"BILL" SQUIRES GETS DECISION ON "JOE" THOMAS

Robert Edgren Matches Middleweight and Australian for a Tryout and Finds That the Latter Can Go Some.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

ROBERT EDGREN.

San Francisco, June 12.

I FOUND Joe Thomas at Squires's quarters in San Rafael this morning. Joe was looking for a place to train for his coming welterweight championship fight with "Twin" Sullivan.

Squires was just beginning work. Britt, sweating from a run on the road, didn't care to box with him. In fact, the big Australian is having trouble in securing a sparring partner. He knocked out "Battling" Johnson, a local heavyweight, and Johnson went back to 'Frisco on the next train. Joe Kennedy, Jeff's old trainer, looked Squires over and decided to stick to his job mixing drinks. And none of the other big fellows had time.

SO SQUIRES has been working alone.

I wanted to see him box. Taking Joe Thomas aside, I asked him if he would mind putting on the gloves with the big fellow.

"Anything to oblige," said Joe.

Jimmy Britt brought out shoes and trunks. Thomas stripped. I asked Squires if he would spar with Thomas.

"I don't mind at all," said Bill; "but I'm not much of a sparrer. If he'll fight a bit it will suit me."

I assured him that Thomas would like to "fight a bit."

TIME was called. They went at it. Thomas is probably the cleverest middleweight in the country just now. It wouldn't have been surprising if he had jabbed Squires's head off. But as they mixed it Joe dropped his right over on Bill's jaw and the Australian tore in with a right to the heart, a left feint to the body, a sudden left hook for the jaw that rocked Joe's head and almost lifted him from his feet. Thomas, with his smooth, beautiful footwork, danced in and out, feinted, jabbed and punched away. But Squires was always set. His seemingly clumsy footwork carried him swiftly in and out. He was always willing to exchange blows, and at infighting he was a wonder.

Squires has enormously long, apelike arms. His reach is greater than that of Fitzsimmons. He isn't like Fitz in action, but somehow he has the same wonderful accuracy. Time and again he landed cleanly on Thomas in the mixing, and the clever middleweight seemed unable to block or avoid the blows. And there was a jar in Squires's blows. It was plainly evident that he didn't cut loose, yet in the third round he nearly knocked Joe down with a short left hook on the jaw. Squires smilingly apologized, but Joe smiled, too, and went right on.

I AM of the impression that Thomas, who lacks the curious conceit of the ordinary fighter, didn't try to show off for my benefit. He did just what I asked him to—he drew Squires out. He made Squires show his points.

And Squires certainly looks like the real thing. A famous referee who went to the quarters with me said, after the third round: "This fellow is a fighter. He'll knock Burns out inside of six rounds, or I'm a poor judge."

Perhaps not. Burns is a great man of his inches, too. But unless I am mistaken this Australian will be the surprise of the year. He is cold as ice, yet eager to fight. He is clever in an awkward way. So was Fitz. He can hit as hard as the freckled wonder. That means that he can knock out any man he lands on—possibly barring the invulnerable Jeffries.

Just before boxing with Thomas Squires had gone through twenty minutes of rope skipping. Immediately after the third hot round he jumped for the punching bag. Ten minutes of bam mering, and he wound that exercise up with a full minute of slugging that shook the building.

I ASKED Joe Thomas for his opinion of Squires.

"He's the real thing," said Joe. "He has everything a fighter needs. He is fast and he can hit hard. He's cool and tricky. I know he is game. You can tell that by looking at him. Burns is a clever, rough, rugged fighter, but this fellow will make him pay. The only question is how he will stand up to punishment if it is a 20-round fight. I think from his looks and the way he boxed that he can take as much as anybody. He'll fight on the aggressive—that's sure."

Squires worked hard for a full hour without a rest.

"Do you always work like this so long before a fight?" I asked him.

"Why, I haven't started yet," replied Squires, soberly. "I'll work a lot after the last two weeks."

It is plain that Mr. Squires intends to make a sorry mess of this Burns fight. He is going in tooth and nail. An Australian who saw him in his native land called at the quarters.

"I'll wager my earthly possessions on him if he fights Mr. Jeffries," said the Antipodian.

"I'll string with you, pard," chipped in Billy Shannon.

WEFERS MADE MANY RECORDS ON THE CINDERS

The new trainer of the Irish-American Athletic Club has a remarkable record as runner. He was once clocked for 9 3-5 seconds in the 100 yards, but it was not allowed. He held the sprint records for several years. The following are his figures:

75 yards....	7 2-5 seconds.
100 yards....	9 4-5 seconds.
120 yards....	11 2-5 seconds.
220 yards....	21 1-5 seconds.
300 yards....	30 1-5 seconds.
440 yards....	49 2-5 seconds.

SUCCESS OF KEENE STRING DUE TO ROWE

Trainer Does All His Own Work and Depends on Nobody.

BY VINCENT TREANOR.

