Tutt's Pills
REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Habitual Costiveness

Causes derangement of the entire system, and begets diseases that are hazardous to life. Persons of a costive habit are subject to Headache, Defective Memory, Gloomy Forebodings, Nervousness, Fevers, Drowsiness, Irritable Temper and other symptoms, which unfit the sufferer for business or agreeable associations. Regular habit of body alone can correct these evils, and nothing succeeds so well in achieving this condition as Tutt's Pills. By their use not only is the system renovated, but in consequence of the harmonious changes thus created, there pervades a feeling of satisfaction; the mental faculties perform their functions with vivacity, and there is an exhilaration of mind, freedom of thought, and perfect heart's ease that bespeaks the full enjoyment of health.

SECRET OF BEAUTY

Is health. The secret of health is the power to digest a proper quantity of food. This can never be done when the liver does not act its part. It is the driving wheel in the mechanism of man, and when it is out of order, the whole system becomes deranged, and Fever, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious Colic and General Debility ensue. To restore the functions of the Liver and impart that beauty which always attends a healthy constitution, Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills are recommended. They are a cure-all, but are designed solely for the disordered Liver and the diseases which it produces.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Farm and Garden.

There is an important matter in connection with the poultry yard which farmers and egg producers of all kinds would do well to study, says Professor Long in the London Mark Lane Express. For the past few years prizes have been offered at the London Dairy Show and at the Birmingham Show for preserved eggs, which eggs it is necessary should have been preserved in a particular compound, the name of which is stated three months before they are opened to view in the exhibition. There has been no such decided success hitherto as that attained by the use of lime and salt. Professor long has had the advantage of going through the preserved egg classes with Mr. Tegetmeier, the judge of the dairy show, and of seeing every sample opened, and, although there have been a very large number of entries, there can be no question as to the perfection of preserving in lime water and in salt, though several other articles have been used for the purpose. As the result of the competitions Mr. Tegetmeier is of the opinion, and from what Prof. Long has repeatedly seen, he can indorse what he says, that when salt is used it is advisable to obtain a box in which the bottom is screwed on. A layer of an inch of salt is followed by a layer of eggs packed close together, but not touching each other. These are again covered with a layer of dry salt well pressed in and followed by another layer of eggs, and so on until the top is reached, care being taken that the salt is perfectly dry throughout, and that it is thoroughly well pressed in the box. When the box is filled the lid is fixed, and when it necessary to commence to use the eggs the bottom of the box is unscrewed and the stalest taken out first. Where lime is adopted as a preservative, a different course must be pursued. It has been the custom to recommend a thick mixture of lime and water, or lime cream, but it is found in practice that the eggs becomes so firmly imbedded in the lime that it is frequently difficult, or even impossible, to take them out; and as there is no advantage in using a large quantity of lime, for the water can take up only a certain porportion, it is found preferable to simply drop the eggs into lime water such as would be made from a mixture of a good handful of lime to a gallon of water. One other system appears to succeed. It is that of packing the eggs in sweet bran in boxes which are turned once every week. In some instances sawdust is used for packing eggs which have been dipped in some preserving composition, but although they are preserved a flavor is conveyed to the whites corresponding to that of the material in which they are packed.

EXCLUSIVE GRAIN DIET FOR FOWLS.

There is no more wisdom, says the Americam Agriculturist, in confining poultry exclusively to a grain diet than in keeping animals on a food devoid of bulk: In the growing season, the hens eat grass, grain, seeds and insects, and in winter they may be given more bulky food than usually received, and at less cost than that of feeding grain exclusively. If clover bay be finely cut, boiling water poured over it, and the mess well sprinkled with a mixture of ground grain, and seasoned with a little salt, they eat it willingly, and it affords an agreeable variety. The clover also largely assists in supplying albumen to the eggs, while the health of the fowls is promoted by the food not being very concentrated. No doubt some may consider such feed as suitable only for a cow or horse, but it is also good for poultry. If hens are kept on corn they become exceedingly fat, and as unfit for laying as an overfat animal is for breeding, but feed them on a variety which contains more of the flesh-forming elements than the carbonaceous, and they give better results. As the stock should be kept warm and comfortable, so should the fowls. It is much cheaper to provide suitable quarters than to keep them from freezing by stuffing with corn. They will also eat dry hay, if cut into short lengths; but it is better to feed it moistened and warm.

The Use of Tobacco.

Every tobacconist recognizes the great change that is taking place in what may be called in a rather new sense the public taste. Any average tobacconist, whose trade is not chiefly among sailors and truckmen, will tell you he does not sell one-half as much chewing tobacco as he did ten years ago, and not one-third as much as he did twenty years ago. Very likely he will be unable to guess why it is, but he can't deny the fact. I asked one of them about it the other day. He said:

"The change is due to a variety of causes. It is a great deal more apparent here in the east than in the west and south, but it is a going on all over the country. One thing is undoubtedly the strength of public opinion that it is an uncleanly habit. It is hard for a man who chews to keep evidence of it from his clothes. That fact makes it inevitable that the habit should go down before the increasing attention to dress, that is a feature of modern life. Then a great many refined and well intentioned persons have waged war against it for years. It was inevitable that some effect should follow their crusade.

