health and that he has undergone the selection of his jury without mental or physical hurt to himself.

That Thaw planned going on the witness stand has been known to Mr. Jerome for some days. The District-Attorney does not mean to spare Thaw's escapades.

Thaw had a long conference with his lawyers last night. He saw two of them—Hartridge and Peabody—again to-day. Mr. Peabody was still in front of his cell when Evelyn Thaw reached Murderers' Row on her regular visit. She stayed with her husband until 1 o'clock this afternoon. She said the elder Mrs. Thaw would probably not come to the Tombs to-day on account of the weather.

Mr. Gleason said Thaw's lawyers would probably decide this evening which of them will make the opening speech for the defense. This is a point that had not yet been decided.

Seeks Thaw's Record.

Hartford T. Marshall, one of Mr. Jerome's assistants, is now in Pittsburg digging deep into Thaw's record. Mr. Jerome means to meet the millionaire prisoner half way if Thaw does appear on the stand to show that he was justified in committing the murder.

All the talesmen left of the special panels called in the case will be in court Monday morning. This precaution it is said is taken only in case a juror should be ill and that no objection to those in the box will be urged.

The jurors spent the forenoon to-day reading and playing cards. It was announced that they would be taken for a walk this afternoon if the weather cleared. Evidently Capt. Lynch didn't intend to have any of his charges catching cold or getting laid up with the grip. It is probable that the jurors will not go to any church to-morrow on account of their diversity of religious beliefs. Ten are Protestants, one a Hebrew and one a Catholic.

Cost of the Trial.

Nobody knows how much this trial has already cost and is going to cost the Thaw family, but according to the estimates at the District-Attorney's office the liabilities on the other side of the docket will not throw the County of New York into bankruptcy. The two trials of Roland B. Mitchell put the taxpayers to an expense of nearly $80,000, and it cost $50,000 to convict Patrick Nan Patterson had two full trials and half of another, but the entire cost to the prosecution was not much in excess of $5,000.

If it had not been necessary to combat insanity experts with other experts, the cost to the State of the Thaw trial would be a comparatively small amount. But since Mr. Jerome has had to engage a staff of alienists for himself—men who get a hundred dollars each for every day they appear in court—this item has run up greatly. Talesmen and jurors represent a good deal more. Detectives had to be sent out to find certain witnesses and when they were found Mr. Jerome has had to pay the expenses of bringing them here, sometimes from far-distant points, and paying their hotel bills and living expenses while they are here.

Then there is the cost of transcribing the record, the salaries of the officers and functionaries who take part, and scores of incidentals. But, including everything and with provision made for all possible contingencies, it is stated that the whole trial ought not to cost the county more than $16,000.

WARREN TELLS HOW THAW SLEW STANFORD WHITE.

HERKIMER, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Halsey W. Warren, one of the best-known residents of Little Falls, is in New York under subpœna as a witness for the prosecution in the Thaw murder case. The facts to which Mr. Warren will testify are best learned from a copy of the letter written by him to Landlord Flannagan, of the Rockton Hotel, when they were fresh in his mind. It was dated the day after the tragedy and reads:

"Dear Tom: I witnessed an awful tragedy last evening at the opening of the roof-garden theatre. I sat with an acquaintance at the very next table where Harry K. Thaw shot and killed Stanford White, the architect of the building. Mr. Thaw was very calm and deliberate; did not say a word, and the dead man did not utter a sound after the first shot was fired. I saw all the papers and they have very amusing accounts.

"White was sitting alone and apparently did not see Thaw approach. I was looking at Thaw and wondered who he was at the time. The people all seemed paralyzed with fright, and two yelled out 'Stop that man.' He was carrying his gun upside down and walked toward his wife, who was standing near the elevator. She seemed to approve his deadly work.

"I was the first to the side of the dead man and turned his face out of a large pool of blood. When I learned that a friend of White was endeavoring to find out who I was I ducked down the stairway and went up Madison avenue.

"Yours respectfully,

"HALSEY W. WARREN."

JAPANESE ENVOY SAYS ROOSEVELT INSPIRES PEACE

President's Stand for Mikado's People Halts Hostile Moves.

