended court or been in any way conspicuous in society in London since the slaying of Stanford White.

Her influence will at once be thrown in the balance, it is believed, to induce Thaw to plead insanity, and thus if possible land himself in a crazy house rather than attempt to escape the electric chair by the "unwritten law" route, which at best, it is admitted, is beset with many obstacles.

LIGHT TRUST MUST HOUSE ITS RIVAL

The electric light "trust" of New York City was to-day given a jolt in an opinion handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. It forced the trust to live up to its agreement with the city to rent part of the space in he wire subways to competing companies.

The Consolidated Telegraph and Electrical Subway Company is the "dog in the manger" in lighting here. The Long Acre Electric Light and Power Company wanted to hire space in the Subway for its wires, but the Consolidated Company declined.

BINGHAM IS ONLY A FOOLISH MEGAPHONE, IS M'ADOO'S REMARK

Says Commissioner Knows Nothing of Police Business—Calls Him a Mere Mouthpiece for Others.

For the first time since he was practically ousted from the department William McAdoo, former Police Commissioner, this afternoon unburdened his mind of his sentiments regarding the man who succeeded him a little more than a year ago. He called Gen. Theodore Bingham an incompetent mouthpiece of other people's opinions. "Megaphone" was the exact word he used. What's more, he used it twice.

Mr. McAdoo's attention had been called to a statement which Commissioner Bingham gave out to-day, and in which Bingham reflected upon the usefulness of McAdoo's old advisory board. In reply Mr. McAdoo showed warmth. Gritting his teeth to hold on to his disposition and tasting each word in advance to see if it were bitter enough, he slowly and deliberately said:

"Up to this time I have never made any criticism or comment on Gen. Bingham or his admirers, although I have had ample opportunity and provocation to do so.

"It would be impossible to have a controversy with Gen. Bingham about police affairs—a subject about which he is grossly ignorant and constitutionally and temperamentally incapable of learning anything.

"He has allowed himself to become a megaphone, and not a man. I will carefully read later what he is alleged to have said against some reputable and distinguished citizens, and if I deem it worthy of notice I will have something to say to the owners of the voice behind this incapable and foolish megaphone."

Some time ago the Citizens' Union named a committee to assist in securing needed police legislation along the lines advocated in Gen. Bingham's last report to the Mayor. Three of the members of the committee were Col. George R. Dyer, David McClure and R. A. C. Smith, who had also served on the advisory board that assisted Commissioner McAdoo in making promotions from the eligible list.

The Citizens' Union Committee found Gen. Bingham was fathering and mothering a bill which is now pending at Albany, and which, if enacted, will work a number of reforms in the police system. The Citizens' Union Committee decided to advocate the Bingham bill; that is, all but three of its members did. Need it be added that the three were Messrs. McClure, Dyer and Smith, McAdoo's old counselors?

They came out in a statement saying Gen. Bingham's ideas were too drastic and bagged in the back, or something. He therefore went into executive session with himself, to think it over. The result saw its birth to-day in the shape of a typewritten statement, in which Gen. Bingham, with a disregard for grammar that is pardonable under the circumstances, speaks as follows:

"Three gentlemen who had so much experience and their experience was so much greater than anybody else that it would not allow them to serve, I am very sorry that these gentlemen do not agree with me as to the needs of the department. I am also sorry that so far I have got along without asking their advice. That these gentlemen were members of an advisory committee in a previous administration is of little interest. Anybody who knows anything of the police situation knows that that committee was looked on as a joke."

The Commissioner admitted that he had promoted nearly all the men whom McAdoo's advisory board had opposed because of their alleged bad records. He added:

"That committee may have assisted in a greater number of promotions than ever happened in the Department in the same length of time, but while they assisted in a large quantity the quality was not so well marked."

It was this utterance which provoked from McAdoo his tabasco-flavored remarks. The McAdoo outburst came at the close of one of Gen. Bingham's hardest days. Two of his patrolmen had been locked up—one for assaulting women and children with his club, and one for trying to shoot his roundsman to death.

From the Harlem Police Court there had also filtered down a story of a policeman who had made incorrect statements under oath while trying to fix a bad name upon a law-abiding citizen.

Around Headquarters Gen. Bingham's further contributions to the new-born quarrel will be anxiously awaited. Those who know him best have no expectation that he will remain silent under such taunts as "foolish megaphone." In fact, it is believed that the vocabulary of North American Cuss-Words will be considerably enriched when he turns loose to-morrow.

