JOHNNY SUMMERS, WHO WOULD FIGHT NELSON AND THEN GANS.

R. Edgren COLUMN

JOHNNY SUMMERS has arrived in America. Johnny wears an 18-inch collar and a 7 hat.

Summers is a fighter. From the size of his collar you would take him for a heavy-weight. But, in fact, he is just about the size of little Abe Attell. He can fight at 124 pounds, weighing in at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and entering the ring at some hour of the evening.

The one thing that Summers wants now is a fight with Battling Nelson. When I pointed out the fact that a possible victory over the Dane wouldn't bet him any championships, he said: "That makes no difference. If I beat Nelson I will go on and fight Gans. But I want to whip Nelson first. I will fight him at 133 pounds if he wishes.

"When he was in England Nelson challenged any English fighter to meet him at 130 pounds for a side bet and the best purse offered. My backer, Lord Cormel, who is Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and a good sport, put up £1,000 ($5,000) at the National Sporting Club to back me, and I accepted Nelson's challenge. Nelson went to Queenstown, saying that he would make the match when he returned in a week or so, and the next thing I heard was the news of his sailing for America. I was very loath to let him escape, so I followed him. I am sure that I can beat him, and I am quite willing to fight him under any conditions."

AT this juncture Summers tipped a wink to Charlie Harvey, who was with him. Charlie reached into his inside pocket and drew out a large yellow roll. Spread out, it showed ten $100 bills—$1,000 in real money. No checks—not even a certified check. It certainly looked very much like business to man. I asked Charles to state his intentions clearly so that there could be no mistake if Nelson accepted and it came to a showdown.

"This goes as a forfeit for appearance," explained Harvey. "Summers is anxious to fight Nelson and I think I can guarantee that he will be on the job. We aren't offering it as a side bet, because we all know that side bets aren't made in this country. Everybody is onto the bluff. If Nelson wants a side bet he can have it, but we're just talking fight now. This $1,000 guarantees that Summers will be there to meet any time Nelson agrees to the match.

"I'm not looking about for easy fights," cut in Summers. "I prefer Nelson. Of course, if he still sidesteps me I shall fight anybody else.

"Dixon says that he beat you in England. How about it?"

"He was given the decision," explained Summers. "In the fourth round I knocked him out cold. He rolled and fell across the ropes so that he didn't get to the floor. I walked to my corner. Six seconds later he came to my back and knocks him off my shoulder and make sure of him I walked back and knocked him on the jaw. The referee immediately gave Nelson the decision, saying that he had slipped down far enough for his knees to touch the floor. And the blokes found I can beat Nelson easily any time."

"How long have you been fighting?"

"Ever since I was sixteen. I am twenty-four now. I have fought over 50 fights. One year I fought just fifty bears, a fight a week. Sometimes I fight four or five nights a week in the Wonderland and other clubs in London. I like it."

I TOLD Summers that since Jack Palmer's defeat by Sullivan the English fighters are not regarded very highly here.

"Palmer was good years ago, when he was a middle-weight," Summers explained, "but he was badly beaten in South Africa and hasn't been worth much as a heavyweight. I saw Moir beat him easily. Moir is quick for a big fellow. He might do something over here, but Palmer is all in."

Both Summers and his English trainer, Alf Wicks, wear clothes cut in the latest Lunnon style, with those narrow, peaked shoulders on the coats and trousers that cling closer than a bathing suit in action. But the Englishman looks like a fighter. He has a strong resemblance to Terry McGovern as Terry was a few years ago. His thick neck supports a good-sized head, with a wide, round jaw that looks capable of standing any amount of punishment. He has pale-blue eyes, the sharpshooter's eyes, you know.

Summers may make good. The little fellows among the English fighters seem to have much more class than the big men. Owen Moran, who outpointed Al Delmont in London last night, fought here and made a hit. Robson has done very well. Summers did some good work on a former trip to this country. He is a very clever boxer and can hit like a welter weight.

THE fact that Sam Langford, the dusky middle-weight from Boston, knocked out Tiger Smith, of England, in the National Sporting Club, of London, last night, takes some of the shine off Gunner Moir's performance. Moir knocked Smith out in the first round, however. If he had outclassed him ten times as much he could hardly have won more quickly. Langford will have to be able to force Moir into a fast, in which case it would be no surprise at all to those who have seen Langford in action to hear that he had annexed the championship of England.

W. H. CAREY PICKED TO WIN EXCELSIOR

BY FRANK W. THORP.

THOSE who were so hysterical about Dr. Gardner winning the Excelsior Handicap on Friday are not so sure of their ground to-day. Dr. Gardner's showing yesterday was not that of a real good horse. He tired and stopped. Of course he was conceding a lot of weight and the pace was fast, but two very ordinary horses beat him.

Athlete is one of the surprises of the day. He couldn't head a bull up a lane at New Orleans last winter, but once back where he can snuff the salt breezes of Sheepshead Bay he is rejuvenated and becomes a rattling good horse. Athlete is not in the Excelsior, and if he were he couldn't win, for sprinting is his game and seven furlongs about his limit at top speed.

It begins to look as if W. H. Carey and the Excelsior at his mercy. He placed horses in the Carter Appear to be out of it, for when that race is dissected it will be seen that it was a poor affair. The race looked poor on Tuesday it was run, for while Glorifier ran the seven furlongs in 1.28 1-5, Bellsnickers, an absolutely no account horse, ran a fifth of a second faster in the very next race. Since the Carter was run the subsequent performances of Glorifier and Oxford prove that it was a very bad race. Granting that it was a bad race, it undoubtedly disposes of the pretensions of De Mund as a first-class three-year-old. I really believe that Orphan Lad at even weights can beat De Mund over the seven furlong distance.

In the Carter were Oxford, Glorifier, Don Diego, Orbicular and Tilling. You can toss all of these out of the Excelsior with the possible exception of Orbicular, who had no chance from where he got away. It leaves the race to W. H. Carey and Okeelite. The latter is something of a jokers to me as yet. I cannot make up my mind whether he is a first-class horse or not. His races last year left me with the impression that he was not a good horse, yet his races this season have been first class. His last race, six furlongs in 1.14, over a track that was wet and slippery and under 112 pounds, was certainly a cracking good performance. I shall regard Okeelite as a distinctly dangerous horse in the Excelsior, and the only question to be asked is whether he will go the route. It is very probable that Mr. Belmont now considers that he erred in not sending Okeelite for the Carter. Judging by the showing of De Mund and the other Carter candidate, Okeelite could have won the Carter in a breeze.

If there is a big field in the Excelsior it is sure thing that Okeelite will not beat W. H. Carey, for the latter is a natural slow beginner, and in the rush to the first turn he is not going to have any the best of it. Pretension has speed, and thus is dangerous to Okeelite. If the rider of the latter should go chasing out in front, Orbicular has an outside chance, and so has Cressina. The better chances may be better estimated after five races at Aqueduct to-day. Hot Toddy looks overweighted at this distance, and I do not think he will be quite ready for a bruising race, at this stage it looks like Carey and Okeelite, and if the latter goes the mile route well to-day I shall probably swing to him.