"But the principal causes are right here: There is a great deal more dyspepsia and stomach trouble in the country now than there used to be. And no person can chew tobacco who has a weak stomach. James Partan says in his famous pamphlet against rum and tobacco that the stomach will hold out against the weed longer than the lungs. James does not smoke or chew and therefore he dosen't know. Common experience shows that he is wrong, and doctors support the verdict of common experience. The action of the tobacco juice which trickles down the chewer's throat, is to paralyze the stomach. It will do that long before smoke will have any perceptible effect upon an ordinary pair of lungs.

"Then the cigarette has done a great deal to put an end to the habit of chewing tobacco. The growth of the cigarette practice in this country is, as they say of western towns, 'phenomenal.' The consumption of cigarettes has doubled many times over in the last fifteen years. About seven out of every ten boys who are growing up now smoke cigarettes. And after a boy has smoked cigarettes a few years he not only has no taste for tobacco in any other form, but he has no constitution left to stand chewing tobacco. It is curious how boys will take to cigarettes. I believe it is very largely because of the fuss that is made about them. It has got to be the common opinion that cigarette smoking is the most injurious practice known. That is just why boys adopt it. It makes them an object of awful interest to other boys and to girls. It is soothing to a boy's foolish pride to know that people have marked him out as one who is rushing with frightful temerity to early destruction. Whether that is the cause of it or not, it is perfectly certain that more and more cigarettes are being sold every year and less and less chewing tobacco.

Drunkenness or the Liqour Habit Positively Cured by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; is absolutely harmless and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken the Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free-will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. —Railroad travelers often notice farm dogs running for considerable distance alongside of trains, either to beat the iron horse or scare it off the the track. Recently in going to the city, we noticed a fine big black dog coming through a field toward the train. He was fairly flying to reach the object before him, and coming to a fence he bounded over and unable to check his speed, he ran right against the big driving wheel, and in an instant he was sent through the air, turning over and over and fell limp and dead in the field. It was a clear case of miscalculation and the poor dog paid the penalty.—Valley News.

An Arctic Horror.

Full details have been received of the rescue of a sailor named Vincent, who is the only survivor of the whaling bark Napoleon, lost in the Arctic seas three years ago. The rescue of Vincent was effected by the efforts of the revenue ship Bear in an Indian village near Natarin. Vincent was in a deplorable condition. The miserable Indian clothing which partly covered him was tied upon his body to keep it from falling off, and his head was shaved in Indian style. When properly clothed and nourished the unfortunate man was able to give a history of his terrible sufferings.

When the whaling bark Napoleon, of which he was one of the crew, was crushed in the ice, all hands took to the boats without procuring provisions of any description. Soon after leaving the bark the boats became separated, the one in which Vincent was and another going together, each of these boats containing nine men, who were sometimes on ice and sometimes in the boats for many days. During this time their food consisted solely of two small seals and the leather of their boots. The weather was bitterly cold, and their hands, feet and ears became frozen and dropped off.

When the boats finally reached the shore only five of the eighteen men composing their crews remained. Of these Vincent was the only one who was able to walk. Two of the men who landed died shortly after going ashore, and the natives reported that one of them ate the flesh off the body of his dead companion. Vincent, the mate and a sailor then alone remained. The two latter succumbed to death during the first winter, and Vincent was left among the natives. He had lived with the Indians for two years and a half, and when at last succored by Captain Healy he was a most pitable specimen of humanity.

—"Isn't it dreadful," asked Miss Lilybud, "to run over a man?" "Yes, indeed, mum," replied the stoke of the express, "it jolts the engine wuss nor a cow."

"Butler and surrounding country needed such a store as this," is the general encouraging words our customers give us, "and people will be fast finding it out too." We keep good and well made goods only. Our cheapest garment is sewed with first-class thread, trimmed, lined and made up in a substantial manner. Our medium and better grades take rank with any Custom-made in the way of fitting and make up, while our FINE DRESS SUITS must be seen to be appreciated. OUR PRICES are decidedly the lowest. In short we desire to state that we keep a full line of

of all styles and grades. Every garment sold under a positive guarantee that it must be as represented or money refunded. HATS, CAPS, UNDERWEAR, HOSIERY, etc., in great variety. The latest styles of everything pertaining to a first-class clothing store always on hand. The true fitting white and fancy shirts always on hand.

We ask those who have not as yet patronized our store to give us a fair trial. We have no doubt of the ultimate result. We invite one and all to call on us before purchasing their Clothes, Underwear or Hats elsewhere.

Remember, no misrepresentation, be he judge or no judge of goods, at