TOKIO, Feb. 2.—Baron Kantaro Kaneko, a distinguished member of the Japanese House of Peers, and a special ambassador recently detailed by the Imperial Government to visit America and study political and economic conditions there, in an interview with the correspondent here of the Associated Press, to-day, on the San Francisco school question, said:

"From the outset I knew it to be a local question, unindorsed by American public opinion, and I have been speaking of it to my friends in that light. This is more than confirmed by President Roosevelt's message, which I consider the greatest utterance since the farewell message of President Washington.

"It is unprecedented in the way it so strongly advocates a foreign cause. No stronger or abler advocate could be found for Japan. When the text of his message bearing on the school question was fully translated in the leading papers throughout this country, even in the Island of Formosa all could readily see and appreciate the profoundness of his arguments.

"Had the question arisen elsewhere, the crisis would have occurred and loud defiance would have been uttered the length and breadth of the empire. On the other hand, the quiet tone of the press clearly demonstrates the strength of the confidence reposed in President Roosevelt and the typical American sentiment generally.

"As a sincere friend of America, I could not help but regret that San Francisco officials should have chosen innocent children for effecting their political ends.

"All my friends who have recently returned from abroad making comparative observation of educational systems in civilized countries concur in giving the first rank to the American system. The fact that such an excellent fruit of civilization has been refused to the children of a friendly power, and that, too, in a country acknowledged as the practical exponent of humanitarianism, only tends to alienate it from the sympathies of the civilized world.

"Before this injustice, Japan rests peaceful and quiet. Not a single soul has ever thought that the San Francisco affair would endanger the friendship of both nations. The affair, disagreeable and regettable as it is, has served the unique purpose of demonstrating to the world how deep-rooted is the friendship between Japan and America.

"The latent cordiality Japan entertains for her tutor is shown by the fact that, suffering under the severest strain, Japan does not forget what she owes to America in her modern progress, but unflinchingly trusts in support of her rights to the justice which guides American sentiments."

WAR TALK ALL BOSH, SAYS SENATOR CULLOM.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—After a talk with the President to-day, Senator Cullom, the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said:

"This war scare is all bosh. I'd like to go to war with Senator Perkins for calling the way he did last night.

"There is no more chance of our going to war with Japan over this little school question," said the Senator, "than there is of fighting China, Russia or Great Britain."

SIX FIRES IN ONE HOUSE STIR POLICE.

And Two Blazes in One Day Lead Capt. Burfeind to Investigate.

For the fifth and sixth times in two months fires were discovered to-day in the apartment house at No. 114 West One Hundred and Fourth street. The persistence of the outbreaks passed the coincidental stage, and Capt. Burfeind this afternoon put Detective Bresnan and a number of other plain clothes men on the case.

The first fire was discovered this morning in the dumb-waiter, which was at the cellar level at the time. A still alarm brought the engines, but before they arrived the fire had been extinguished. This afternoon the second blaze was discovered in a vacant apartment and the alarm sent from a box. The firemen found the fire smouldering in a closet. All the first four fires were discovered in the basement between the hours of 8 and 10 at night. The police have a clew.

"POISON PETE'S" BAND STARTS FOR THE WEST.

Three youths of Rockville Centre afflicted with Western fever and armed with a repeating lassoo, reached the Brooklyn end of the bridge to-day when they were gathered in by waiting sleuths. The boys are Percy Perry Peace, sixteen years old; Warren Davis, fourteen, and Frank Warmuth. Frank is a widow's son and Warren is an editor's son.

Despite his Hague surname, Percy is inclined to be a dark exterminator. Unkind nature gave him red hair, and unsympathetic parents burdened him with "Percy Peace," but to offset this he wore a sombrero with a painted band reading "Poison Pete Peace." A truly piratical skull-and-crossbones had been painted on the pinned-up brim.

"Poison Percy" was assistant janitor of the Rockville Centre High School until he organized his band and started West at 7 o'clock this morning. When taken to Police Headquarters and turned over to the Children's Society the Bad Man of Peace muttered:

"Geel we starts West and gets pinched. And we hoped to reach Phillydelphiar."

In an old-fashioned handbag he carried the sole weapon of the expedition—a lasso.

