AMERICAN FISTS ARE FEARED ALL OVER THE WORLD

Yankees Have Plenty of Red Blood in Their Veins and Enjoy a Good Scrap—Good Fights in Old New York.

R. Edgren COLUMN

THE fighting game in Little Old New York will not down. Occasionally it takes the count, staggers up somewhat groggy, but so far it has never received a knock-out, and it never will. So long as men have red blood they will love to see a fight. The American fist is known and feared the world over. "Fighting Bob" Evans knew this when he permitted the men of his fleet to battle with the English tars at Jamestown.

The ringside draws the live ones. Last night there was a stag at the Long Acre Club. I sat at the ringside and looked over the crowd. I saw a priest, a preacher, a lawyer of note, a doctor—so they ran, from the elect down to the derelicts. But they all were ALIVE—saint and sinner alike.

JUST now this town is producing some fighters, too. There's Rouse O'Brien. He came over from Boston, but he has come to stay. And he is a fighter from tip to toe—the sort of fighter you like. Rouse is classy and clean. He showed his peerless style against Kid Stinger and Bert Keyes. He is booked to meet Stinger again at the Sharkey A. C. to-morrow night.

Harry Harris is said to have come back. He will meet Tommy Murphy at the National Sporting Club on Monday night. Harry will have to go some against Murphy—go a great deal harder and better than he did against Jack Goodman.

Band there is Billy Elmer's protege, Phil Brock. This youngster seems to be a comer. Frankie Madden has also shown class. Stinger is of the Bat Nelson variety—that fights all the time. Goodman shows the style that made Kid McCoy famous.

HERE'S the latest from England:

"There has been quite an influx of American boxers to England these last few weeks. The latest arrival is a Californian heavyweight, who styles himself Sam MacVay—a big strapping fellow of six feet and a fine pair of shoulders on him. He was introduced at the National Sporting Club and met with a very hearty reception. Lord Lonsdale, who is very fond of colored boxers, has taken quite a kind of interest in the visitor, who will more than likely be matched against a good heavyweight as a sort of a trial spin. MacVay will tackle anything Sam Langford included, but so far a match has not been fixed up. MacVay very strongly resembles Jack Johnson, and promoters over here think he is a better man than he makes himself out to be.

"Sam Langford can be found daily swaggering along Piccadilly, smoking a big cigar. Sam is matched to fight Geoff Thorne, Bob Fitzsimmons's old sparring partner, on June 3, at the National Sporting Club, but this is a soft thing for the negro. Sam ought to shift his man inside five rounds, and not do any training either. Albert Delmont is still idle, and his only hope is a match against Jimmy Walsh's old rival, Digger Stanley. The Englishman is practically past his best, but still he can get good support. Candidly speaking, Stanley is too weak for Delmont, and it would not surprise anybody if the little American-Italian shifted the Digger in a few rounds. However, Delmont is not expected to leave without getting another trial.

"Poor old Jem Mace is feeling the burden of his years. Bracketed with his old friend John L. Sullivan, one might say they are the two greatest stalwarts of the knuckle days living. Old Mace is to be seen daily in Fleet Street and his walks are usually between the Sporting Life and the Sporting Life offices. Jem is a dear old friend, but unfortunately he is not experiencing the best of times. He has many friends at the National Sporting Club, where he can invariably pick up a sovereign or two, which keeps him going. Very frail on his legs, Mace finds it difficult to get about, but sometimes manages down to Kempton or Gatwick just to keep in touch with the game.

"Frank Craig, the Harlem 'Coffee-cooler,' has lost a good deal of his former speed. Twice recently he got an engagement at Wonderland, in White Chapel, which enables him to win a few pounds. Frank is a most accomplished musician and dancer and is occasionally employed at several of the small London music halls.

"There is little use of Bill Squires coming to England just now, as his only likely opponent, Gunner Moir, will not box until October. At the present moment there is no chance of the outside public seeing a championship fight, as these are decided within the precincts of the National Sporting Club, and only those who are friends of members can gain admission at a very high price. It is said that several American promoters are coming over to run a big three-cornered carnival at Olympia or the Agricultural, where something like twenty thousand people can be seated. Of course the trouble is the police problem, but I think there need be no fear on that score. Hopes are entertained that 'Battling' Nelson may show his offers once more, and thus convince the English public that he is not funking the business."

SCHRECK STOPS HART.