JIMMY ROWE, trainer of the Keene horses, is a shining example of the man who succeeds by hard work, and plenty of it. There is no harder working man at the track these days than Rowe. The remarkable success of the horses carrying the white and blue spots o. ..e millionaire owner is due solely to his painstaking efforts. Rowe is always on the job, from early morning until the races are over. He directs everything personally, and depends on nobody. Mr. Keene has the greatest faith in him, and relies solely on his judgment. Yesterday when thousands were cashing in on the great victory of the great Peter Pan, Rowe was a busy man in that part of the paddock beyond the stall inclosure. He was superintending the cooling off of the winner. By superintending we don't mean that he stood idly by giving orders. No. That's not Rowe's way of working. He scraped the perspiration from the coat of the racer himself, while four negro rubbers busied themselves at his direction with other things looking toward Peter Pan's comfort. The colt's legs were bandaged under Rowe's personal supervision, the rubbing was done according to the trainer's own ideas, and the blanketing of the colt was trusted to no one but Rowe himself. Foxhall Keene looked on at the cooling out process, but Rowe had little to say to him while this important part of the racer's daily life was on.

Bookmaking on the back line isn't a money coining occupation. These fellows get on the poker play except when the big rin ..ers makers want to hedge off anything they have too much of. A runner for one of the big fellows can get quite a bunch down with the backliners in $10 and $15 lumps, and often an awful case of stinging is the result.

Jockey Mountain has been criticised for his handling of certain horses, but no fault could be found with the ride he gave Peter Pan. His finish was one of the best seen this year. When Mountain is in the right mood there are few jockeys in these parts who can outride him.

The good horses of the Keene string always serve as an extraordinary attraction when they are carded to appear. Yesterday's attendance showed a big increase over the usual weekday crowd.

Several of the big books who maintained the price on Queen Margarette in the Metropole had extraordinary lines of bettors to satisfy. A well-known professional handicapper handed out the Queen as one of his best bets, and as he has an enormous following most of the layers were hit, despite the play on the well tutored Belphoebe.

Little Eddie Dugan rode a badly judged race on Saylor in the opinion of many who backed the Durnell gelding. Dugan took a ..ead of Saylor chasing the ..ing slot Masterson.

The same old "ton of money" was burned up in the third race when three long shots, Zephon, Jonah and Miss Argie, went under the wire in the order named. All the place play went to Repoy, Marianne, Smoke Signals and La Jeunesse. The Burley colt was the "good thing" in this race, but it didn't come through.

BARNEY WEFERS TRAINS ATHLETES ON MEAT

Former Record-Breaker Tells How He Will Develop Irish-Americans.

Horses Need Oats, He Says, and Men Must Eat Meat for Strength.

Bernard Wefers.

"WHEN you want work out of a horse you give him oats. Oats is the proper food for a horse. When you want to get work out of a man you must give him meat. Meat is the proper strengthening food for man. I encourage my athletes to eat meat plentifully. I know it is good for them. I have watched for many years the effects of different food on the system, and have concluded that a meat diet is the most suitable for the athlete."

B. J. Wefers, the most phenomenal sprinter of his time, and who has been an athletic trainer for several years, today gave the foregoing conclusion as the basis of his work in getting men into shape for track and field contests. Wefers has just signed a contract to train for the Irish-American Athletic Club, and to-day he assumed formal charge of the fine group of champions who are now in active training at Celtic Park.

"I have got a wonderful bunch over here," said Wefers, as he watched his men at work. "Just look at them. There are Martin Sheridan, George Bonhag, John Flanagan, Lawson Robertson, Joyce, Archer, Prinstein, Walsh, Cohn and Collins. They are showing me great things, and respond willingly to every demand I make upon them. I am not inclined to be radical in my methods of training. Each man has to be trained differently. Athletes are not constituted alike. One man may require hard work, another easy work. One man may demand heavy feeding, another light feeding. I am an advocate of good eating.

"AMONG the athletes of the Irish-American Athletic Club are men who can be handled by any competent trainer. I make no exception. Every man is most enthusiastic. There is in the organization a freedom from the petty jealousies that have helped to wreck many athletic clubs.

"There are no better athletes in the world than can be found to-day in our club and there are unknown too, whom we are developing along new lines, commensurate with getting best results. We may have several of these "unknowns" in shape to introduce to the athletic world this coming season."

SPIKE EVENS UP OLD SCORES

BY BOZEMAN BULGER.

(Special to The Evening World.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 12. — At last Spike Shannon has avenged himself on the town which set him adrift and sent bad stories behind him.

It came about just when the knocking was loudest, and hence much sweeter the said revenge. The few friends saved Spike on the opening day by presenting him with a solid gold fob in the face of animosity, but during the playing intervals between showers on the third day his foes cut loose and some of their remarks would have singed asbestos.

"Oh, Spike, you yaller-haired quitter! You $10,000 lemon!"

"G-t out of there and make room for a man!"

This and few more of cockle-burr smoothness and the Mick in Spike's veins jumped up to blood heat. He lay back and ramrodded his bat into an out curve for a long single and later scored.

"You flat-footed runner, you horse-faced deserter!"

This was the second volley that came from the fans, and he knew additional ten degrees Fahrenheit to-day, the veins on his big brain.