PAULINE MORTON MARRIED TO-DAY AT ST. THOMAS'S

J. Hopkins Smith, Jr., Gets the First February Bride.

Miss Pauline Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morton, was the first February bride of the season to-day when her marriage to J. Hopkins Smith, jr., took place at St. Thomas's Church. The wedding was a notable incident both in social and diplomatic circles for the guest list included the most prominent names of New York and Washington society.

St. Thomas's Church was a bower of white lilacs and white roses and apple blossoms when the young bride on the arm of her father walked up the flower marked aisle.

Miss Morton was attended by Miss Mary Canby, of Chicago, as maid of honor, while her bridesmaids were Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Elkins, of Philadelphia; Miss Emily Ames, of Chicago; Miss Jean Oliver, of Pittsburg; Miss Florence Howland, of Washington, and Miss Martha McCook and Miss Lilly Page, of New York City.

Mr. Smith was attended by his brother, St. John Smith, as best man, and the ushers were Marvin Kellogg, John W. Minturn, of New York, Burnett Wendell, Edward and Lathrop Motley, of Boston; Frederick Hale, of Washington; Charles Schweppe and Lowell Burch, of Chicago, a cousin of the bride.

The bride's gown was of white satin, empire style, with point lace bodice and skirt trimmed in bands of satin. Her long tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried an empire bouquet of white orchids and white lilacs.

The artistic effect of the bridesmaids' costumes harmonized in simplicity with the delicacy of the decorations. Miss Canby wore pale blue chiffon over satin Empire gown and carried white lilacs. Her big picture hat was blue with a long plume. The bridesmaids were in white chiffon with blue sashes. They wore white satin picture hats with drooping plumes. Their bouquets were white lilacs and pink roses.

Following the church ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Stires, a ceremony was held at the Elihu Root residence, No. 753 Madison avenue, which the Mortons occupy.

A thousand invitations were issued to the church and five hundred to the reception. Among the most distinguished guests were ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Cuyler, Mr. and Mrs. Hegeman, Mrs. Edward Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Bliss, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Brayton, J. Coleman Brayton, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Ronalds, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dana, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Dyer, the Rev. Sherrard Billings Townsend, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Quincy Shaw, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Winthrop, of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Morran, of Chicago.

Among the young society girls present were Miss Janet Fish and Miss Marian Fish, Miss Katherine Barney, Miss Corinne Robinson and Miss Louise Knowles.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will take a three months' wedding trip abroad, after which they will make their home in New York.

Miss Mary Canby, the beautiful young bridesmaid, and Miss Pauline Morton in their childhood days had made a vow that whichever should be married first the other would be the bride's maid of honor. To-day the promise was kept.

WIDOW LEAVES A SUICIDE NOTE

Grieving Over Death of Husband, Mrs. Measom Disappeared from Home.

When Dr. Edward Measom, a dentist, of No. 284 Lenox avenue, went to the letter box in the hall of his apartment last night he found addressed to him an envelope containing a bunch of keys and the following note:

"Dear Brother-in-Law: Give these keys to Jessie. I have gone mad and intend to drown myself.

"ANGELINA MEASOM."

Mrs. Angelina Measom is the widow of Dr. Measom's brother Allen, who died in England two years ago. Six months ago the widow and her three children, the eldest of whom, Jessie, is twenty-five, came to New York and went to live at No. 645 Lenox avenue. The woman grieved over the death of her husband.

Dr. Measom said to-day that nothing has since been heard of his sister-in-law, but that her children are looking for her at the homes of friends. The widow's flat was locked up and none of the other tenants in the apartment house had seen her since she went out yesterday. Her daughter was believed to be staying at the residence of Dr. Measom.

Mrs. Measom's maiden name was Langneau and she was a resident of Brooklyn. After her marriage she lived there until sixteen years ago, when she moved to London with her husband, who was a wood carver. She is described as very short, being about five feet tall, and a pronounced brunette with olive skin and gray hair.

CLUBBER O'NEILL PLACED ON TRIAL

Deputy Commissioner Scores Sergeant for Failing to Find Witnesses.

