

PROFESSOR HUNT'S LECTURES

Finishes Trip Over the Chicago & Northwestern R. R.

From the Harrison Sun, Dec. 27:

Prof. E. W. Hunt gave a lecture on dry farming at the opera house last Friday morning.

The Chicago & North-Western railroad sent a special car along this division as far as Jireh, Wyoming, defraying all expenses so that the farmers might be benefitted by a lecture from Prof. Hunt, who has made a study of farming in the arid west for several years. Superintendent L. N. Costley and John Gable, traveling agent for the North-Western, were in charge of the car. Mr. Costley introduced Prof. Hunt and told the object of the lecture. The professor then talked for about an hour and gave us all good advice in the care of trees, dry farming and irrigation. Among other things he advocated deep plowing, at least four feet deep, which he says can be done with a disc plow. This will allow the rainfall to penetrate the subsoil and conserve the moisture so that good crops can be grown even in dry years.

The attendance was large considering the time of day the lecture was given. The High school children were all present with their teachers and were greatly interested in what was said.

READY TO BEGIN LAW MAKING

The Nebraska legislature will convene next Tuesday. Hon. Earl D. Mallory, representative-elect from the seventy-third district, composed of Box Butte and Sheridan counties, left Tuesday night for Lincoln. He is determined to make his mark at the coming session of the legislature, and has been spending considerable time in trying to make the best possible preparation for the responsible position which he was elected to fill. For this reason he wished to be on the ground early at the state capital.

FIELD AGENT AT ALLIANCE

Not every person or institution claiming to do charitable work is entitled to public confidence and support; but there are some persons who are honestly and earnestly engaged in "work of faith and labor of love", who are entitled to the sympathy and financial support of charitably disposed people. The Herald does not endorse and commend to the public indiscriminately persons soliciting funds for religious or charitable work. There are some imposters who take advantage of kind hearted people to work a graft on them. Such persons should not receive contributions. To give to them encourages them in dishonest practices and also works a hardship to worthy institutions by shaking public confidence in them.

There are, also, some persons, depending upon contributions for support, who are sincerely trying to do good by assisting the unfortunate, but who do not accomplish results in proportion to the expenses incurred. Persons contributing to such work need not feel that they have been imposed upon by so doing, but they ought to try to place their donations where they will accomplish the most. We do not mean by this that one should give all of his contributions to charity to one institution which may impress him favorably, but division should be made according to needs and results accomplished.

The editor of The Herald has been in position for many years to be conversant with the work of the Child Saving Institute of Omaha. It is one of the charitable institutions of this state that it is an unfeigned pleasure to endorse, and for a number of years we have not failed to improve an opportunity to do so. It is in charge of conscientious persons who are competent as well as reliable. The Child Saving Institute is doing a good work, and we believe much more extensive in proportion to money expended than what is accomplished by many charitable institutions.

The following well known business men of Omaha constitute the board of trustees: Arthur C. Smith, Chas. Harding, J. C. Wharton, J. A. Sunderland, A. D. Brandeis, K. C. Burton, W. S. Wright and Rome Miller. It is not possible to give Herald readers as much information in this article as we would like to give. We suggest that interested persons write the superintendent, Rev. A. W. Clark, 42nd and Jackson streets, Omaha, for printed information.

Rev. A. A. Martin of Lincoln, field agent for the Child Saving Institute, was in Alliance over last Sunday. He delivered an address at the M. church at the preaching service hour in the forenoon and at the Baptist church in the evening. His addresses were an inspiration to efforts at helpfulness. They were interesting, not only because of the information relative to the work which he represents, but also because of wholesome advice and suggestions to parents and children who heard him. He was sent here to look up three children that had been reported, one of them a cripple, but he found upon investigation that the mother of the children had left Alliance taking the children with her. When Mr. Martin visits this city again he will, without doubt, receive a cordial welcome and a larger audience to hear him speak, as the people here will know more about him and the institution which he represents.

CEMENT SHOW IN OMAHA TO HAVE NOVEL FEATURES

Omaha, Jan. 1—The most novel and interesting exhibition of cement products ever offered for inspection will feature the annual exhibition of the Nebraska-Iowa Cement Users Association which will be held in Omaha February 4 to 8. Ornamental designs, showing the possibilities of cement for decorative as well as useful purposes will dominate the exhibition in which dealers from all over the country will show.

The Cement Users Association will hold its annual convention at the same time, three days being devoted to the meeting. Peter Palmer of Oakland, Neb., president of the state association, has just returned from Pittsburg and Philadelphia, where he visited the eastern shows. He reports unusual interest in the Omaha show this year as it is the only one which will be held west of the Mississippi river.

County Clerk M. S. Hargraves was entertaining his sister Mrs. Will Lumley and husband of Beaver City, Neb., the latter part of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Lumley and family were visiting at Hay Springs prior to their visit in this city.

IMPLEMENT DEALERS SHOW INTEREST IN OMAHA EXHIBIT

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 1—More than one thousand implement dealers from Nebraska and Iowa will attend the annual meeting of the Midwest Implement Dealers Association in Omaha, January 8 to 10, according to M. L. Goosman, secretary of the association.

Unusual interest is being manifested in the program this year because of the arrangement which permits participation by the members in the discussion of all subjects which have a bearing on the industry.

The increase in business this year in implement lines is another reason for the interest. In Omaha, alone, more than $12,000,000 worth of implements were distributed to Iowa and Nebraska farmers.

2000 programs were sent out to all dealers in the territory by the secretary and responses have been quite general.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bundy last Monday.