Spike swelled up like a toad. He swung one from his hips and bank Shannon a fast jump ball was caught on the piccolo and went whistling in right for two sacks. And again Spike cantered home when another single was dropped in to help him on his way. No to be squelched, the left-field bleachers let loose like a popgun loaded with poison tipped adjectives when Shannon came up again, and Spike, poor Spike, f..

"Get out of there, you bar hop." Yelled one. "You couldn't beat a carpet!"

"Have you paid your board bill yet? Oh, you pickle-head crab!"

This time hey got Spike's goat fair. His hair was standing up like bristles and you couldn't have ..

his jaw teeth apart with dynamite. Spitting on his hands he set himself to show his tantalizers, and he did. Spike fell on the ball like a ton of brick, and when McGlynn looked around his famous dropped curve had been flattened out into a string. The ball shot against the right field fence like a pea on fire, and when it had been rounded up Spike was perched on third with his fingers at his nose and pointed toward the bleachers in such a manner there could be no mistake as to his meaning. That was about all for the rooters, who for two years had tried to run Shannon out of St. Louis, and utmost quietude prevailed in these parts.

WORLD WANTS WORK WONDERS.

SHRECK WILL BOX JOHNSON

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

Mike Schreck, the heavyweight pugilist, who has certainly come to the front as a result of his victories over John Wille and Marvin Hart at Tonopah, Nev., during the last few months, is one fighter of all the big fellows who does not draw the color line. "If they show me enough money I will take on Jack Johnson just as quickly as any other fighter. I have been promised a fight with the winner of the Squires-Burns battle," said Schreck a few days ago, "and after that bout, if I win, I will gladly take on Johnson providing the club managers will hang up a large enough purse to make it worth my trouble in meeting him."

Gallagher Makes Gans Another Offer.

Reddy Gallagher, the fight promoter of Denver, has evidently not given up hope of getting Joe Gans to fight Jimmy Gardner before his Coliseum A. C. on July 4. Although he has already guaranteed the fighters ..ese ..ir share of the receipts would amount to $9,000, he had made one more effort to get Gans by raising his offer to a guarantee of $10,000 for the men to battle for in a ten-round bout. Gans will probably decline it.

Blackburn and Terry Martin to Fight

Jack Blackburn, the clever colored fighter who knocked out Fred Bradley, the New England heavyweight, in a bout in Philadelphia ten days ago, has been matched to meet Terry Martin, the Quaker City welter-weight, for six rounds at the next boxing show of the Washington Sporting Club, of Philadelphia, which will take place on Monday night. Blackburn ought to outpoint Martin, as he will have height, reach and cleverness on him.

Sullivan and Donovan Box Monday Night.

Tommy Sullivan, the sturdy fighter of Lawrence, Mass., who was outpointed by Harry Lewis in a six-round bout in Philadelphia on Saturday night, has been rematched to meet Jim Donovan, the local boxing instructor, for fifteen rounds at Manchester, N. H., on Monday night. They were to have fought on May 30, but Donovan was taken sick with boils on his neck and his physician ordered him not to fight.

Oliver Ready to Sign for Murphy.

Jimmy Oliver, manager of Tommy Murphy, announced last night that he is waiting to hear from Harry Hayes, manager of Harry Stevens, the Rockaway boxer, in regard to another contest between his ward and Murphy. If that match is not made I will accept the purse of $10,000 offered by the Badger A. C. of Milwaukee for a ten-round bout between Murphy and Charley Neary, to be fought next month," said Oliver.

Harris and Kid Stinger Matched.

Harry Harris and "Kid" Stinger were matched last night to box before one of the local clubs in the near future. Jim Buckley, manager of the Sharkey A. C., is anxious to bring Beri Keyes and Harris together in a six-round bout at his club, and announced last night that he will put the boys on at one of his stags if they can be induced to come. Keyes is training at present with Johnny Summers at New Dorp.

Langford-Jeannette Bout Clinched.

All details for the ten-round bout between Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette, the colored pugilists, which is scheduled for July 1 before the National Sporting Club, of this city, have been arranged. The men will box at catch weights and should put up a great fight. Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight, says he will meet the winner. If Langford beats Jeannette he will probably not meet Johnson, as the latter will outweigh him over forty pounds.

Brown Gets Out an Injunction.

Manager Billy Brown, of the Atlantic A. C., of Rockaway, has secured a temporary injunction, which will prevent the authorities from interfering with his weekly stags down there. The first stag will come off on Friday night, and the main attraction will be a six-round go between Rouse O'Brien and Jack Goodney, the Newark champion, who recently defeated Harry Ferns in a six-round bout.

O'BRIEN FIGHTS DWYER AT STAG OF SHARKEY A. C.

The Sharkey A. C. has another good card of bouts for its weekly stag to-night. In the main bout Rouse O'Brien, who has defeated all the boys he has met in this vicinity, will meet Johnny Dwyer for six rounds. These boys have fought three times to an even break, and Rouse will have to step at his fastest gait to win to-night.

There will be five other bouts.