Patrolman Thomas J. O'Neill, of the West Thirty-seventh street station, who ran "amuck" at Seventh avenue and Thirty-sixth street on the night of Jan. 11, clubbed citizens and made two false arrests, was placed on trial at Police Headquarters before Deputy Commissioner Hanson to-day.

The names of nine witnesses for the prosecution were called, but only one, John Collins, a boy, responded. Serg. Calhane, of the West Thirty-seventh street station, reported that he could not find the witnesses.

The Deputy Commissioner held a brief conference with Inspector Hussey and then, calling the sergeant to him, said sharply:

"Why couldn't you find these witnesses?"

"They were not at the addresses given when the roundsman intrusted with the subpœnas called there," replied the sergeant.

"Now, I want to tell you, Sergeant," said the Deputy Commissioner, "I want these people served. If they're not, I will find out why. Now, there isn't going to be any monkeying about this."

It was then agreed between R. H. Hibbard, O'Neill's counsel, and the Deputy Commissioner, that such witnesses as were present should be examined.

"I don't propose to close this case until all the witnesses have been examined," said Deputy Hanson.

Jesse Collins, the boy witness, said he was fifteen years of age and lived at No. 773 Tenth avenue, and was employed at No. 58 East Twenty-third street. He testified about seeing the policeman chasing a negro.

"I saw a pocketbook lying on the sidewalk," said Collins. "I picked it up and gave it to this policeman, O'Neill, and he said, 'Come to the station-house.' We went and the Sergeant let the negro go."

Serg. Cornelius H. Calhane was the next witness. He said O'Neill brought in the boy, Collins, and another policeman a negro, named Gaynor, of No. 123 West Thirty-second street. He let both go as there was nothing on which to hold them. He said he examined O'Neill and a roundsman examined him, and he appeared to be sober and fit for duty.

O'Neill's counsel asked the Sergeant if he was not aware that when O'Neill clubbed a citizen some time ago and was fined for it, he was only doing his duty in standing off a mob that was trying to free a murderer from three other policemen.

The Sergeant said he didn't know that.

"And don't you know he was fined fifteen days' pay for clubbing several little girls?" asked the Deputy Commissioner.

Patrolman McCarthy testified to seeing the negro running, with O'Neill in pursuit. McCarthy caught Gaynor. The witness said he saw no rough conduct on the part of O'Neill.

"You're lying to me," said Deputy Commissioner Hansen, sternly.

"I wouldn't lie for any man!" retorted McCarthy.

"If you fellows come down here and lie for one another you are going to get 'soaked.'"

O'Neill's counsel interposed at this point, and went on record as objecting to the Deputy Commissioner's remarks to the witness. Further hearing was adjourned until next Saturday.

CONGRESSMAN FLACK, NEW YORK MEMBER, DEAD

(Special to The Evening World.)

MALONE, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Congressman William H. Flack, Republican, died at his home here early to-day. He had been ill for over two years with a complication of diseases.

Mr. Flack was born in the town of Franklin, Franklin County, N. Y., March 22, 1861, and was educated in the public schools. For a number of years he was interested in lumbering operations and held several public offices before being elected member of the Fifty-eighth Congress in 1902 from the Twenty-sixth New York District.

He leaves a widow and two sons.

"SANDWICH JAKE" KILLED HIMSELF

Bowery Men's Friend Fired Fatal Shot Under Picture Employee Destroyed.

"Jake" Wamser, known to hungry men along the Bowery as "Sandwich Jake," because there was almost always food to be had in Wamser's little saloon, No. 32 East Fourth street, for the asking, shot himself to death to-day under a picture made of straw and paper which he valued at $1,500 and which was recently marred by a discharged Italian barkeeper.

Trade hasn't been good with Wamser of late. There have been strikes among the bookbinders and clothing workers who formerly got their midday meal in the saloon. Until these strikes began Wamser served 240 men and women daily.

Wamser had an Italian bartender, whom he discharged about ten days ago. The bartender declared in leaving the saloon: "I'll get even with you," and with that he drew a revolver and fired a bullet through the picture. The picture was the most prized possession of Wamser and his wife. The straw and paper arranged in an artistic way showed the battle of Sedan in the Franco-Prussian war.