City Park Races Divided Among Long Chances and Choices.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18—The weather was cloudy at City Park to-day with a chance of rain, but up to the first race no rain fell and the track was still lightning fast. If the meeting were to continue beyond Saturday a new record would probably be established in the matter of track and weather. The good going continues to draw out a good card of horses and the card to-day was above the average for a Friday. Usually this is a poor day because of the extra attractions offered on Saturday's.

Glorifier was again carded as a starter in the mile and a furlong, meeting Phil Finch, Orbicular and Missouri Lad. This was the feature race of the day. The other races were attractive and promised good sport. The attendance was heavy and a full list of books were on.

FIRST RACE—Five and one-half furlongs.

Name, weight, jockey.	Str.	Pl.
Miss Leeds, 103, Garner	6-5	2-5

KINGSTON RAVAGED BY SEA, IN NEW PERIL

Ocean To-Day Makes Further Inroads on the City and Shore Line Disappearing, While Volcano Adds New Terror.

ADMIRAL DAVIS WIRES 400 KILLED IN GREAT DISASTER

Naval Commander Who Took Relief to Sufferers Sends Despatch from Scene Telling Fatalities—Press Message, Belated, Says Thousands Died.

A Kingston despatch sent by way of Holland Bay, Jamaica, to-day, says that the sea is making steady inroads on the city of Kingston as the shore steadily sinks. To-day there were several water front slides and the entire harbor line has been changed. The water has advanced several feet above the shore's high tide mark since yesterday, and the city is in danger of disappearing. Soundings taken show radical changes in the harbor bottom.

This despatch follows one sent by Admiral Evans stating that a tidal wave had swept the coast line of Jamaica, leaving the entire south side of Kingston under water.

He added that the whole coast line was reported sinking and that no bay was left.

Another message from Holland Bay says that new terror is added to the situation by a volcano long inactive, which has begun to issue smoke, while rumblings and a red glow at night throw the people into alarm. The volcano is in the Blue Mountains, just behind Kingston.

The latest official news of the Kingston, Jamaica, disaster reached this city to-day from Guantanamo, Cuba, through Admiral Evans, who had received from Admiral Davis, sent to Kingston on the torpedo boat Whipple, a brief wireless report of the situation in the stricken city.

Admiral Davis reported that Kingston was almost entirely destroyed; that 400 persons were killed, and that 500 were in the hospitals. The despatch was sent yesterday (Thursday) morning, and further reported that Kingston was then quiet.

The Whipple started to return to Guantanamo with a full report of the situation yesterday, and evidently reached the American naval base during the night.

THOUSANDS KILLED, ONE REPORT.

Direct advices to the Associated Press from Kingston, under date of Jan. 16, received early to-day, stated that the disaster was as great as the calamities of San Francisco and Valparaiso. Thousands of persons, it was then believed, had been killed, as the dead were being recovered from the ruins in hundreds.

A number of Americans were among the killed.

The city is in ruins, but the shipping in the harbor is safe, and aboard these vessels the wounded are being cared for.

The despatch also states that the topography of the country has been changed as a result of the earth's disturbance, and that the channel into Kingston Harbor has been materially altered. The body of Sir James Furgusson, who was kiled, was found and burned on the day the despatch was sent.

There have been a number of shocks since the first disastrous one, and the repetitions keep the people in a constant state of terror.

Havana reports a wireless message received there states that a tidal wave has changed the coast line of Jamaica and has left the south side of Kingston under water.

London fears that 400 dead are still buried in the Kingston ruins in addition to the 350 reported killed by Gov. Swettenham.

There were two violent earth shocks in Russia to-day.

A cable from Kingston to the Boston agent of the Hamburg-American line states no tourists met death in the disaster.

400 DEAD ADMIRAL DAVIS SAYS.

CAIMANERA, Cuba, Jan. 17, 2 P. M.—Rear Admiral Davis, who went to Kingston, Jamaica, with the American ships, sent a wireless report to Rear-Admiral Evans at Guantanamo this morning. His dispatch follows:

"Missouri and Indiana anchored at Kingston at 8.30 this morning. Kingston almost totally destroyed. Four hundred killed; about five hundred in hospital. City now quiet. There were plenty of doctors, but short dressings. Have supplied all could spare."

The American torpedo-boat Whipple left Kingston this morning and