TONOPAH, Nev., May 31.—Blinded and bleeding, and so weak that he could scarcely stand, Marvin Hart was mercifully saved from further punishment in the twenty-first round yesterday by his seconds throwing up a towel, as a token of defeat.

Mike Schreck, of Chicago, had punished the big Kentuckian without stint in the last ten rounds of the battle, and it was useless to continue. The German's superiority was marked, and everybody was satisfied.

Schreck was the fight because he is a better all-round man than Hart, and in winning the battle made so many friends here that he is not likely to get backing the next time he fights. Hart was knocked down many times during the engagement, and at least on three occasions the bell saved him from a complete knockout. Whenever he was floored he disregarded the cries of his friends and refused to take the count. From the fifteenth to the twenty-first and it was merely a question of Hart's gameness, and how far it would carry him.

RACING POPULARITY AT ITS HEIGHT.

Biggest Crowd in Sport's History See Rare Contests at Belmont Park.

IF anything was needed to attest the popularity of horse racing in New York it was furnished by the multitudes that turned out to witness the sport at Belmont Park yesterday. Probably never in the history of thoroughbred racing in this State has such a tremendous crowd been seen at a racecourse. And the wonder of it all is how the Long Island Railroad, with its limited facilities, ever got the vast throng home to its thousands of homes. Belmont Park is the biggest race course in America, yet yesterday it did not seem nearly big enough to accommodate its holiday patrons comfortably. Seats in the spacious grand stand were at a premium early. Thousands had to be content with standing room on the various stairways, while overflow thousands seemed to completely cover the grass of the lawn from the stretch rail in to the grand stand's lower stairways. The fever of speculation, as shown by the jam in the betting ring, was intense. The bookmakers never had a busier day and, though they came out ahead, as they usually do on a big day, they worked hard for the money.

A noticeable feature about yesterday's great crowd was the feminine portion. Nearly every man seemed accompanied by a female enthusiast. Each year sees an increased attendance of women at the tracks. Ten years ago the number of women attending the races was small, so small, in fact, that it was hardly noticeable on a big day. Tally-ho and carriages carried little parties, but few women made the trip by train. Yesterday women seemed everywhere, except in the betting ring, and there, of course they are barred.

The great crowd was treated to a rare day's sport. Winners and losers agreed that for a faultless racing the day has rarely been equalled. The Whitney Memorial, as a spectacle, couldn't have been improved upon; the gentlemen jockey's race was brimful of interest, and the $25,000 Belmont, the event of the day, furnished as pretty a contest as one would care to see. The small field enabled the crowd to name the horses without fixed glasses at any stage and the finest was clear cut to everybody. Considering everything, yesterday was the biggest racing day of the year, not excepting Brooklyn Handicap Day.

It is common nowadays to refer to form reversals; in fact, it is getting to be an every day occurrence, but none this year caused such a public howl as T. S. Martin's victory in the Whitney Memorial. Last time out in a race of a similar distance, the Rainey jumper quitted after going less than two miles. Yesterday he just romped all the way, and was never caught. Those who took Good and Plenty at 7 to 10, thinking they had a reasonably sure thing, said unkind things of racing stewards who allow such glaring reversals to go unquestioned.

Peter Pan was easily the best horse in the Belmont, but his showing further perplexes the form students. Before the Belmont it was agreed that he didn't like a route. He proved it by stretching out the distance in fine way, a tired horse, to Dinna Ken on his next outing. Yesterday he finished on the bit. Where do Frank Gill and Dinna Ken stand now?

Sailor Boy is another real horse puzzle. On his hollow victory last Saturday, his chances of winning yesterday were considered seemingly hopeless by the wisest of handicappers. Next time out some will say, "Throw out his last race." Things may come to such a pass that not only Sailor Boy's last race but the whole Daly barn will be thrown out.

BURNS OR SQUIRES NOW FOR SHRECK

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

Immediately after Mike Shreck, the Cincinnati heavy-weight, had been declared the winner over Martin Hart in the twenty-first round of their finish fight at Tonopah, Nev., yesterday, officials of the Casino A. C., where they fought, made the announcement that they would offer a purse of $10,000 for a finish battle between Shreck and the winner of the Tommy Burns-Bill Squires fight, to be decided on the afternoon of Labor Day. The offer was wired to both Burns and Squires at San Francisco.

Tonopah Is a Great Fight City.