When Wamser saw his picture practically destroyed he lost heart. The falling off of his trade had not worried him nearly so much.

Wamser and his wife lived at No. 535 Third avenue, but they were seldom in their rooms. The wife tended bar and ran the kitchen, and Wamser kept the cash as it came in and saw that hungry men were fed when they appealed to him.

When Mrs. Wamser went to her home late last night Wamser said he would stay awhile and balance cash accounts. They found Wamser dead to-day when the saloon was opened. In his hand was grasped a revolver, which he had purchased to protect himself from the Italian who had threatened him. There was a small bullet hole in his right temple. The police said there was no doubt that he had committed suicide.

People Gain Strength and Economy on Grape-Nuts "There's a Reason"

PRIZE FIGHTER'S TEARS SAVED HIM

Magistrate Wouldn't Send Him to Reformatory, Although Mother Wished It.

Henry Bach, seventeen years old, otherwise known as "Kid Sharkey" in the world of six-round bouts, was arraigned in Harlem Court to-day on complaint of his mother, Mrs. Rose Bach, of No. 174 Lexington avenue. She said he was a bad boy who would not work and who came home only when he had been battered in the ring and needed nursing.

Bach, in a red sweater and with a blackened eye and a swollen nose, looked as if he had just got the worst of it. When he heard his mother's demand that he be sent to a reformatory he wept. He was standing beside Policeman Mike Nachbas, of the Court Squad. "Big Mike," as he is called, weighs about 300 pounds and his chest slopes out and down like a roll top desk. It was on the projection that young Bach leaned, sobbing.

"Here," said the policeman, "get away or you'll drown me."

Magistrate Breen's attention was caught by this and he turned to the young fighter.

"I'm surprised," said the Magistrate, "to see a young man who calls himself after Sharkey crying like that. Do you cry in the ring?"

"I'm a fi'-fighter," sobbed the boy, "an' a wallop don't hurt, but here's me own mother givin' me a jab in the soul. That's wot make's me cry."

He fairly wailed and the Magistrate asked his mother if she thought he might do better if she took him home again. She shook her head emphatically, but the Magistrate said:

"A boy that cries that way can't be so very bad. I'll parole him for six months."

NOT ALL THE CITY BONDS WERE TAKEN

Some $3,000,000 of the Ten and Twenty Year Issues Remain Unsold.

The tabulation of the $30,000,000 bond sale made yesterday by Comptroller Metz was not completed until after noon to-day, when it was found that a portion of the ten and twenty-year bonds were not taken by the bidders. The total amount taken was $27,000,000 in round numbers, while $889,000 of the twenty-year bonds and $1,425,000 of the ten-year bonds remain unsold.

The Comptroller explained this by the fact that the bulk of the bonds offered were fifty-year bonds, and the investors are looking for long-term investments. Many bids were made with the alternative that if fifty-year bonds were not allotted to the bidders at the price bid, then they would take either the ten or twenty-year bonds, but in each case the bidders were allotted fifty-year bonds, and when offered the other bonds in addition declined to take them.

"Over $26,000,000 of the offering," said the Comptroller, "consisted of the fifty-year bonds, and the small offering of water and assessment bonds, which run twenty and ten years respectively, was overlooked by the majority of bidders. At an offering of these bonds alone they would have been largely oversubscribed. I myself think the fifty-year bonds a much better investment, and I intend recommending legislation to permit the issue of water bonds for a term of fifty years. It is fairer to the present generation as well as more favorable to the general investor."

STEVENS CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT.

Panama Canal Evidently Their Topic, but New York Silent—Oliver Also in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—President Roosevelt had a call to-day from Frederick C. Stevens, the Commissioner of Public Works of New York State, who is backing W. J. Oliver for the Panama Canal contract. Mr. Stevens declined to say anything about his visit, but it presumably related to the Panama matter.

Mr. Oliver, who is here from Knoxville, Tenn., his place of residence, sign offices to-day to talk with Chairman Shonts about the contract, but Mr. Shonts is in New York.