That the people of Tonopah, Nev., still like the fighting game was again shown yesterday when enough of them attended the battle to make the gross receipts amount to $19,000. As the fighters battled for 50 per cent. of this sum, 60 per cent. of which went to the winner, and 40 per cent. to the loser, Shreck, for being adjudged the victor, got $5,700 for his trouble, while Hart, for losing, was given $3,800.

Langford Well Thought of in England

That Sam Langford, the colored fighter of Boston, has made a great hit in England is demonstrated by the way in which the English sporting men are anxious to bet on his chances of stopping Jeff Thorne, the big English fighter, when he tackles him a ten-round bout at the National Sporting Club of London on Monday night. They are offering odds of 2 to 1 that Langford puts Jeff asleep in less than eight rounds.

O'Brien to Fight Stinger and Ferns.

Rouse O'Brien, the New England fighter, who is to face Kid Stinger in a ten-round bout at the special stag to be pulled off by the Sharkey A. C. to-morrow night, was signed up for another bout last night. His manager agreed to let him meet Harry Ferns in a six-round bout at the next stag of the Long Acre A. C. on Thursday night. O'Brien is getting in good condition for both contests.

Chick Tucker Ready to Fight Again.

"Chick" Tucker, the game Italian fighter, who was shot in the neck by a wild Italian a few months ago, is ready to fight again. He is training at present and will be matched in a few days to meet Johnny Summers, the English boxer, for ten rounds at one of the best athletic clubs that are holding boxing wags for its members. The contest will probably be decided at the Sharkey A. C. in two weeks.

Walsh to Meet Weeks June 14.

After weeks of wrangling, a match has finally been clinched between Jimmy Walsh, the Boston boxer, and Freddie Weeks, of Cripple Creek, Col., who fought so well in the bouts he had in Philadelphia. They have agreed to box ten fifty contestants in a ten-round bout before the Coliseum A. C. of Denver, Col., on June 14, at 122 pounds, weigh in at 6 o'clock.

Three Fights Billed Last Night Postponed.

Three fights carded to be decided last night were postponed. Rouse O'Brien was to have met Harry Ferns at Rockaway Jim Donovan, the local fighter, was to have slept and could not meet Tommy Sullivan at Manchester, N. H., and Johnny Reagan, the South Brooklyn feather-weight, refused to meet Jimmy Walsh at Denver, Col., claiming that he did not have enough time in which to prepare for it.

POLO A. A. STAG TO-NIGHT.

"Unk" Russell, of Philadelphia, and Amby McGarry, of this city, will meet in a six-round bout at the special entertainment to be held in the New Polo A. A. to-night. Both men recently put up a great battle in the Quaker City. Besides this good bout there will be five other fast contests.

GOODWIN'S TURF GUIDE OUT.

Goodwin's Turf Guide, covering a complete summary of all thoroughbred racing in the United States and Canada from July 1 to May 31, inclusive, has been received from the printer and is on sale at all news stands and turf headquarters.

FERRIER LOSES TO M'KENNA IN LONG ACRE BOUTS

Patsey McKenna, of Boston, met Joe Ferrier, a local youngster, in the star bout of six rounds at the stag of the Long Acre A. C. last night, and clearly had the best of the milling in all of the rounds.

In the other bouts Willie Green and "Irish Paddy" fought a hard battle in the semi-wind-up; Dick Nelson stopped Billy Ryan in the third round; Young Thomas won over Young Cahill in the fourth; Sam Williams and Battling Kelly boxed a draw, and Johnny Michaels and Johnny Berger boxed an even encounter.

Bresnahan's Shin-Guards Have Come to Stay

A glance into the official rules of baseball will convince the most critical that there is nothing to prevent Roger Bresnahan from wearing his much-discussed shin-guards, and President Pulliam has about come to the same conclusion. Notwithstanding Pittsburg's protest, Bresnahan has not been ordered to discard his unique protectors, but instead Fred Clark has ordered them for his own catchers.

The only rule which could possibly have a bearing on the shin-guard matter is Rule 19, relative to the wearing apparel to be worn by players. It says:

"No player who shall attach anything to the sole of his shoe other than the ordinary baseball shoe plate, or who shall appear in a uniform not conforming to the suits of the other members of his team, shall be permitted to take part in a game."

This certainly has no bearing on shin-guards, as they are no more a part of the uniform "different from other players" than is the catcher's mask or chest-protector.

It is quite likely that Bresnahan's innovation will become a permanent fixture in the national game, as other players are thinking seriously of adopting them.