Mr. Oliver said that he was ready to comply with the requirements suggested by the President that two other contractors must be associated with him in the proposals submitted. He would not give the names of these contractors and said these would probably be made public by Mr. Shonts when the ten days limit has expired.

FELL DEAD AFTER TESTIFYING IN COURT

Heart Disease Overcame William B. Green When He Left Witness-Stand.

William B. Green, a master mechanic employed in the Brooklyn Navy-Yard for many years, dropped dead in the Flushing Court-House to-day a few minutes after leaving the witness stand in the Special Term of the Supreme Court.

The dead man's son, Albert Green, was the defendant in habeas corpus proceedings brought by his wife to obtain possession of their four-year-old little girl Muriel. Leaving the stand, the child's grandfather called to her to bring him a box of medicine she carried.

He took a capsule from the box, broke it open and snuffed a few grains of powder up his nose. He seemed very feeble and held his hand over his heart. He explained to a court officer that he had heart disease. After snuffing the powder he said he felt better and asked the attendant where he could obtain a glass of water. Directed to the corridor, he left the tribunal.

The court officer followed the old man and saw him stumble and fall across a bench. When the officer got to the man he was dead. The son was notified and the habeas corpus proceedings were suspended for two weeks.

SQUIRE PYTTON, KING OF DOGDOM, IS HERE.

Champion Collie, After Sweeping Boards in England, Brought Over for Samuel Untemeyer.

There were five aristocratic British dogs on the Lucania, of the Cunard line, which made her dock here to-day. They were all collies, among them Champion Squire Pytton, valued at $5,000. Squire Pytton has won the first prize for class of all breeds of dogs shown at all of the big British dog shows for the past seven years. He has taken the blue ribbon for his kind for ten years.

All of these dogs were brought over for Samuel Untermyer, the lawyer, and will be taken to his Gravstons kennels, in Yonkers. They were in charge of W. E. Mason, a well-known English dog breeder, who brought them from the Freshfield kennels, England. Mason will show them for Mr. Untermyer at the Dog Show at Madison Square Garden.

Abram Untermyer met the dogs at the pier and had some difficulty getting them by the Customs officers, as he did not have sufficient money with him to pay the duties. He sent word to his father, who relieved the situation.

There was some little gossip aboard ship when three Pennsylvania Railroad officials went over the side at Quarantine and boarded a tug, which sailed away for the city under a full head of steam.

Mrs. Marshall Field, jr., was a passenger on the Lucania. She has come to New York for a brief stay, and will return on the same ship. The boat had a fair voyage.

SHE'S GOT THE WHOLE OUTPUT OF LEMONS.

Steamer Alberta Hard Aground and Sailormen Are Superstitious About Her.

Eight tugs were hitched to the Austrian steamer Alberta to-day in an effort to pull her off the shoal she went aground on yesterday morning just off Fifty-seventh street, South Brooklyn, but their united pull was not sufficient to get her into deep water.

The Alberta has a cargo of lemons, and the deep sea sailormen think this may have had something to do with the fact that she wabbled out of her course on the way to her pier at Forty-third street, South Brooklyn. Lighters are at work removing the lemons, and it is expected that the Alberta can be pulled off the shoal at high tide to-morrow morning.

The extent of the damage to the Austrian cannot be estimated until she reaches her pier.

MRS. SALMON TAKES HER MAIDEN NAME.

Bride's Honeymoon Was Brief and Husband Gave Her $10,000 in Lieu of Alimony.

She that was Sadie V. Salmon, of No. 840 West End avenue, formerly the wife of William Salmon, a manufacturer, at No. 166 Greene street, may resume her maiden name, Sadie V. Schenken, by the final decree of absolute divorce signed to-day by Justice O'Gorman, in the Supreme Court.

Both wealthy, these young people were married with much pomp and ceremony by the Rev. Dr. M. H. Harris, at Saratoga, July 17, 1904. But the marriage begun so auspiciously proved an unhappy match, and the bride went home to her parents in December. Mr. Salmon drew his check for $10,000 in favor of his dissatisfied wife, and a separation agreement was entered into under which she accepted the $10,000 in lieu of alimony or other claim upon him.

Mrs. Salmon, however, discovered that her husband was enjoying his freedom in the White Light District.
